Time To Deal With Crushed Axis Foes Apparently Nearer

Interpretation By

Kirke L. Simpson

(Wide World War Analyst)

Highlighted by President Roosevelt's war-review message to congress giving the first authoritative glimpse of Anglo-American post-war plans for dealing with crushed Axis foes, the last few days of global action definitely brought closer the hour when those plans can be translated into action.

In Italy, with the Salerno bridgehead gripped now by joined British and American armies rapidly expanding, Nazi rearguards were in flight and the full-scale Allied invasion of the Italian mainland was in progress. The ground already is prepared for furious Allied night-and-day bombing of southern and eastern Germany from Italian bases—pictured by Mr. Roosevelt as one objective of the Italian campaign.

In Russia, the bulk of the German army was staggering backward to the Dnieper along the whole front from Smolensk to the sea, its strength sapped by withdrawal of much land and air power to meet Allied threats in Italy, the Balkans, southern France and from Britain.

The Caucasus, the Crimea and even the massive bulge of the Dnieper plateau within the eastern bend of the great river above the Black sea seem certain to fall soon into Russian hands again. The Nazi-Russian front in the south was rolling backward daily, closer to the Balkans and their wavering satellite regimes.

That lends special significance to the paragraph of the president's message to congress.

"We have reliable information that there is definite unrest and a growing desire for peace among the peoples of these satellite countries—Rumania, Hungary, Finland and Bulgaria," he said. "We hope that in these nations the spirit of revolt against Nazi domination which commenced in Italy will burst into flame and become a consuming fire."

Russian success in driving the Germans behind the Dnieper in the north and center and the Bug in the south could put that hope to a quick test and it seems inevitable now. On the Bug the Russians would stand less than 100 miles from the Dniester that long marked the Russian-Rumanian boundary. They could strike at Rumanian oil sources from which the Nazi war machine draws its prime

LIEUT. M'COY IS KILLED IN CRASH

Airplane Accident Costs Life Of Former Monroe Resident

Lieutenant Martin L. McCoy, 25, son of the late Dr. T. L. McCoy of Monroe and Mrs. McCoy of New Orleans, was fatally injured in a plane accident near Jacksonville, Fla., Friday at 2:30 p.m., according to word that has been received here. He had recently graduated at Foster field, Victoria, Tex.

He married Miss Martha Byrnes, Jacksonville, Fla., last July 22, and they were residing in Tallahassee, Fla., where he was engaged in combat training.

The body was en route to Monroe Saturday and the funeral will be held here as well as the interment.

His father, a Monroe dentist, was killed in an auto accident near Biloxi, Miss., about two years ago. Since that time his mother has resided in New Orleans.

He leaves his wife; his mother, who before her marriage was Miss Lillian Moore; his grandmother, Mrs. Frank Moore; an uncle, Newton J. Moore, and other Monroe relatives.

BOND SALES MOUNT TO $9,532,000,000

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The treasury announced tonight bond sales were $9,532,000,000 in the first 10 days of the $15,000,000,000 third war loan drive—and its figures are not complete.

Daniel W. Bell, undersecretary of the treasury, said the total includes $516,000,000 of government trust funds. Excluding the investment of these trust funds, $9,016,000,000 or approximately 60 per cent of the goal has been raised.

The sales totals announced by the treasury include only money which has been actually banked through the federal reserve system. Consequently commitments announced but not formally completed are not included.

Many municipalities and counties already have reached their quotas. Among the states, New Hampshire and Rhode Island have exceeded four-fifths of their quotas and New York and Utah have reached the three-fourths mark.

Delaware, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota and Virginia are other high-ranking states, averaging three-fifths of their quotas.

Summit county, Ohio, has reported one bond sold for every three persons in the county. For the state, the figure is one bond for every 23 persons.

MISERY ON BIG SCALE IN ITALY

Germany Trying To Kick Beaten Allies Back Into Partnership

DEATH DECREE PUBLISHED ALL OVER OCCUPIED AREA

LONDON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Disorder and misery on a scale not seen since the fall of France were reported in Italy tonight as the Germans sought to kick their beaten allies back to an unwelcome partnership with them.

But the Italians were fighting back—in increasing numbers it appeared. They were reported ripping up German communications between northern and central Italy at a time when the German command most urgently needed them. At some points in the north they were said to be standing against the Nazis and shooting it out.

A variety of accounts from neutral and Allied sources pictured this as part of the chaos in Italy:

1. No food received for days in Rome. No normal activity resumed in the city for more than a week after it had gone under Nazi "protection." The Germans are being compelled to bring in still more troops.

2. The Vatican ringed about and virtually cut off from the outer world by Nazi troops. Pope Pius XII was reported in neutral Stockholm dispatches to have strongly protested his status as a virtual prisoner as well as the treatment of the people in general. The same dispatches reported that the holy father had refused twice to see the German commander, Field Marshal General Albert von Kesselring,

CAFES FACE CUT IN MILK SUPPLY

Fifty Percent Reduction To Start Monday At Board's Orders

A fifty per cent reduction of milk supplied to hotels, cafes, and restaurants will go into effect Monday, in pursuance with action taken by the Ouachita Parish Board of Health and which has been concurred in by the business concerns affected. This action is to be taken to provide milk required by babies and children in Monroe and West Monroe and especially to care for the requirements of the public school cafeterias when these are reopened tomorrow.

The Monroe area in which the local health unit is most interested comprises the parishes of Ouachita, Lincoln, Morehouse, Caldwell, Richland and Claiborne, stated Dr. C. L. Mengis, Ouachita parish health director.

"This area has but approximately 3,000 gallons of milk as daily total," he said. "Of this amount about 1,500 gallons are pasteurized. Of the 1,500 gallons, Selman field gets 700 gallons and the Twin Cities 750 gallons, approximate figures. But Selman field gets 700 gallons for an estimated population of 12,000 while the 750 gallons for the Twin Cities must suffice for 40,000 people. Also out of the 750 gallons, fully 125 gallons go to the cafeterias and restaurants."

Dr. Mengis also stated that Selman field is paying 16 cents a quart wholesale, against the wholesale ceiling price of 13 cents established for the cities of Monroe and West Monroe.

As the fall advances, the supply will be further cut in all probability stated the health officer as feed becomes more difficult to obtain.

Dr. Mengis stated that it will require 200 quarts of milk daily to supply the city schools alone, to say nothing of the parish school cafeterias. To provide milk for these schools, and to see that there is a more equitable distribution in the city for babies, children and ill people, the allowance to be permitted public eating places is to be reduced, he said.

Milk, stated the official, is not a vital need for an adult where an all round well balanced diet is obtainable, but it is vital for growing children.

The resolution that the Ouachita parish board of health adopted unanimously bore the signature of President Dr. E. Powell, Dr. Armand McHenry, Dr. O. H. Hill, G. J. Welch and Tom Hicks, all officers of the board.

WANTS TO TRANSFER MONEY TO SCHOOLS

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 18—(AP)—State Auditor L. B. Baynard said today that as a member of the state board of liquidation he will vote for the transfer of surplus funds to the schools for a raise in teachers' salaries.

The executive committee of the Louisiana Teachers association recently asked the state for "at least $3,000,000" of an estimated $6,000,000 surplus in the treasury.

Baynard also said that he is in favor of transferring another million dollars or more to the schools for use in the vocational education program.

State Treasurer A. P. Tugwell had previously announced that as a member of the board he would ask more funds for the schools.

2 HIGH-RANKING AMERICANS CALL ON BADOGLIO IN ROME

Doctors Operate On Human Bomb

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story, written by Technical Sergeant Jim Lucas of 2321 East 14th Place, Tulsa, Okla., marine combat correspondent, was distributed by the Associated Press.)

A SOUTH PACIFIC MARINE BASE—(Delayed)—Twenty-three-year-old Allen L. Gordon of Rock Island, Ill., knew he was a human bomb.

Standing at his post aboard an American warship in the South Pacific, he had been struck below the left chest by a 20 mm. anti-aircraft shell which pierced his intestines and lodged in his left hip.

By freakish chance, the shell had not exploded.

When Gordon, a fire control man, third class, was gingerly carried ashore at this island outpost on November 22, 1942, he could still grin at the corpsmen who served as his stretcher bearers.

Thus began one of the strangest stories of war surgery which culminated on December 2, when two navy doctors, working behind steel plate, operated on an American sailor who might explode at any moment.

They removed the shell in his hip and although infection later set in, Gordon was strong enough eventually to return to the United States, where treatment continues.

Gordon's experience is not typical, yet it vividly underlines the safeguards thrown up to protect the lives of marines and sailors in the war of the Pacific by the navy's mobile hospital units.

When Gordon was brought ashore, after an emergency operation aboard a battleship to sew up his intestinal tract, the navy's hospital at this island outpost was still under construction.

Under direction of Lieutenant Commander Harold W. Jacox, 4800 Friendship avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., formerly on the staff of the Western Pennsylvania hospital there, several days were spent locating the "dud" by X-ray.

Once it was located, the operation was performed in a matter of a few minutes by Lieutenant Commander Jesse B. Griffith and Lieutenant William C. Wycoff, both from the Western Pennsylvania hospital staff in Pittsburgh.

The shell was turned over to marine ordinance, exploded, and the shell casing returned to Gordon as a souvenir.

Make Daring Visit Under Eyes Of Germans, Return Safely

By Clark Lee

(Distributed by The Associated Press)

(Distributed by the Associated Press)

WITH GENERAL DWIGHT EISENHOWER AT AN ADVANCED ALLIED COMMAND POST, Sept. 17.—(Delayed)—It was disclosed today that two high-ranking American officers made a daring visit to Rome under the eyes of the Germans only a few hours before our invasion of Salerno and returned safely after conferring with Marshal Pietro Badoglio and Italian military commanders.

The two officers went into the Italian capital wearing American army uniforms, minus caps, and spent twenty hours in the most important military discussions. Most of the time they travelled in a car, frequently passing within a few feet of German soldiers.

The exact nature of their mission was not disclosed.

They obtained vital information which has affected the whole course of events since the Italian armistice announcement.

The officers, who voluntarily carried out their dangerous assignment in the full knowledge that discovery would have meant certain execution by the Germans were Brigadier General Maxwell Taylor, a handsome, 42-year-old West Point graduate, formerly of Kansas City, Mo., and Colonel William Tudor Gardiner, 53, a former governor of Maine.

They left Palermo, Sicily, in a British P-T boat and made rendezvous at sea with an Italian corvette, on which they were greeted by an Italian ad-

NAZIS WEAKER IN NORWAY, FINLAND

Pulling Troops Out To Replace 29 Italian Divisions

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 18—(AP)—Germany is weakening her military position in Norway and Finland and retreating all along the line from Smolensk and the Sea of Azov in Russia for a shorter front in a frantic shifting of troops to meet anticipated new Allied invasion blows, reports reaching Stockholm said today.

Twenty thousand to 40,000 German troops have been removed from Norway in the last month, and thousands—one unconfirmed report said two divisions—have been withdrawn from Finland since September 1.

Most soldiers trained in mountain operations were said to have been transferred to the Balkans, where the Nazis' general staff faces a difficult task in replacing 29 Italian garrison divisions.

Swedish correspondents reported from Berlin that elite German troops have been moved from the Russian front to reinforce trops under Field Marshal General Albert Kesslring and Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in Italy.

German militarists have not acknowledged the withdrawals from Norway and Finland, although troop movements have been known to Scandinavian observers for weeks.

But the Nazi communique yesterday did report shortening of the eastern front and described the retreat as a "strategical necessity."

Berlin dispatches to the Swedish press said German commentators now admitted it was essential for Germany to save soldiers to fight on the Russian front as well as to be ready to meet offensives from other directions.

The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholms-Tidningen said the Germans were sacrificing territory of great economic importance in Russia since "the eastern front is not the only one needing troops, and thoughts of prestige must be dropped."

FLIER FROM ESLER FIELD IS KILLED

ALEXANDRIA, La., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Second Lieutenant James Edward Weiler, 23, army air corps, was killed yesterday when the plane he was piloting on a routine training flight crashed three miles west of Kurthwood, La., Esler field authorities announced today.

Lieutenant Weiler had been stationed at Esler field and his home was given as Lisbon, N. D., where his father, Karl A. Weiler, has been notified.

WILL END LABOR RECRUITING HERE

WMC Admits Shortage Of Workers In Monroe Area, McKenzie Says

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—(Special)—The War Manpower commission has agreed to order labor recruiting stopped in the Monroe area, at least until a complete determination can be made of the labor supply, Representative Charles E. McKenzie said today.

The area is now listed by WMC as a labor surplus section and there has been considerable recruiting of labor there, particularly for the west coast. McKenzie found conditions serious and has been endeavoring to have recruiting stopped and to have WMC raise its classification.

He has had considerable difficulty getting an adequate report on actual conditions but in a conference with WMC officials today a report was submitted from the Dallas regional office admitting the shortage there. It was not very specific, but, following his conference, McKenzie said WMC agreed that recruiting should be stopped. It is expected that an order will be sent out stopping it until a complete report can be made. McKenzie said WMC Chairman Paul McNutt could not attend his conference so there is a possibility that this order may not go through as it goes higher up for approval.

The regional office report admitted that "there is no question but that a tight labor market exists in the Monroe area" and said further "the labor shortage complained of in the Monroe area exists in all agricultural areas in this region and will continue throughout the harvest period."

It said further that approximately 3,400 workers had left the area since January 1.

To counter claims on the part of WMC that there is a labor surplus around Monroe McKenzie showed officials a number of wires and letters from industries and organizations in the vicinity. They told of specific shortages in large numbers and of unsuccessful attempts to get workers through the United States Employment service which had reported there is no shortage.

One such wire was from R. C. White of the Missouri Pacific lines, St. Louis, who told McKenzie that the shortage on this road is "becoming

TROPICAL STORM STILL OFF COAST

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The weather bureau said in a 9:30 p.m., central war time, advisory that the tropical hurricane in the gulf still was central about 200 miles south of Port Arthur, Tex., but that later movements towards the north was indicated.

"No material advance is expected during the next several hours," the advisory said, "but later movement towards the north is indicated. Winds of hurricane force continue near the center probably with gusts up to 100 miles per hour and all precautions against such winds should continue in the Freeport-Galveston-Port Arthur (Tex.)-Lake Charles (La.) area."

The bureau also urged precautions against dangerously high tides along the middle and upper Texas coast and in south Louisiana.

AMERICANS DOWN 20 JAP AIRCRAFT

MANY U. S. BOMBERS POUR EXPLOSIVES ON AIR BASES

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sunday, Sept. 19.—(AP)—American war planes in a new Solomons raid have added 20 to the more than 2,000 enemy aircraft destroyed in the south Pacific since August, 1942, but Japan is rushing in reinforcements and risking big formations in the mounting sky battles.

Today's communique reported that bombers "of all categories"—meaning Liberator heavy bombers, Mitchell medium bombers, Avenger torpedo bombers and Dauntless divebombers—struck twice Wednesday under a screen of fighters at the Kahili and Ballaie airdromes in the vicinity of southern Bougainville. Fifty enemy planes challenged them.

Only the day before, more than 100 American bombers poured explosives on airdromes in the area from 9 o'clock in the morning until early afternoon while escorting fighters battled it out with 100 interceptors.

"The enemy is reinforcing his air forces in this area," today's communique said.

(Previously dispatches from the Solomons area said the Japanese may be ferrying planes from Japan down through Truk and Rabaul, New Britain, to Bougainville bases.)

Bougainville in the northern Solomons is the last air fortress barring American forces now entrenched on New Georgia and Vella Lavella from the enemy's all-important naval and air base of Rabaul.

The American air field at Munda, on New Georgia, now serving with Guadalcanal's Henderson field as bases for American air raiders, has been raided three more times, headquarters said today.

Yesterday's communique had told of an enemy formation of 60 striking at Munda.

In the New Guinea war theater, mopping up operations are in progress around newly-captured Lae.

More Than Half Of Quota Raised But Last Part Most Difficult

Ouachita parish has reached $2,275,069.62 in its Third War Loan drive to raise 4,315,000 but the difficult problem now lies ahead Jack Rogers, chairman of the parish's War Finance committee said Saturday. Individual bond buying still continues to lag on a serious scale as most of the big corporation and individual firm buyers have made their allotted purchases of Third War Loan bonds, stated Mr. Rogers.

The success or failure of the drive rests entirely with the individual buyers now and every effort is being made to bring forcibly to the attention of Ouachita parish citizens the necessity of buying an extra bond this month. Mr. Rogers said. This is a time when the average citizen must make up his mind whether he is going to help win this war in person or by proxy—by proxy of dimes and dollars, he added.

There will be no Bob Hope or famovie stars coming to Monroe to boost the sale.

"In one way or another you must make up your mind or have it made up for you," said Mr. Rogers. "Why not do it now, freely, cheerfully? In fact, you are not even asked to give. You are asked only to lend, but to lend every dollar you can. It is up to your own conscience to decide how much you shall lend or withhold.

"The boys at the front are banking upon their belief that your conscience is a good one. Why put this duty off?"

The Ouachita parish War Finance committee urges every citizen of this parish to come through. Employers are requested to tell the real story of this drive to their employes, stated Mr. Rogers. The committee believes that when the urgency of the need is explained to employes they will respond to the appeal as they always have in the past, Mr. Rogers said.

HELD FOR POSING AS NAVY OFFICER

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—(AP)—R. A. Guerin, F. B. I. agent here, announced today the arrest of Thomas Joseph McBride, 36, on a charge of violating the selective service act by allegedly impersonating a federal officer.

Guerin said the F. B. I. charged McBride with wearing a navy uniform and representing himself as a captain in the United States navy.

He said McBride was wanted by federal authorities for allegedly failing to maintain contact with his draft board at Venice, Calif.

RUSSIAN TROOPS WITHIN 37 MILES OF DNIEPEROPETROVSK

733 Towns Captured In Advance Along 600-Mile Front

By James M. Long

LONDON, Sunday, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Soviet columns have slashed to within 37 miles of Dnieperopetrovsk, Boulder dam of the Dnieper river bend, and to within 44 miles of Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, by capturing the railway junction of Pavlograd and the railroad town of Bobrovitsa, Moscow said today.

Smashing ahead on ten important sectors on a 600-mile front, the Russians won back a total of 733 villages, killed 8,700 Germans, wounded 2,000 more, and took 360 prisoners during yesterday, a communique said.

The drive on Kiev from several directions reached closest to the middle Dnieper river bastion along the Kiev-Nezhin railway where a Red army column took Bobrovitsa.

Over 230 populated places were captured in this drive alone and more than 1,000 Germans fell to Russian fire, said the bulletin recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Northeast of Kiev the important town of Chernigov came within Soviet artillery range as Vibli, six miles to the east, was captured and 26 other towns overrun. Thus the Russians were 80 miles north of Kiev and closing in on the highway linking that city and Chernigov.

Priluki, another bastion 78 miles east of Kiev, was gripped by a semicircle of Russian forces moving in from the north, south and east. The nearest Soviet unit was 15 miles from Priluki.

JAMES NOE QUITS GOVERNOR'S RACE

Former Governor Flays Jones In Statement Announcing Withdrawal

Former Governor James A. Noe announced Saturday that he was withdrawing from the governor's race. Mr. Noe's statement in full is as follows:

"Today America and her Allies in the United Nations are engaged in the bloodiest war in the history of the world fighting for the very existance of our Democratic way of life and the heritage of our nation since its founding. Casualty lists are mounting! The struggle is bloody and bitter, and our only hope for the future lies in our unity of effort and sacrifice.

"Despite this, Governor Sam Houston Jones, attempting to speak for the Democratic people of Louisiana, has proposed destruction of the Democratic party; and the creation, through some unknown combination of southern and western states, of a new and untried political party. Disunity and chaos at a time when every patriotic American should have but one thought—the safety and preservation of our Democracy through unified purpose and action at home, as well as on the battle field.

"In a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post, 'Sam Jones Says.'

"'The southern leaders I know who think the time has come to bolt the Democratic party are all . . . men of liberal thought . . . and two governors of deep-South states, Dixon of Alabama, and myself, called upon the South . . . to make tracks out of the . . . Democratic party.'

"The principles of the Democratic party as laid down by Jefferson provide that the will of the majority shall rule. I subscribe to that principle. I am willing to sacrifice my own personal ambitions and desires so that these ideals may live.

"I have been a life-long Democrat. I am the Democratic National committeeman for Louisiana. As such it is my duty to unify and strengthen the Democratic party, rather than by word or action—as Sam Jones has done—seek to divide and destroy the party

THREE STERLINGTON RESIDENTS KILLED

ALEXANDRIA, La., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Four persons were killed, including three members of one family, and three others were seriously injured when their automobile crashed into a locomotive on the Red River and Gulf railroad near Forrest Hill late yesterday.

Following an inquest, Coroner R. L. Calhoun, identified the dead as F. P. Townsend, 61, his wife, Mrs. Ola Townsend, 37, their daughter, Billy Cleo Townsend, 9, all of Sterlington, La., and Mrs. W. A. Waller, 26, of Gilbert, La.

Those injured and taken to a Camp Claiborne station hospital were William Waller, 60; Hiram Waller and an unidentified youth about 17.

The victims were believed to have been en route from Port Neches, Tex., to Sterlington at the time of the accident.

The bodies of all the victims were taken to the Mulhearn Funeral Home at Winnsboro. Funeral arrangements had not been completed today.

Mussolini Makes Address On Radio

LONDON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—A voice purporting to be that of Benito Mussolini, the fallen founder of Fascism, tonight heaped denunciation upon King Vittorio Emanuele, called for the "elimination of Fascist traitors," and bade Italians take up arms again by the side of Germany and Japan.

In a 15-minute radio speech from an undisclosed place, the speaker, represented as the ex-Duce liberated by the Germans, told a story of that rescue which he said would "become legendary" and outlined this four-point program for "loyal" Italians:

1. Take up arms again by the side of Germany and Japan.
2. Reorganize at once the armed forces and militia.
3. Eliminate traitors, particularly those who went over to the enemy.
4. Make an end to plutocratic methods and establish social and Fascist order.

Most listeners here who had heard Mussolini speak before said they believed the voice was actually that of the fallen Italian premier, whom the Germans have announced as the head of the Nazi-sponsored "Republican Fascist party."

(The opinion of the United States government radio monitors was 8 to 2 that it was Mussolini's voice, though somewhat subdued from his old balcony days in Rome, and some thought it was from a recording.)

Though the speech was generally regarded in London as one of "a man whose prestige is gone for good," listeners agreed that the speaker sounded most like the blustering Duce of old when he enunciated his four-point program.

This program was offered to restore an Italy which the speaker said had yielded to the "hardest armistice terms known in history" and now was "thrown into a state of chaos and despair * * * all its possessions thrown away with the stroke of a hand."

For yielding to these terms, the broadcast said, King Vittorio Emanuele should be immediately "called to account."

"I am convinced," the speaker said, "that the house of Savoy prepared and carried out the coup d'etat together with Badoglio as an accomplice, and all of the cowardly generals and * * * some treacherous members of the Fascist party."

STATES JAP FOOD SUPPLY HINDERED

Vinson Says 'Beleaguered Garrisons' Not Getting Ammunition

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the house naval committee declared flatly today that Allied sea might is preventing the Japanese from supplying their "beleaguered garrisons" with food, ammunition and reinforcements "in sufficient quantity to permit long resistance."

In an outline of the situation in the Pacific based on information supplied by the navy department, he noted that 180 Japanese warships have been announced as sunk to date and "heavy losses" inflicted upon the enemy's supply and troop ships.

"The recent land and air successes on New Guinea, the capture of the Salamaua naval and air base and the adjoining base of Lae, and the tremendous air victory at Wewak demonstrate that the southwest Pacific campaign has been one of marked coordination between Allied land, sea and air forces," he said.

"The task of Allied seapower has has been to meet and defeat the Japanese navy whenever the opportunity presented itself. The parallel objective of causing the Japanese navy to give one-way passage to the Japanese army has also been carried out."

Just a day after Secretary of the Navy Knox observed in London that our navy hasn't sighted a Japanese aircraft carrier in four months because "apparently they don't like to come out where it is wet." Vinson tallied the foe's losses.

"In sea areas exclusive of the southwest Pacific," he said, "125 Japanese warships have been sent to the bottom. These include two battleships.

REPORTS WIFE, TWIN DAUGHTERS MISSING

Cecil Allen of Downsville, La., employed by the health department of Pineville, reported to police Saturday the disappearance of his wife, Mrs. Laurine Allen, and twin daughters, two and a half years' old.

Allen said he had come to Monroe on his way to Pineville to see his family and had heard they had gone there to visit him. However, Mrs. Allen did not arrive in Pineville, it was stated.

Mrs. Allen is described as 25 years' old, 5 feet 6 inches tall, and weighing 125 pounds.

Information should be reported to the local police, it was stated.

VICTORIOUS IN SALERNO BATTLE

FIVE GERMAN DIVISIONS REPORTED BADLY MAULED

By Wes Gallagher

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Allied naval units have opened a new phase in the battle for Italy by seizing three more islands commanding the immediate sea approaches to the great port of Naples, headquarters announced today as allied ground troops emerged victorious in the bloody fighting at Salerno.

A special communique disclosed the occupation of Ischia, 16 miles southwest of Naples, only a few hours after the regular war bulletin from General Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced the seizure of two other islands off the northern spur of the Bay of Naples.

Ischia was taken Thursday, one day after the occupation of Ponza, 65 miles west of Naples, and of Procida, 12 miles southwest of Naples and only two miles from the northern land arm of the bay.

Allied forces previously had occupied the island of Capri, on the southern side of the bay.

Ischia, largest of the four, has an area of about 26 square miles and is only seven miles from the nearest mainland coast.

WAR'S PROGRESS PLEASES PEOPLE

Poll Of Congress Shows Discontent Over Home-Front Policies

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Congress members reported today much satisfaction among the folks back home with the way this country is conducting its war on foreign battlefields, but widespread discontent with various phases of the war on the home front.

The Associated Press, seeking a cross-section of the views constituents conveyed to the legislators who went home on vacation in July and returned last Tuesday, quizzed 69 Democrats and Republicans from 42 states.

The majority said they found their people pleased with the war's progress but critical of domestic affairs with most of the complaints mentioning restrictions and regulations.

President Roosevelt, in his message to congress yesterday acknowledged some mistakes have been made. He had this to say about criticism of domestic handling of the war:

"Some of these complaints of course are justified. On the other hand, some of them come from selfish people who merely do not like to give up some of their pleasures, or a part of their butter or meat or milk.

"Fair-minded citizens, however, will realize that although mistakes have been made, the job that has been done in converting peacetime America to a wartime basis has been a great job and a successful one, of which all our people have good reason to be proud."

In the poll of congress members the Office of Price Administration—responsible for price control and rationing—was the only government agency

MISERY ON BIG SCALE IN ITALY

DEATH DECREE PUBLISHED ALL OVER OCCUPIED AREA

LONDON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Disorder and misery on a scale not seen since the fall of France were reported in Italy tonight as the Germans sought to kick their beaten allies back to an unwelcome partnership with them.

But the Italians were fighting back—in increasing numbers it appeared. They were reported ripping up German communications between northern and central Italy at a time when the German command most urgently needed them. At some points in the north they were said to be standing against the Nazis and shooting it out.

A variety of accounts from neutral and Allied sources pictured this as part of the chaos in Italy:

1. No food received for days in Rome. No normal activity resumed in the city for more than a week after it had gone under Nazi "protection." The Germans are being compelled to bring in still more troops.

2. The Vatican ringed about and virtually cut off from the outer world by Nazi troops. Pope Pius XII was reported in neutral Stockholm dispatches to have strongly protested his status as a virtual prisoner as well as the treatment of the people in general. The same dispatches reported that the holy father had refused twice to see the German commander, Field Marshal General Albert von Kesselring.

CAFES FACE CUT IN MILK SUPPLY

Fifty Percent Reduction To Start Monday At Board's Orders

A fifty per cent reduction of milk supplied to hotels, cafes, and restaurants will go into effect Monday, in pursuance with action taken by the Ouachita Parish Board of Health and which has been concurred in by the business concerns affected. This action is to be taken to provide milk required by babies and children in Monroe and West Monroe and especially to care for the requirements of the public school cafeterias when these are reopened tomorrow.

The Monroe area in which the local health unit is most interested comprises the parishes of Ouachita, Lincoln, Morehouse, Caldwell, Richland and Claiborne, stated Dr. C. L. Mengis, Ouachita parish health director.

"This area has but approximately 3,000 gallons of milk as daily total," he said. "Of this amount about 1,500 gallons are pasteurized. Of the 1,500 gallons, Selman field gets 700 gallons and the Twin Cities 750 gallons, approximate figures. But Selman field gets 700 gallons for an estimated population of 12,000, while the 750 gallons for the Twin Cities must suffice for 40,000 people. Also out of the 750 gallons, fully 125 gallons go to the cafeterias and restaurants."

Dr. Mengis also stated that Selman field is paying 16 cents a quart wholesale, against the wholesale ceiling price of 13 cents established for the cities of Monroe and West Monroe.

As the fall advances, the supply will be further cut in all probability stated the health officer as feed becomes more difficult to obtain.

Dr. Mengis stated that it will require 200 quarts of milk daily to supply the city schools alone, to say nothing of the parish school cafeterias. To provide milk for these schools, and to see that there is a more equitable distribution in the city for babies, children and ill people, the allowance to be permitted public eating places is to be reduced, he said.

Milk, stated the official, is not a vital need for an adult where an all round well balanced diet is obtainable, but it is vital for growing children.

The resolution that the Ouachita parish board of health adopted unanimously bore the signature of President Dr. E. Powell, Dr. Armand McHenry, Dr. O. H. Hill, G. J. Welch and Tom Hicks, all officers of the

WANTS TO TRANSFER MONEY TO SCHOOLS

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 18.—(AP)—State Auditor L. B. Baynard said today that as a member of the state board of liquidation he will vote for the transfer of surplus funds to the schools for a raise in teachers' salaries.

The executive committee of the Louisiana Teachers association recently asked the state for "at least $3,000,000" of an estimated $6,000,000 surplus in the treasury.

Baynard also said that he is in favor of transferring another million dollars or more to the schools for use in the vocational education program.

State Treasurer A. P. Tugwell had previously announced that as a member of the board he would ask more funds for the schools.

2 HIGH-RANKING AMERICANS CALL ON BADOGLIO IN ROME

Doctors Operate On Human Bomb

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story, written by Technical Sergeant Jim Lucas of 2531 East 14th Place, Tulsa, Okla., marine combat correspondent, was distributed by the Associated Press.)

A SOUTH PACIFIC MARINE BASE—(Delayed)—Twenty-three-year-old Allen L. Gordon of Rock Island, Ill., knew he was a human bomb.

Standing at his post aboard an American warship in the south Pacific, he had been struck below the left chest by a 20 mm. anti-aircraft shell which pierced his intestines and lodged in his left hip.

By freakish chance, the shell had not exploded.

When Gordon, a fire control man, third class, was gingerly carried ashore at this island outpost on November 22, 1942, he could still grin at the corpsmen who served as his stretcher bearers.

Thus began one of the strangest stories of war surgery which culminated on December 2, when two navy doctors, working behind steel plate, operated on an American sailor who might explode at any moment.

They removed the shell in his hip and although infection later set in, Gordon was strong enough eventually to return to the United States, where treatment continues.

Gordon's experience is not typical, yet it vividly underlines the safeguards thrown up to protect the lives of marines and sailors in the war of the Pacific by the navy's mobile hospital units.

When Gordon was brought ashore, after an emergency operation aboard a battleship to sew up his intestinal tract, the navy's hospital at this island outpost was still under construction.

Under direction of Lieutenant Commander Harold W. Jacox, 4800 Friendship avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., formerly on the staff of the Western Pennsylvania hospital there, several days were spent locating the "dud" by X-ray.

Once it was located, the operation was performed in a matter of a few minutes by Lieutenant Commander Jesse B. Griffith and Lieutenant William C. Wycoff, both from the Western Pennsylvania hospital staff in Pittsburgh.

The shell was turned over to marine ordnance, exploded, and the shell casing returned to Gordon as a souvenir.

NAZIS WEAKER IN NORWAY, FINLAND

Pulling Troops Out To Replace 29 Italian Divisions

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Germany is weakening her military position in Norway and Finland and retreating all along the line from Smolensk and the Sea of Azov in Russia for a shorter front in a frantic shifting of troops to meet anticipated new Allied invasion blows, reports reaching Stockholm said today.

Twenty thousand to 40,000 German troops have been removed from Norway in the last month, and thousands—one unconfirmed report said two divisions—have been withdrawn from Finland since September 1.

Most soldiers trained in mountain operations were said to have been transferred to the Balkans, where the Nazis' general staff faces a difficult task in replacing 29 Italian garrison divisions.

Swedish correspondents reported from Berlin that elite German troops have been moved from the Russian front to reinforce trops under Field Marshal General Albert Kesslring and Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in Italy.

German militarists have not acknowledged the withdrawals from Norway and Finland, although troop movements have been known to Scandinavian observers for weeks.

But the Nazi communique yesterday did report shortening of the eastern front and described the retreat as a "strategical necessity."

Berlin dispatches to the Swedish press said German commentators now admitted it was essential for Germany to save soldiers to fight on the Russian front as well as to be ready to meet offensives from other directions.

The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholms-Tidningen said the Germans were sacrificing territory of great economic importance in Russia since "the eastern front is not the only one needing troops, and thoughts of prestige must be dropped."

FLIER FROM ESLER FIELD IS KILLED

ALEXANDRIA, La., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Second Lieutenant James Edward Weiler, 23, army air corps, was killed yesterday when the plane he was piloting on a routine training flight crashed three miles west of Kurthwood, La., Esler field authorities announced today.

Lieutenant Weiler had been stationed at Esler field and his home was given as Lisbon, N. D., where his father, Karl A. Weiler, has been notified.

Make Daring Visit Under Eyes Of Germans, Return Safely

By Clark Lee
(Distributed by The Associated Press) Press)
(Distributed by the Associated Press)

WITH GENERAL DWIGHT EISENHOWER AT AN ADVANCED ALLIED COMMAND POST, Sept. 17.—(Delayed)—It was disclosed today that two high-ranking American officers made a daring visit to Rome under the eyes of the Germans only a few hours before our invasion of Salerno and returned safely after conferring with Marshal Pietro Badoglio and Italian military commanders.

The two officers went into the Italian capital wearing American army uniforms, minus caps, and spent twenty hours in the most important military discussions. Most of the time they travelled in a car, frequently passing within a few feet of German soldiers.

The exact nature of their mission was not disclosed.

They obtained vital information which has affected the whole course of events since the Italian armistice announcement.

The officers, who voluntarily carried out their dangerous assignment in the full knowledge that discovery would have meant certain execution by the Germans were Brigadier General Maxwell Taylor, a handsome, 42-year-old West Point graduate, formerly of Kansas City, Mo., and Colonel William Tudor Gardiner, 53, a former governor of Maine.

They left Palerno, Sicily, in a British P-T boat and made rendezvous at sea with an Italian corvette, on which they were greeted by an Italian ad-

WILL END LABOR RECRUITING HERE

WMC Admits Shortage Of Workers In Monroe Area, McKenzie Says

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(Special)—The War Manpower commission has agreed to order labor recruiting stopped in the Monroe area, at least until a complete determination can be made of the labor supply, Representative Charles E. McKenzie said today.

The area is now listed by WMC as a labor surplus section and there has been considerable recruiting of labor there, particularly for the west coast. McKenzie found conditions serious and has been endeavoring to have recruiting stopped and to have WMC raise its classification.

He has had considerable difficulty getting an adequate report on actual conditions but in a conference with WMC officials today a report was submitted from the Dallas regional office admitting the shortage there. It was not very specific, but, following his conference, McKenzie said WMC agreed that recruiting should be stopped. It is expected that an order will be sent out stopping it until a complete report can be made. McKenzie said WMC Chairman Paul McNutt could not attend his conference so there is a possibility that this order may not go through as it goes higher up for approval.

The regional office report admitted that "there is no question but that a tight labor market exists in the Monroe area" and said further "the labor shortage complained of in the Monroe area exists in all agricultural areas in this region and will continue throughout the harvest period."

It said further that approximately 3,400 workers had left the area since January 1.

To counter claims on the part of WMC that there is a labor surplus around Monroe McKenzie showed officials a number of wires and letters from industries and organizations in the vicinity. They told of specific shortages in large numbers and of unsuccessful attempts to get workers through the United States Employment service which had reported there is no shortage.

One such wire was from R. C. White of the Missouri Pacific lines, St. Louis, who told McKenzie that the shortage on this road is "becoming

TROPICAL STORM STILL OFF COAST

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The weather bureau said in a 9:30 p.m., central war time, advisory that the tropical hurricane in the gulf still was central about 200 miles south of Port Arthur, Tex., but that later movements towards the north was indicated.

"No material advance is expected during the next several hours," the advisory said, "but later movement towards the north is indicated. Winds of hurricane force continue near the center probably with gusts up to 100 miles per hour and all precautions against such winds should continue in the Freeport-Galveston-Port Arthur (Tex.)-Lake Charles (La.) area."

The bureau also urged precautions against dangerously high tides along the middle and upper Texas coast and in south Louisiana.

MANY U. S. BOMBERS POUR EXPLOSIVES ON AIR BASES

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sunday, Sept. 19.—(AP)—American war planes in a new Solomons raid have added 20 to the more than 2,000 enemy aircraft destroyed in the south Pacific since August, 1942, but Japan is rushing in reinforcements and risking big formations in the mounting sky battles.

Today's communique reported that bombers "of all categories"—meaning Liberator heavy bombers, Mitchell medium bombers, Avenger torpedo bombers and Dauntless divebombers—struck twice Wednesday under a screen of fighters at the Kahili and Ballaie airdromes in the vicinity of southern Bougainville. Fifty enemy planes challenged them.

Only the day before, more than 100 American bombers poured explosives on airdromes in the area from 9 o'clock in the morning until early afternoon while escorting fighters battled it out with 100 interceptors.

"The enemy is reinforcing his air forces in this area," today's communique said.

(Previously dispatches from the Solomons area said the Japanese may be ferrying planes from Japan down through Truk and Rabaul, New Britain, to Bougainville bases.)

Bougainville in the northern Solomons is the last air fortress barring American forces now entrenched on New Georgia and Vella Lavella from the enemy's all-important naval and air base of Rabaul.

The American air field at Munda, on New Georgia, now serving with Guadalcanal's Henderson field as bases for American air raiders, has been raided three more times, headquarters said today.

Yesterday's communique had told of an enemy formation of 60 striking at Munda.

In the New Guinea war theater, mopping up operations are in progress around newly-captured Lae.

More Than Half Of Quota Raised But Last Part Most Difficult

Ouachita parish has reached $2,275,069.62 in its Third War Loan drive to raise 4,315,000 but the difficult problem now lies ahead Jack Rogers, chairman of the parish's War Finance committee said Saturday. Individual bond buying still continues to lag on a serious scale as most of the big corporation and individual firm buyers have made their allotted purchases of Third War Loan bonds, stated Mr. Rogers.

The success or failure of the drive rests entirely with the individual buyers now and every effort is being made to bring forcibly to the attention of Ouachita parish citizens the necessity of buying an extra bond this month, Mr. Rogers said. This is a time when the average citizen must make up his mind whether he is going to help win this war in person or by proxy—by proxy of dimes and dollars, he added.

There will be no Bob Hope or famovie stars coming to Monroe to boost the sale.

"In one way or another you must make up your mind or have it made up for you," said Mr. Rogers. "Why not do it now, freely, cheerfully? In fact, you are not even asked to give. You are asked only to lend, but to lend every dollar you can. It is up to your own conscience to decide how much you shall lend or withhold.

"The boys at the front are banking upon their belief that your conscience is a good one. Why put this duty off?"

The Ouachita parish War Finance committee urges every citizen of this parish to come through. Employers are requested to tell the real story of this drive to their employes, stated Mr. Rogers. The committee believes that when the urgency of the need is explained to employes they will respond to the appeal as they always have in the past, Mr. Rogers said.

HELD FOR POSING AS NAVY OFFICER

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—(AP)—R. A. Guerin, F. B. I. agent here, announced today the arrest of Thomas Joseph McBride, 36, on a charge of violating the selective service act by allegedly impersonating a federal officer.

Guerin said the F. B. I. charged McBride with wearing a navy uniform and representing himself as a captain in the United States navy.

He said McBride was wanted by federal authorities for allegedly failing to maintain contact with his draft board at Venice, Calif.

By James M. Long

LONDON, Sunday, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Soviet columns have slashed to within 37 miles of Dnieperopetrovsk, Boulder dam of the Dnieper river bend, and to within 44 miles of Kiev, capital of the Ukraine, by capturing the railway junction of Pavlograd and the railroad town of Bobrovitsa, Moscow said today.

Smashing ahead on ten important sectors on a 600-mile front, the Russians won back a total of 733 villages, killed 8,700 Germans, wounded 2,000 more, and took 300 prisoners during yesterday, a communique said.

The drive on Kiev from several directions reached closest to the middle Dnieper river bastion along the Kiev-Nezhin railway where a Red army column took Bobrovitsa.

Over 230 populated places were captured in this drive alone and more than 1,000 Germans fell to Russian fire, said the bulletin recorded by the Soviet monitor.

Northeast of Kiev the important town of Chernigov came within Soviet artillery range as Vibli, six miles to the east, was captured and 26 other towns overrun. Thus the Russians were 90 miles north of Kiev and closing in on the highway linking that city and Chernigov.

Priluki, another bastion 78 miles east of Kiev, was gripped by a semicircle of Russian forces moving in from the north, south and east. The nearest Soviet unit was 15 miles from Priluki.

JAMES NOE QUITS GOVERNOR'S RACE

Former Governor Flays Jones In Statement Announcing Withdrawal

Former Governor James A. Noe announced Saturday that he was withdrawing from the governor's race. Mr. Noe's statement in full is as follows:

"Today America and her Allies in the United Nations are engaged in the bloodiest war in the history of the world—fighting for the very existance of our Democratic way of life and the heritage of our nation since its founding. Casualty lists are mounting! The struggle is bloody and bitter, and our only hope for the future lies in our unity of effort and sacrifice.

"Despite this, Governor Sam Houston Jones, attempting to speak for the Democratic people of Louisiana, has proposed destruction of the Democratic party; and the creation, through some unknown combination of southern and western states, of a new and untried political party. Disunity and chaos at a time when every patriotic American should have but one thought—the safety and preservation of our Democracy through unified purpose and action at home, as well as on the battle field.

"In a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post, 'Sam Jones Says.'

"'The southern leaders I know who think the time has come to bolt the Democratic party are all . . . men of liberal thought . . . and two governors of deep-South states, Dixon of Alabama, and myself, called upon the South . . . to make tracks out of the . . . Democratic party.'

"The principles of the Democratic party as laid down by Jefferson provide that the will of the majority shall rule. I subscribe to that principle. I am willing to sacrifice my own personal ambitions and desires so that these ideals may live.

"I have been a life-long Democrat. I am the Democratic National committeeman for Louisiana. As such it is my duty to unify and strengthen the Democratic party, rather than by word or action—as Sam Jones has done—seek to divide and destroy the party

ALEXANDRIA, La., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Four persons were killed, including three members of one family, and three others were seriously injured when their automobile crashed into a locomotive on the Red River and Gulf railroad near Forrest Hill late yesterday.

Following an inquest, Coroner R. L. Calhoun, identified the dead as F. P. Townsend, 61, his wife, Mrs. Ola Townsend, 37, their daughter, Billy Cleo Townsend, 9, all of Sterlington, La., and Mrs. W. A. Waller, 26, of Gilbert, La.

Those injured and taken to a Camp Claiborne station hospital were William Waller, 60; Hiram Waller and an unidentified youth about 17.

The victims were believed to have been en route from Port Neches, Tex., to Sterlington at the time of the accident.

The bodies of all the victims were taken to the Mulhearn Funeral Home at Winnsboro. Funeral arrangements had not been completed today.

Mussolini Makes Address On Radio

LONDON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—A voice purporting to be that of Benito Mussolini, the fallen founder of Fascism, tonight heaped denunciation upon King Vittorio Emanuele, called for the "elimination of Fascist traitors," and bade Italians take up arms again by the side of Germany and Japan.

In a 15-minute radio speech from an undisclosed place, the speaker, represented as the ex-Duce liberated by the Germans, told a story of that rescue which he said would "become legendary" and outlined this four-point program for "loyal" Italians:

1. Take up arms again by the side of Germany and Japan.

2. Reorganize at once the armed forces and militia.

3. Eliminate traitors, particularly those who went over to the enemy.

4. Make an end to plutocratic methods and establish social and Fascist order.

Most listeners here who had heard Mussolini speak before said they believed the voice was actually that of the fallen Italian premier, whom the Germans have announced as the head of the Nazi-sponsored "Republican Fascist party."

(The opinion of the United States government radio monitors was 8 to 2 that it was Mussolini's voice, though somewhat subdued from his old balcony days in Rome, and some thought it was from a recording.)

Though the speech was generally regarded in London as one of "a man whose prestige is gone for good," listeners agreed that the speaker sounded most like the blustering Duce of old when he enunciated his four-point program.

This program was offered to restore an Italy which the speaker said had yielded to the "hardest armistice terms known in history" and now was "thrown into a state of chaos and despair * * * all its possessions thrown away with the stroke of a hand."

For yielding to these terms, the broadcast said, King Vittorio Emanuele should be immediately "called to account."

"I am convinced," the speaker said, "that the house of Savoy prepared and carried out the coup d'etat together with Badoglio as an accomplice, and all of the cowardly generals and * * * some treacherous members of the Fascist party."

STATES JAP FOOD SUPPLY HINDERED

Vinson Says 'Beleaguered Garrisons' Not Getting Ammunition

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the house naval committee declared flatly today that Allied sea might is preventing the Japanese from supplying their "beleaguered garrisons" with food, ammunition and reinforcements "in sufficient quantity to permit long resistance."

In an outline of the situation in the Pacific based on information supplied by the navy department, he noted that 180 Japanese warships have been announced as sunk to date and "heavy losses" inflicted upon the enemy's supply and troop ships.

"The recent land and air successes on New Guinea, the capture of the Salamaua naval and air base and the adjoining base of Lae, and the tremendous air victory at Wewak demonstrate that the southwest Pacific campaign has been one of marked coordination between Allied land, sea and air forces," he said.

"The task of Allied seapower has has been to meet and defeat the Japanese navy whenever the opportunity presented itself. The parallel objective of causing the Japanese navy to give one-way passage to the Japanese army has also been carried out."

Just a day after Secretary of the Navy Knox observed in London that our navy hasn't sighted a Japanese aircraft carrier in four months because "apparently they don't like to come out where it is wet," Vinson tallied the foe's losses.

"In sea areas exclusive of the southwest Pacific," he said, "125 Japanese warships have been sent to the bottom. These include two battleships.

REPORTS WIFE, TWIN DAUGHTERS MISSING

Cecil Allen of Downsville, La., employed by the health department of Pineville, reported to police Saturday the disappearance of his wife, Mrs. Laurine Allen, and twin daughters, two and a half years' old.

Allen said he had come to Monroe on his way to Pineville to see his family and had heard they had gone there to visit him. However, Mrs. Allen did not arrive in Pineville, it was stated.

Mrs. Allen is described as 25 years' old, 5 feet 6 inches tall, and weighing 125 pounds.

Information should be reported to the local police, it was stated.

FIVE GERMAN DIVISIONS REPORTED BADLY MAULED

By Wes Gallagher

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Allied naval units have opened a new phase in the battle for Italy by seizing three more islands commanding the immediate sea approaches to the great port of Naples, headquarters announced today as allied ground troops emerged victorious in the bloody fighting at Salerno.

A special communique disclosed the occupation of Ischia, 16 miles southwest of Naples, only a few hours after the regular war bulletin from General Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced the seizure of two other islands off the northern spur of the Bay of Naples.

Ischia was taken Thursday, one day after the occupation of Ponza, 65 miles west of Naples, and of Procida, 12 miles southwest of Naples and only two miles from the northern land arm of the bay.

Allied forces previously had occupied the island of Capri, on the southern side of the bay.

Ischia, largest of the four, has an area of about 26 square miles and is only seven miles from the nearest mainland coast.

WAR'S PROGRESS PLEASES PEOPLE

Poll Of Congress Shows Discontent Over Home-Front Policies

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Congress members reported today much satisfaction among the folks back home with the way this country is conducting its war on foreign battlefields, but widespread discontent with various phases of the war on the home front.

The Associated Press, seeking a cross-section of the views constituents conveyed to the legislators who went home on vacation in July and returned last Tuesday, quizzed 69 Democrats and Republicans from 42 states.

The majority said they found their people pleased with the war's progress but critical of domestic affairs with most of the complaints mentioning restrictions and regulations.

President Roosevelt, in his message to congress yesterday acknowledged some mistakes have been made. He had this to say about criticism of domestic handling of the war:

"Some of these complaints of course are justified. On the other hand, some of them come from selfish people who merely do not like to give up some of their pleasures, or a part of their butter or meat or milk.

"Fair-minded citizens, however, will realize that although mistakes have been made, the job that has been done in converting peacetime America to a wartime basis has been a great job and a successful one, of which all our people have good reason to be proud."

In the poll of congress members the Office of Price Administration—responsible for price control and rationing—was the only government agency

ASK PLEDGES ON PRICE CEILINGS

Campaign Will Be Started To Gain Cooperation Of Citizens

A parish-wide campaign to secure pledges from every citizen in the Twin Cities to observe OPA ceiling prices will be inaugurated Saturday, October 9, according to statement made Saturday by Paul A. Reising, campaign director.

This decision was made at a meeting of a special planning committee at the Chamber of Commerce office Friday. They had previously been appointed by Sam Smith, Chamber of Commerce president, it was stated.

The campaign is being conducted by the OPA on a nation-wide basis and is an important part of the "hold-the-line policy of the nation's increasing effort to prevent inflation.

All residents of Ouachita parish will be asked to sign the following pledge:

"I will pay no more than top legal prices.

"I will accept no rationed goods without giving up ration stamps."

All retailers, too, will be requested to sign a pledge stating they will not offer any merchandise for sale above ceiling prices. Special window stickers will be given to housewives and business firms when they have signed the pledge.

The campaign is to be in charge of the Boy Scouts of the Twin Cities and will be personally supervised by Charles B. Cook, Boy Scout executive.

House-to-house canvass of all business places and residents are to be made beginning Saturday, October 9, according to Chairman Reiser. When signed, the pledges will be filed with the local parish rationing board.

The over-all purpose of the campaign is to place the necessary emphasis for giving full cooperation to the OPA in a universal observance of ceiling prices. This is a definite anti-inflationary measure.

Reiser anticipates full cooperation of every citizen in Ouachita parish, both in the field of business and on the part of consumers, he said.

Results of the campaign should show a marked decrease in black market activities, as well as minor infractions of OPA regulations, it was firmly believed.

Members of the special committee headed by Mr. Reiser to conduct the pledge campaign are: Dr. A. M. Serex, pastor of the First Methodist church; Rabbi H. K. Hirsch; Charles B. Cook, Boy Scout executive; C. S. Walker, president of Monroe's Lion's club, and Paul Reising, chairman, who is president of West Monroe's Kiwanis club.

NIGHT CLASSES AID TO DEGREE

N. J. C. Offers Studies For Those Unable To Attend By Day

Persons who are interested in preparing themselves for some particular field of work or in earning college credits that will apply on the bachelor's degree may take advantage of night classes that are being offered at Northeast Junior college through the extension division of Louisiana State university.

Classes organized last week at a meeting under the direction of Dr. Marion B. Smith, head of the extension division, include first year shorthand which will meet on Tuesday and Friday nights with the first regular meeting scheduled Tuesday, September 21; first year bookkeeping, held on Monday and Wednesday nights with the initial meeting Monday, September 20; first year Spanish scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday nights. The class in Spanish has had one meeting. The above classes are held from 7 to 9:15 o'clock.

Another organization meeting has been announced for September 20 at 7:30 p.m. in room 102 of the administration building to complete the formation of additional classes. All persons who would like to take night classes should attend this meeting if possible, according to Dean C. C. Colvert. Considerable interest already has been shown in the possibility of organizing other classes, he said. One or two courses may be scheduled for night work through the extension division.

CHANGE IN LABOR DESIGNATION ASKED

A resolution requesting the War Manpower commission to change the present designation of Monroe and its surrounding territory from a labor surplus area to a non-surplus area was drawn up at a special meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce Friday.

This resolution was wired to Congressman Charles E. McKenzie who is endeavoring to secure this redesignation, stated Sam Smith, chamber president.

Designation of the area as a surplus area is erroneous according to the contents of the resolution, for instead of possessing the reported surplus of manpower, a critical shortage is being felt there, President Smith said.

Local essential activities report a serious curtailment because of manpower shortages in paper manufacture, the lumber industry, the manufacture of cottonseed by-products etc.

The resolution requested that the manpower commission not only redesignate the Monroe area as a non-surplus territory but also requested that they discontinue efforts which will further deplete local labor supply, it was said.

Motorists Needed To Make Unique Gas Saving Test

Every patriotic Louisiana citizen interested in conserving our resources and saving gasoline for victory will welcome the achievement of an American inventor. Already thousands of car owners are using his invention and they report gas savings up to 30% as well as more power, smoother pickup and quicker starting. The device, called the Vacu-matic Gas Saver, operates on the super-charge principle and fits all makes of cars and trucks. It is entirely automatic and allows the motor to breathe. The manufacturers, the Vacu-matic Carburetor Co., 7617—634-B W. State St., Wauwatosa, Wisconsin, are offering a Vacu-matic free to those who will test it on their cars or trucks and help introduce it to others. Write them today!—Adv.

CHAPTER XVIII

Returning to Bremen, I met Frederick Krupp, president of the great Krupp shipbuilding plant at Kiel; Johan George Stein, with whom he had worked out the Stein-Krupp method of submarine gold mining; Sir Basil Zaharoff; and several other international financiers who were intereseted in undersea hunting. Sir Basil invited several of us to spend a few days in Biarritz.

On the first night Sir Basil gave a dinner party for me. Around the table was a group of impressive, graying sometimes pauchy financiers of many nationalities—Greek, Rumanian, French, German—and expensively gowned girls of as many races. Sir Basil was able to talk to each one of them fluently in his own language.

My partner, a blond English girl in a scarlet dress, kept shaking her curls in my face like a feather duster as she baby talk. Sir Basil was a good host. When he saw that I was more interested in talking to him than in squirchattered rapidly in a sort of courting the blond, he produced a partner for Barbara.

As the evening wore on, we talked quietly. Sir Basil had a mobile dark face, the olive skin of the Levantine, I guessed, and a way of making every subject he touched upon sound like a colossal adventure.

Above the noise of the orchestra and the shuffle of feet, he talked about treasure hunting in the 17th century, when it was one of the world's major financial businesses for governments as well as private individuals. Gold hunters were licensed by the crown and sailed with a great hullabaloo.

"In this age when there is more treasure than ever on the coasts of the world's principal seaways," Sir Basil went on, "and modern engineering has made salvaging much more profitable, it is a business that i looked upon as a cross between piracy and pure speculation."

In the morning, while his other guests were asleep, Sir Basil and had breakfast on a terrace overlooking the Mediterranean. He told me that Prince Oskar of Hohenzollern, who had a palace at Kiel, wanted me to open a safe which had remained closed since the death of his father Prince Heinrich, in 1918. But before I returned to Bremen he wanted to engage me for a salvaging ventur for next season.

In confidence, he told me that a syndicate of which he was a member ha discovered the wreck of H. M. S Hampshire, the British cruiser tha went down off the Orkneys in 191 while it was carrying Lord Kitchene and about 1000 men to some unknow rendezvous. It was never acknowledged by the admiralty and wa known to but few people that th Hampshire was carrying not only th war lord but £2,000,000 of gold t Russia to bolster up the czar's wavering army. That gold was what the were after—$10,000,000 in bullion thq Bank of England. Already a san sucker was at work digging at th eight feet of sand that buried part the wreck, and the salvaging coul begin in the spring as soon as th weather permitted.

Sir Basil's brown eyes grew darke and brighter as he talked, and th color flushed his cheeks. He was persuasive that he fired me with excitement. At first, I said that I woul make up my mind and let him know but before we had finished a secon cup of coffee, I had promised that would join.

All the way to Bremen, then Kiel, my mind was assailed wit doubts, and, as if to shake my confidence still further, I noticed that was being followed by secret servic men.

When I reached Kiel and presente myself at the palace, I was taken a dungeon—like basement whe Prince Oskar and a group of m were waiting for me, all of them opera capes, tall hats, and masks. windered why all the drama. Dislikin to work with these masked men my back, I insisted that we hav a city official present and waited unt the prince telephoned for a memb of the police.

The safe was concealed behind packing cases. After they were pulle away, I found that the safe was a familiar American make and compara tively easy to open but, out of perversity, I took a long time at it, enjoyin the impatience of the masked wi nesses.

When I pulled back the door, stepped away and did not see wh was inside. However, Prince Osk was so pleased that he took from h finger a diamond ring and present it to me, the ring which I wear toda He also gave me seven old Goth keys from the palace.

Returning to Bremen, I talked aga with Sir Basil, who would listen none of my misgivings. He promis that the salvaging equipment wou be the best obtainable and the pla so carefully laid that there was practically no chance of failure. Two internationally famous divers were work ing out preliminary details alread and would get in touch with me. Th fee was staggering.

Having committed myself to join on of the greatest treasure hunts of modern times, I took a North Germa Lloyd liner for New York. As Sir Ba said, the thought of it did undoubte ly quicken the pulse, but my doub were so lively that I did not tell m wife and daughter.

If You Get Up Nights You Can't Feel Right

If you have to get up 3 or more times a night your rest is broken and it's no wonder if you feel old and run down before your time. Functional rather than organic or systemic Kidney and Bladder trouble often may be the cause of many pains and symptoms simply because the Kidenys may be tired and not working fast enough in filtering and removing irritating excess acids poisons and wastes from your blood. So if you get up nights or suffer from burning scanty or frequent passages, leg pains, backache, or swollen ankles, due to non-organic or non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles, you'll make no mistake in trying the prescription called Cystex. Because it has given such joyous, happy relief in so high a percentage of such cases, Cystex is sold under a guarantee of money back on return of empty package unless completely satisfactory. Cystex costs only 35c at druggists.

ASK PLEDGES ON PRICE CEILINGS

Campaign Will Be Started To Gain Cooperation Of Citizens

A parish-wide campaign to secure pledges from every citizen in the Twin Cities to observe OPA ceiling prices will be inaugurated Saturday, October 9, according to statement made Saturday by Paul A. Reising, campaign director.

This decision was made at a meeting of a special planning committee at the Chamber of Commerce office Friday. They had previously been appointed by Sam Smith, Chamber of Commerce president, it was stated.

The campaign is being conducted by the OPA on a nation-wide basis and is an important part of the "hold-the-line policy of the nation's increasing effort to prevent inflation.

All residents of Ouachita parish will be asked to sign the following pledge:

"I will pay no more than top legal prices.

"I will accept no rationed goods without giving up ration stamps."

All retailers, too, will be requested to sign a pledge stating they will not offer any merchandise for sale above ceiling prices. Special window stickers will be given to housewives and business firms when they have signed the pledge.

The campaign is to be in charge of the Boy Scouts of the Twin Cities and will be personally supervised by Charles B. Cook, Boy Scout executive.

House-to-house canvass of all business places and residents are to be made beginning Saturday, October 9, according to Chairman Reiser. When signed, the pledges will be filed with the local parish rationing board.

The over-all purpose of the campaign is to place the necessary emphasis for giving full cooperation to the OPA in a universal observance of ceiling prices. This is a definite anti-inflationary measure.

Reiser anticipates full cooperation of every citizen in Ouachita parish, both in the field of business and on the part of consumers, he said.

Results of the campaign should show a marked decrease in black market activities, as well as minor infractions of OPA regulations, it was firmly believed.

Members of the special committee headed by Mr. Reiser to conduct the pledge campaign are: Dr. A. M. Serex, pastor of the First Methodist church; Rabbi H. K. Hirsch; Charles B. Cook, Boy Scout executive; C. S. Walker, president of Monroe's Lion's club, and Paul Reising, chairman, who is president of West Monroe's Kiwanis club.

NIGHT CLASSES AID TO DEGREE

N. J. C. Offers Studies For Those Unable To Attend By Day

Persons who are interested in preparing themselves for some particular field of work or in earning college credits that will apply on the bachelor's degree may take advantage of night classes that are being offered at Northeast Junior college through the extension division of Louisiana State university.

Classes organized last week at a meeting under the direction of Dr. Marion B. Smith, head of the extension division, include first year shorthand which will meet on Tuesday and Friday nights with the first regular meeting scheduled Tuesday, September 21; first year bookkeeping, held on Monday and Wednesday nights with the initial meeting Monday, September 20; first year Spanish scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday nights. The class in Spanish has had one meeting. The above classes are held from 7 to 9:15 o'clock.

Another organization meeting has been announced for September 20 at 7:30 p.m. in room 102 of the administration building to complete the formation of additional classes. All persons who would like to take night classes should attend this meeting if possible, according to Dean C. C. Colvert. Considerable interest already has been shown in the possibility of organizing other classes, he said. One or two courses may be scheduled for night work through the extension division.

TECH STUDENTS TO FACE DRIVE

War Bond Campaign To Be Waged Starting Monday At Ruston

RUSTON, La., Sept. 18.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech students will be the target of a week's intensive campaign to sell war bonds and stamps in a drive which will get under way Monday morning, according to Henrie Waldrop of Dixie, who has been appointed chairman of the undertaking.

Since last Monday a similar drive has been conducted among faculty and staff members. Sales amounting to more than $6,300 had been reported through Thursday by A. W. Ford, dean of the school of business administration, in charge of the faculty drive.

The student campaign will be campus wide, it is planned, with appeals going to every undergraduate organization and dormitory as well as individual students.

"C" flags, denoting cooperation, will be awarded to those dormitories which report 100 per cent sales of war stamps or bonds among their inhabitants.

In an effort to increase sales, a backward dance will be held Tuesday from 6:30 until 8 p.m. in the women's gymnasium. There will be no admission charge; however, special numbers for dancing will be played only after the purchase of $1 in war stamps. Music will be by the Tech Collegians.

Special posters will be prepared by Mary Jane Dickard of Monroe, Mildred Reed of Shreveport and Ruth Read of Tallulah.

Miss Waldroup has several lieutenants assisting her in promoting the campaign. Dorothy Donald of Meridian. Miss., president of Harper hall, and Nell Maroney of Marion, president of Aswell hall, will direct the drives in their respective dormitories.

Floor leaders in the women's two dormitories will be: Dorothy McNemar of Lake Providence, Pat Thompson of Marion and Betty Smith of Shreveport, representing Harper hall, and Ora Lee Edens of Arcadia, Mary Frances Pearce of Warnerton and Lena Walker of Alexandria, representing Aswell.

Sales among commuters will be pushed by Mildred Wedgeworth of Arcadia, president of the drive-in women's club.

Elizabeth Matthews of Jennings and Lillian Foster of Ruston will direct sales among Tech girls living in town.

DATE FIXED FOR CHECKER TOURNEY

North Louisiana Open Championship To Be Determined October 3

Announcement has been made that the fall north Louisiana open checker tournament will be held here October 3, beginning at 10 a.m. The closed North Louisiana championship also will be decided at the same time.

All checker players, regardless of where they may be from and including members of the armed services will be allowed to participate in the open tournament and it is expected that some of the strongest competition will be provided by soldiers.

Present holder of the open title is Sam A. Dowd, soldier stationed near Ruston. Mr. Dowd is expected to defend his title.

Several leading east Texas players have indicated that they plan to take part.

In order to finish the tournament in one day, the players will be divided into two or three groups, depending on the number of entries and play in these groups will be round robin style, with each contestant meeting all the others. The two high men from each group will enter a play-off round robin, with the man placing high in this group being declared winner. The north Louisiana resident who makes the best record will be declared winner in the closed section.

Some of the players have asked that the rule against talking in such a way as to disturb one's opponent be enforced and it has been decided to prohibit any loud talking or any talking whatsoever if a player's opponent requests it.

While there is no desire to rush any participant, it has been pointed out that one player, by waiting unnecessarily long to move, may delay the whole tournament. For this reason, it has been decided that by a vote of three-fourths of the players, the tournament can be ordered to a close, with the provision that anyone who has not completed his games at that time may have 30 minutes additional of his own playing time to finish his games.

When play is finished each participant must have to his credit the same number of games as other players in his group, either by played games or forfeits. If any participant plays less than half his games and then quits none of his games will be counted. If a participant plays more than half his games and then quits the games he does not play will be forfeited to his opponents. If any games are not played because of the time limit they will be forfeited to the contestant who was ready to play them and against the contestant who was not ready.

There is no charge of any kind in connection with the tournament, which is held entirely for fun and for the purpose of determining the champion. A number of these tournaments have been held and they are growing in popularity. So far, the players have been so evenly matched that there have been almost as many different champions as tournaments.

Those wishing to enter the tournament may communicate with W. G. Jasper, 806 North Fifth street, West Monroe.

COLORED USO ACTIVITIES

The colored USO, 1928 DeSiard street is an extension of the N. C. C. S. in downtown Monroe of which John M. Leonard is director. The colored center has become a home for the colored enlisted men who are away from home. W. B. Baker, director of the colored center, announces that Sunday, September 19, will be open house at the center and that the entire community is invited to come out and see the setup.

There will also be a musical appreciation hour from 5 until 6 p.m. Sunday in which some of the best talent in the city will appear. This program is being arranged by Mayme People, a staff member of the USO. A few of the folks who will appear in program are as follows: Dorothy Jackson, Dorothy Oliver, Ella Cook, Vinia Mae James, Vernestine Smith, Eula Holmes, Sergeant N. H. Rice and his Jubilee singers from Selman field, and the Mays quartet and others.

TECH STUDENTS TO FACE DRIVE

War Bond Campaign To Be Waged Starting Monday At Ruston

RUSTON, La., Sept. 18.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech students will be the target of a week's intensive campaign to sell war bonds and stamps in a drive which will get under way Monday morning, according to Henrie Waldrop of Dixie, who has been appointed chairman of the undertaking.

Since last Monday a similar drive has been conducted among faculty and staff members. Sales amounting to more than $6,300 had been reported through Thursday by A. W. Ford, dean of the school of business administration, in charge of the faculty drive.

The student campaign will be campus wide, it is planned, with appeals going to every undergraduate organization and dormitory as well as individual students.

"C" flags, denoting cooperation, will be awarded to those dormitories which report 100 per cent sales of war stamps or bonds among their inhabitants.

In an effort to increase sales, a backward dance will be held Tuesday from 6:30 until 8 p.m. in the women's gymnasium. There will be no admission charge; however, special numbers for dancing will be played only after the purchase of $1 in war stamps. Music will be by the Tech Collegians.

Special posters will be prepared by Mary Jane Dickard of Monroe, Mildred Reed of Shreveport and Ruth Read of Tallulah.

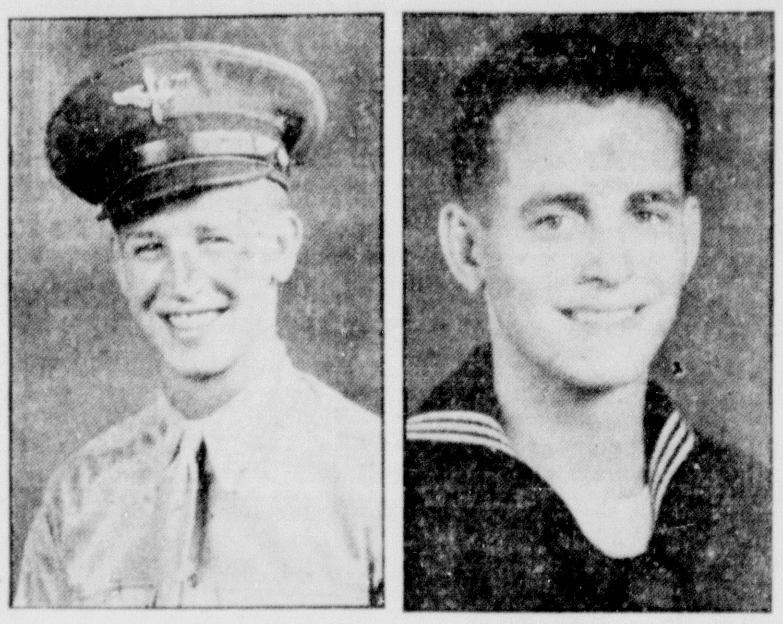
Miss Waldroup has several lieutenants assisting her in promoting the campaign. Dorothy Donald of Meridian, Miss., president of Harper hall, and Nell Maroney of Marion, president of Aswell hall, will direct the drives in their respective dormitories.

Floor leaders in the women's two dormitories will be: Dorothy McNemar of Lake Providence, Pat Thompson of Marion and Betty Smith of Shreveport, representing Harper hall, and Ora Lee Edens of Arcadia, Mary Frances Pearce of Warnerton and Lena Walker of Alexandria, representing Aswell.

Sales among commuters will be pushed by Mildred Wedgeworth of Arcadia, president of the drive-in women's club.

Elizabeth Matthews of Jennings and Lillian Foster of Ruston will direct sales among Tech girls living in town.

BROTHERS SERVING



Claude Crow, master machinist mate, second class (right), entered the navy November 20, 1942. His boot work was done in San Diego and he then entered the University of Missouri where he pursued a course in Diesel engineering. He is now in San Diego as instructor. His brother, Aviation Cadet Klien Crow (left) entered the army February 1, 1943, and pursued his basic training at Sheppard field. Later he was assigned to the A. and M. college, Stillwater, Okla.; then to San Antonio classification center where he was classed as pilot. He is now at Grider field, Pine Bluff, Ark.

DATE FIXED FOR CHECKER TOURNEY

North Louisiana Open Championship To Be Determined October 3

Announcement has been made that the fall north Louisiana open checker tournament will be held here October 3, beginning at 10 a.m. The closed North Louisiana championship also will be decided at the same time.

All checker players, regardless of where they may be from and including members of the armed services will be allowed to participate in the open tournament and it is expected that some of the strongest competition will be provided by soldiers.

Present holder of the open title is Sam A. Dowd, soldier stationed near Ruston. Mr. Dowd is expected to defend his title.

Several leading east Texas players have indicated that they plan to take part.

In order to finish the tournament in one day, the players will be divided into two or three groups, depending on the number of entries and play in these groups will be round robin style, with each contestant meeting all the others. The two high men from each group will enter a play-off round robin, with the man placing high in this group being declared winner. The north Louisiana resident who makes the best record will be declared winner in the closed section.

Some of the players have asked that the rule against talking in such a way as to disturb one's opponent be enforced and it has been decided to prohibit any loud talking or any talking whatsoever if a player's opponent requests it.

While there is no desire to rush any participant, it has been pointed out that one player, by waiting unnecessarily long to move, may delay the whole tournament. For this reason, it has been decided that by a vote of three-fourths of the players, the tournament can be ordered to a close, with the provision that anyone who has not completed his games at that time may have 30 minutes additional of his own playing time to finish his games.

When play is finished each participant must have to his credit the same number of games as other players in his group, either by played games or forfeits. If any participant plays less than half his games and then quits none of his games will be counted. If a participant plays more than half his games and then quits the games he does not play will be forfeited to his opponents. If any games are not played because of the time limit they will be forfeited to the contestant who was ready to play them and against the contestant who was not ready.

There is no charge of any kind in connection with the tournament, which is held entirely for fun and for the purpose of determining the champion. A number of these tournaments have been held and they are growing in popularity. So far, the players have been so evenly matched that there have been almost as many different champions as tournaments.

Those wishing to enter the tournament may communicate with W. G. Jasper, 806 North Fifth street, West Monroe.

Centenarians Eat Less

This had better not be a long war, as Hitler once suggested, because, according to a news dispatch from Stockholm, the Germans have called up men from 50 to 60 years old for military service. The German press announced that all men born in the period from 1884 to 1893 must report to their district police stations for enlistment during this month, as Hitler must find replacements for Italian units stationed in the Balkans and France.

As the allies advance into the European fortress, it may be necessary for Hitler to call up older men, say from 80 to 90.

One would think that some Washington official would warn the American people against complacency, against resting on their oars, just because Germany is taking older men. Activity on the battlefield might lengthen as well as shorten the lives of some of these German soldiers.

Britannica points out that functional activity, mental and bodily, plays an important part in postponing the advent of old age, and there is more danger of rusting out than of wearing out. It adds that "the advanced age of many dignitaries on the bench and of prime ministers, though many of these may be supermen, points to the beneficial influence of long-continued activity. Among painters, Giovanni Bellini, Michelangelo and Sidney Cooper worked up to nearly their death, and Titian was painting with 'incomparable steadiness of hand,' when cut off by the plague at the age of 99."

Titian probably would have been a formidable adversary with a sub-machine gun clutched in his incomparably steady hands.

"The same retention of productivity was seen in Voltaire, Littre, Anatole France, Goethe, von Ranke and Frederick Harrison," Britannica adds, asserting that "retirement, often looked forward to in early life, is a source of danger, as it may bring with it cessation from activity."

The Nazis will find, when they call up the class of 1843, that they will not need as much food for their army, because, as Britannica says, "the majority of centenarians have been small eaters."

Still, there's no room for complacency.

PLAN TO HELP FARMER

Several candidates for the Louisiana legislature have already come out in their platform giving endorsement to the plan proposed some weeks ago by Harry Wilson, Louisiana's commissioner of agriculture, to set up practical marketing places for the farmers of the state.

The proposal should have support.

There is nothing visionary or impractical in what Commissioner Wilson proposes. He is not that kind of an operator.

He keeps one eye on the farmer's needs, but he also keeps a watch on the taxpayer's purse. He does not propose to take money from the overburdened taxpayers of Louisiana, and pass it over to any group. His plan is practical and self-liquidating.

His plan is for inexpensive marketing places for the farmers in the cities of the state, to be built initially at the expense of the state, but to be liquidated by those who use the markets, and out of the sale of the farmers' goods.

What the farmer needs is markets in which to sell his goods. These markets could be erected at little expense in the various cities, and would not only facilitate the farmer but the housewife.

The plan is not new. It has been tried in other states—notably Florida—and has worked with eminent satisfaction.

Some years ago Mr. Wilson launched his Market Bulletin in the interest of the small farmer, that he might dispose of small articles for which otherwise there would be no market. It has been an outstanding success and copied by many of the states of the nation. And it has put no burden on the taxpayers. We believe his market plan is equally practical, and would be equally successful in the interest of the farmer.—Baton Rouge State-Times.

REALISM TO THE FORE

Trained observers of the international scene say that a meeting of Secretary Hull, Secretary Eden and Commissar Molotov may become the most momentous diplomatic conference of this war.

They are convinced that talks at such a conference would not be confined to ideological discussions of how democracy might be firmly established in the world after the axis has been defeated, but would revolve about realistic and practical matters such as future boundaries.

Russia has already placed herself on record with a frankness which alarms some governments-in-exile regarding her western frontiers.

The Turks are concerned over publications of an article in a recent issue of the Moscow magazine, "War and the Working Class," in which Turkey is accused of delaying victory of the United Nations by her continued policy of neutrality. Published in Britain or the United States, the article would mean little.

But all newspapers and magazines in Russia present exclusively the views of the Soviet government and are used by Stalin to fire an occasional shot across the bow. The independence of Turkey and the brilliant successes of Kemal Pasha were made possible in the darkest hours of Turkey's history by support in money and war material from Moscow. But after the Turkish republic became well established her relations with Russia were not always entirely satisfactory to Stalin.

Kemal and his lieutenants were nationalists and hated the Communist international dogma. Turkey is scared by the possibility that Stalin will demand the Dardanelles as an outlet to foreign commerce.

Japan has five cities with populations of more than one million—the same number as the United States.

Japan has compulsory school attendance for children from six to fourteen.

Jimmie Fidler IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The second "Hollywood Cavalcade," now touring the country for Uncle Sam, got off to a flying start in Philadelphia. There, at one rally, the movie troupe sold $160,000,000 worth of war bonds—more than a third of the Quaker City's quota for the third war loan drive. That's a record that should make Hollywood very proud.

Since screen stars first set up as bond salesmen, two years ago, certain editorial writers have decried their efforts, claiming that Americans would buy their country's bonds anyway, and insinuating that Hollywood is merely making publicity capital out of John Citizen's patriotism. That point of view is not borne out by the facts.

Wherever movie celebrities have appeared at bond rallies, sales have soared far above normal. They draw the crowds and the shoop-to-do attending their visits creates a buying mood. The treasury department has recognized their value from the start and almost without exception, the appearances of stars have been made at government request.

True, Hollywood has garnered valuable publicity in the process, but the publicity has been inspired primarily by the need for drawing crowds and selling bonds, not by the star's desire to receive credit. Celebrities have made these tours at considerable sacrifice. They've turned down screen roles and incurred large personal expenses, for their trips are made at their own cost in the majority of cases. They deserve pats on the backs, not kicks in the pants.

Speaking of the war done by movie stars, I'm reminded, by contrast, of Greta Garbo. According to studio announcements, Garbo is to appear in a forthcoming picture as Joan of Arc—a woman who fought and died for her country. Now, I don't expect that much of Greta—but I'll guarantee one thing. She would be better received—and more believable—as the Maid of Orleans, were she to get in trim for that heroic role by placing herself in the hands of Hollywood victory committee. This is a time for sacrifice—and it wouldn't kill Garbo to meet, just once, the public that made her a star.

In my mail this morning is a letter from a soldier in a Texas camp—and I feel duty bound to pass on its contents to Olivia de Havilland. Olivia, as you know if you read the sob stories in fan magazines, ha[illegible] found the road to romance very smooth going. She's been in love several times, but always something has prevented the story from ending with that mellow old line: "And so they were married and lived happily ever after." Just in case she's been upset by her run of bad luck, I want Olivia to know about my correspondent's researches. "Miss de Havilland," says he, "is the girl every man in the army dreams of marrying."

About a year ago, just out of curiosity, I installed a system in my office to keep track of the interests expressed by my readers. Each star has his tally sheet and on it a secretary notes the number of "mentions" that he gets via the mails. Scanning these records the other day, I was amazed by the amount of white space on Greer Garson's score card. Apparently she is a Hollywood freak—a top box-office star without a fanatic following. If at first thought, that may seem uncomplimentary to Miss Garson, think again. The fact that her pictures play to packed houses is proof positive, when contrasted with that dearth of fans, that she must be a very fine actress.

Speaking of Hollywood "freaks"—consider a terse paragraph which appeared the other day in a Victorville, California, newspaper. It reported that Mrs. Joseph Howard, of that city, would be in charge of certain O. C. D. work. Mrs Joseph Howard, in case you've forgotten, used to be a famous screen star. Her name was Priscilla Lane. Her studio (she's still nominally under contract) never lets a week pass without begging her to reclaim her place in the spotlight. She answers each entreaty with a firm "no"—and goes right on being plain Mrs. Joe Howard of Victorville. I know of only two other girls in all screen history who were philosophers enough to trade, voluntarily, screen stardom for personal happiness.

I see that the New York State Board of Movie censorship, during the past six months, has ordered the deletion of 229 scenes because of "indecency," while cropping another 102 on charges of "immorality." When you consider the additional hundreds of deletions and cuts enforced by the Hays office before the pictures were released, you must reach an uncomfortable conclusion. Either Hollywood is awfully naughty—or the censors back there in New York are awfully nice.

B[illegible]RY McLEMORE

The shortage of [illegible] used by the war hasn't inconvenienced my household one lick.

We get just as much care as we ever did because under my roof dwells one of the world's greatest free-style, Gracco-Roman, catch-as-catch-can diagnosticians. I speak of my wife. I know for a fact that she never attended any kind of medical school, and I doubt if she has ever read a medical book. To her "Gray's Anatomy" is just another work by that fellow who spent so much time writing elegies in country churchyards.

But this lack of medical knowledge doesn't daunt her at all. In her own mind she is a combination of Sir William Osler, the right wing of Johns Hopkins, and a full sister to the Brothers Mayo. Without any hesitation whatsoever, with a quickness of decision that almost makes the patient feel as if she knew what she were talking about, she will give her diagnosis. No chest thumping, no "Lemme see your tongue" business, no taking of temperature or counting of pulse.

She simply stares at you fixedly, and diagnoses. Her diagnosis is always the same. If I have a sore throat or sore wrist, a crick in my neck, or pain in my side, she always says, "Poo. There's nothing to that. You've just caught a little cold in it."

I am quite sure that I could come hobbling in with a broken leg and she would say, "You'll be all right in the morning. You've just caught a little cold in the leg."

Often she is right in her diagnosis. But name me a man, particularly a man who is a husband, who wants his ailments to be so lightly dismissed. One of the great rights of a husband is the right to complain, and loudly, when he has the smallest ache or pain. I want the works when I have the slightest ache. I want hot water bottles, thermometers, chicken broth, breakfast in bed, neighbors calling up, and complete hand-and-foot waiting on.

I like tiptoes on the stairs and hushed voices. I want the entire machinery of the household to be retooled to take care of me. It's pretty discouraging, let me tell you, to toss on a bed of pain with a headache, and hear a cheery voice downstairs explaining to someone over the phone, "Oh, Henry's perfectly all right. He just caught a little cold. If I don't pay any attention to him he'll get bored and be up in the middle of the afternoon."

There's another drawback to sharing my rooms and A coupons with a self-ordained physician, the eminent Dr. Jean McLemore. She occasionally breaks down and treats me with medicine. But she will not follow the instructions on the bottle or box. If the label says, "Two pills before retiring," she insists on my taking three early in the morning. If you're supposed to take them on getting up, I get them when I go to bed. And she won't use the standard remedies you get at a drugstore without a prescription for what they were made for. She rubs me with cough syrup and gives me a dose of liniment. Once she gave me six drops of eye wash in a glass of water, and explained to me after I found out what I had swallowed, that surely anythin gthat was good for the eyes, as tender as they are, couldn't possibly hurt my stomach.

She doesn't know it, but I am secretly visiting a veterinarian these days. When I take the pup out to have her looked over, I have Dr. Backus look me over, too. He says that I am in pretty good shape, not a sign of distemper, practically no mange to speak of. I tell you, it's a relief to get this kind of diagnosis for a change. Dr. Backus has never told me that I just had a little cold here or there.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The Sunday School Lesson For Sept. 26
Lesson Text: Deuteronomy 11:13-25
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

As we have considered the various lessons we have sought to discover their teaching for today, as well as to interpret their meaning in the light of the times when the events and incidents were occurring.

I have insisted always that there is little value in studying the Bible unless its teachings grip our hearts, and give us light and guidance to help us in our conduct and our problems today. It might be said that that is all very well insofar as the New Testament, and the life and teaching of Jesus, and the ultimate and high counsels of the New Testament are concerned; but what is the use of spending so much time over the sins and wanderings, and occasional triumphs, of a people who lived so long ago, in a very small part of the earth's surface, who never so much as suspected that there was a continent far across the sea, where the story of their doings would some day be read, and studied in all its details?

Might it not be better, the cynic might ask, to study nations nearer our own time, to derive lessons from their rise and fall?

Let me answer that question as concretely and frankly as I can. First, let me say that the history of Israel should not be studied alone, or without reference to our own history or that of other peoples. The one thing that has kept the story of Israel so vital in its interest and so profitable for study throughout the centuries is the fact that it is so typical, and full of symbolism, in relation to other peoples, lands and times.

What people as not known at some time in its history, or in some part of its territory, an experience of bondage, and the misgovernment of evil or corrupt rulers? What nation has not had its Moses, by whatever name he might be called, and its reformers, rallying the people with a call of rigeousness, and leading them out into some new era of prosperity and national glory? What nation and people has not ever had before it the Promised Land of a better tomorrow?

The history of all, in a sense, is in this history of Israel. And it is more than a history; it is an exemplification of the moral foundations of good living for the individual and for society.

Here in this particular lesson these things are emphasized. The lesson as it stands is not the whole story. Its teachings and principles are broadly true in the emphasis that is laid upon goodness and prosperity going hand in hand. But the later history of Israel, and the Bible as a whole reminds us, that the equation that so much goodness equals so much prosperity does not always hold good just in that simple way. It is true that no nation can have any real or lasting prosperity that disregards the laws of God and of man. Social welfare depends upon social wisdom and social righteousness. But we should remember that God teaches, tests, and leads both individuals and nations through adversity as well as through pleasant paths.

That, also, is a lesson enforced by the story of Israel, and it is a lesson that we are learning in the deep tragedy and testing of the world today.

Irreplaceable treasures from London's Lincoln Cathedral have been buried for the duration in a chamber hewn out of solid rock 60 feet underground.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

A RECORD IN MOURNING—The great Albanian hero who maintained Albania's independence from the Turks in the 15th century was George Alexander, better known in history as Skanderbeg. When he died in 1468, the Albanians vowed to wear mourning for him forever. Although 475 years have elapsed, the Albanians still wear the black stripes on their clothing for their long dead hero.

IN WASHINGTON

By Peter Edson
Monroe Morning World Washington Correspondent

The shortage of doctors to take care of the civilian population, which was such a controversial issue last fall, is still here and will in all probability be here for another year. The country got by without any serious epidemics during the last winter, and public health officials believe they can get through the coming winter without catastrophe. But at its worst, which is in some of these new mushrooming war industry centers, the doctor shortage can hit like this example, taken from a U. S. public health service survey:

In Brunswick, Ga., the population has jumped from 25,000 to 70,000 in three years. The town has only 14 doctors, or one to every 5,000 inhabitants. Each of the doctors is seeing from 20 to 40 patients a day and has time for only three or four house calls a week. Most of the doctors are so overworked they refuse all night calls. Patients have to get up out of their sick beds, go to the doctor's office and wait their turns, often for hours.

The town has four dentists who are booked up solid for from three to four months ahead. There was one hospital of 68 beds, whose capacity is now being doubled, but there is still a housing shortage, an inadequate number of food stores, insufficient resturants, and too little laundry service. In the face of these conditions, the investigators were not surprised to find that absenteeism in the war plants and shipyards ran as high at 16 per cent on some days, along with a terrific labor turnover.

Shipyards Hire Physicians

As a result of this survey, the shipyards hired one doctor and assigned him to a housing project community. The yards could use three more doctors. An interne was hired for the hospital. An army doctor from a nearby camp, whose full-time services were not required at the post, asked permission to spend a few hours each day in town for civilian practice.

This is an extreme case, but it is by measures such as these that local communities, hit hardest by shortages of doctors, are having to get by. And there are over 300 U. S. communities faced with such problems today.

The country has been lucky thus far. An office of war information report on public health, just released, reveals the lowest death rate on record, an increase in the birth rate, and a drop in maternal and infant mortality. Infantile paralysis, meningitis and dysentery are up, deaths from tuberculosis and venereal diseases have not been cut, but influenza and typhoid rates, which normally go up in war times, have actually been reduced.

In spite of all these good breaks, plus the fact that the army has actually discharged some 1,500 doctors previously commissioned for service with troops, the doctor shortage is still the most acute problem. The places of the 1,500 doctors discharged by the army must be refilled with other, younger doctors. On addition, 11,000 doctors are being commissioned by the army and navy this year, to bring the total number in service by Jan. 1, 1944, to 53,000. On the basis of an army and navy of 10.8 million men, this will be one doctor to approximately every 200 men. Obviously, this number will not be spread evenly, a greater concentration being required in active theaters of operation. What medical officers say they actually need is a minimum of one doctor to every 150 men.

Distribution Of Doctors

With these 53,000 of the most able-bodied physicians in service, the civilian population of approximately 125,000,000 people will be left with 108,000 doctors to take care of them. Of course, some 84,000 are physicians, surgeons and specialists in general practice, the others being public health officials, internes and resident physicians. This will leave an average of one general practitioner for approximately every 1,500 civilians. This is considered a safe figure if the doctors are evenly distributed.

The trouble is, they're not, and in redistributing the available doctors to meet every need, the physicians' procurement and assignment service in the war manpower commission charged with this task, has had to do some sharp juggling in shifting nearly 1,500 doctors to shortage areas, in limiting the recruiting of doctors for the armed services to the 20 states in which there are doctor surpluses, in stopping recruiting in 15 states with shortages, in finding practices for some 6,000 foreign-born doctors, all of whom do not have final U. S. citizenship, and so on.

Also, some 2,500 doctors die every year, and must be replaced.

The supply of new doctors coming out of medical schools, beginning September, 1944, is estimated at 5,000 every nine months, due to the speed-up in medical courses, or 7,000 a year. Of these, 20 per cent, or about 1,400, will be available annually to replace the 2,500 older doctors who die, leaving the army with 55 per cent or 3,850 and the navy with 25 per cent or 1,750 new doctors a year as replacements.

And at those figures the supply will have to remain in balance for the duration.

YOUNG PEOPLE TO CONDUCT RALLY

A young people's rally will be held at the First Presbyterian church at 5:30 p.m. Sunday.

All young people 12 years of age and upwards are invited to attend and a supper will be served in connection with an interesting program.

Mrs. Robert Archibald, in charge of the program, especially urges that all young people of the church be present.

India's mills normally produce 90 per cent of the world's burlap.

To the People of this Community:

TAKE STOCK TODAY!

Today is a good day to take stock of what you really are doing as a one-man army to make victory easier and quicker.

How many War Bonds are you buying regularly? How many have you bought since the Third War Loan opened September 9th? Have you drained your idle savings for extra Bonds? Have you upped your payroll savings allotment at your place of work?

3rd War Loan — BUY AN EXTRA $100 BOND

You'll agree that buying Bonds is the lightest of all war chores. To spend Sunday fighting for your very life against the Nazis or Japs — that's the severest duty imposed by citizenship. The Americans who have that job aren't complaining. Will you, who have your Sundays at home, grumble about giving up some of your usual comforts so that you can buy an extra Bond or two? There's a lot of questions in today's "little box" but your son or husband or brother will ask you many more burning questions if somehow he learns you did not back him up with War Bonds when the war got tough.

New York Day By Day

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL
Title Reg. U. S. Patent Office

NEW YORK—Today I celebrate [illegible] good American from my part of th[illegible] world, Mr. Cal Tinney, who has jus[illegible] joined the army.

Cal, whom I've known for eleve[illegible] years, is 35 years old, married, ha[illegible] four children, five feet seven, 15[illegible] pounds, and not a chance in the worl[illegible] to be drafted until the cows com[illegible] home.

But he went down to Grand Central and volunteered.

Incidentally, he quit a job payin[illegible] $40,000 a year to take the army jo[illegible] paying $120 a month, $98 of whic[illegible] will go to Mrs. Tinney.

Cal comes from Pontotoc county, Okla. He was a scared boy when h[illegible] first strolled into my office in th[illegible] Times building, back in 1932. He didn['t] have too much cash, but he had ridde[illegible] some bad bronchos in his time, and h[illegible] could take a fall if he had to.

Well, he's gone a long way sinc[illegible] then. He has been on the air, coast to coast, with all manner of program[illegible]. The latest one was 'Sizing Up th[illegible] News," coast to coast, originating [illegible] Philadelphia.

I asked Cal why he enlisted, at h[illegible] age, and with his responsibilities [illegible] consider.

"Well, I just got tired of hearin[illegible] a lot of war-age guys with no ki[illegible] and plenty of money telling how [illegible] run the war. And I'm going to fe[illegible] better, too."

He goes to Texas for air corps train[illegible]ing.

Good luck, Cal! Your friends a[illegible] proud of you!

When the news of Italy's surrende[illegible] hit New York, a few minutes befo[illegible] noon, it set off quite a show. Mo[illegible] of the town got its first news of th[illegible] surrender at the beginning of the [illegible] o'clock broadcasts. The telephon[illegible] company was instantly swamped an[illegible] jammed with calls. Everybody wante[illegible] to call everybody else and tell th[illegible] good news first.

During the noon hour a good de[illegible] of paper was torn up and tossed fro[illegible] skyscraper windows, particularly [illegible] 42nd street, lower Broadway and [illegible] the Wall street neighborhood.

Italians, who constitute a goodly pr[illegible]portion of New York's populatio[illegible] were the most joyous of all. They d[illegible] in some thousands of cases, run o[illegible] of the building in which they we[illegible] working, shout the news, and we[illegible] or laugh, as the impulse seemed [illegible] prevail.

It was not until evening, when th[illegible] full significance of the surrender w[illegible] learned, that the real jollification b[illegible]gan. It was most evident in Tim[illegible] Square. It lacked some of the spo[illegible]tancity of the two armistice celebra[illegible]tions in New York in 1918, becau[illegible] Communist organizers and disrupter[illegible] who have been busy in Times squa[illegible] for two years now, were busily orga[illegible]izing street argument groups, preach[illegible]ing "second front" and party line, a[illegible] generally interfering with the norm[illegible] conduct of American life.

The average reaction might [illegible] summed up thus.

"Well, it begins to sound like th[illegible] other World war! Now we'll pour[illegible] those other bums to pieces. We're [illegible] the road to Berlin.

"But let's not get too cocky. We'[illegible] got the little yellow brothers to lic[illegible] and that's going to take some doin[illegible] We won't get our new model cars f[illegible] a few seasons yet."

Mr. Lafayette Roberts, 77 years ol[illegible] of Muncie, Ind., writes me an inspi[illegible]ing letter, saying, among other pr[illegible] [illegible] needs is fewer dreamers, "and mo[illegible] men and women in high places wh[illegible] like Lincoln, are not ashamed to pr[illegible] to God for wisdom and daily guid[illegible]ance."

A low bow to you, Sir, and ma[illegible] God bless you!

Centenarians Eat Less

This had better not be a long war, as Hitler once suggested, because, according to a news dispatch from Stockholm, the Germans have called up men from 50 to 60 years old for military service. The German press announced that all men born in the period from 1884 to 1893 must report to their district police stations for enlistment during this month, as Hitler must find replacements for Italian units stationed in the Balkans and France.

As the allies advance into the European fortress, it may be necessary for Hitler to call up older men, say from 80 to 90.

One would think that some Washington official would warn the American people against complacency, against resting on their oars, just because Germany is taking older men. Activity on the battlefield might lengthen as well as shorten the lives of some of these German soldiers.

Britannica points out that functional activity, mental and bodily, plays an important part in postponing the advent of old age, and there is more danger of rusting out than of wearing out. It adds that "the advanced age of many dignitaries on the bench and of prime ministers, though many of these may be supermen, points to the beneficial influence of long-continued activity. Among painters, Giovanni Bellini, Michelangelo and Sidney Cooper worked up to nearly their death, and Titian was painting with 'incomparable steadiness of hand,' when cut off by the plague at the age of 99."

Titian probably would have been a formidable adversary with a sub-machine gun clutched in his incomparably steady hands.

"The same retention of productivity was seen in Voltaire, Littre, Anatole France, Goethe, von Ranke and Frederick Harrison," Britannica adds, asserting that "retirement, often looked forward to in early life, is a source of danger, as it may bring with it cessation from activity."

The Nazis will find, when they call up the class of 1843, that they will not need as much food for their army, because, as Britannica says, "the majority of centenarians have been small eaters."

Still, there's no room for complacency.

PLAN TO HELP FARMER

Several candidates for the Louisiana legislature have already come out in their platform giving endorsement to the plan proposed some weeks ago by Harry Wilson, Louisiana's commissioner of agriculture, to set up practical marketing places for the farmers of the state.

The proposal should have support.

There is nothing visionary or impractical in what Commissioner Wilson proposes. He is not that kind of an operator.

He keeps one eye on the farmer's needs, but he also keeps a watch on the taxpayer's purse. He does not propose to take money from the overburdened taxpayers of Louisiana, and pass it over to any group. His plan is practical and self-liquidating.

His plan is for inexpensive marketing places for the farmers in the cities of the state, to be built initially at the expense of the state, but to be liquidated by those who use the markets, and out of the sale of the farmers' goods.

What the farmer needs is markets in which to sell his goods. These markets could be erected at little expense in the various cities, and would not only facilitate the farmer but the housewife.

The plan is not new. It has been tried in other states—notably Florida—and has worked with eminent satisfaction.

Some years ago Mr. Wilson launched his Market Bulletin in the interest of the small farmer, that he might dispose of small articles for which otherwise there would be no market. It has been an outstanding success and copied by many of the states of the nation. And it has put no burden on the taxpayers. We believe his market plan is equally practical, and would be equally successful in the interest of the farmer.—Baton Rouge State-Times.

REALISM TO THE FORE

Trained observers of the international scene say that a meeting of Secretary Hull, Secretary Eden and Commissar Molotov may become the most momentous diplomatic conference of this war.

They are convinced that talks at such a conference would not be confined to ideological discussions of how democracy might be firmly established in the world after the axis has been defeated, but would revolve about realistic and practical matters such as future boundaries.

Russia has already placed herself on record with a frankness which alarms some governments-in-exile regarding her western frontiers.

The Turks are concerned over publications of an article in a recent issue of the Moscow magazine, "War and the Working Class," in which Turkey is accused of delaying victory of the United Nations by her continued policy of neutrality. Published in Britain or the United States, the article would mean little.

But all newspapers and magazines in Russia present exclusively the views of the Soviet government and are used by Stalin to fire an occasional shot across the bow. The independence of Turkey and the brilliant successes of Kemal Pasha were made possible in the darkest hours of Turkey's history by support in money and war material from Moscow. But after the Turkish republic became well established her relations with Russia were not always entirely satisfactory to Stalin.

Kemal and his lieutenants were nationalists and hated the Communist international dogma. Turkey is scared by the possibility that Stalin will demand the Dardanelles as an outlet to foreign commerce.

Japan has five cities with populations of more than one million—the same number as the United States.

Japan has compulsory school attendance for children from six to fourteen.

Jimmie Fidler IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The second "Hollywood Cavalcade," now touring the country for Uncle Sam, got off to a flying start in Philadelphia. There, at one rally, the movie troupe sold $160,000,000 worth of war bonds—more than a third of the Quaker City's quota for the third war loan drive. That's a record that should make Hollywood very proud.

Since screen stars first set up as bond salesmen, two years ago, certain editorial writers have decried their efforts, claiming that Americans would buy their country's bonds anyway, and insinuating that Hollywood is merely making publicity capital out of John Citizen's patriotism. That point of view is not borne out by the facts.

Wherever movie celebrities have appeared at bond rallies, sales have soared far above normal. They draw the crowds and the shoop-to-do attending their visits creates a buying mood. The treasury department has recognized their value from the start and almost without exception, the appearances of stars have been made at government request.

True, Hollywood has garnered valuable publicity in the process, but the publicity has been inspired primarily by the need for drawing crowds and selling bonds, not by the star's desire to receive credit. Celebrities have made these tours at considerable sacrifice. They've turned down screen roles and incurred large personal expenses, for their trips are made at their own cost in the majority of cases. They deserve pats on the backs, not kicks in the pants.

Speaking of the war done by movie stars, I'm reminded, by contrast, of Greta Garbo. According to studio announcements, Garbo is to appear in a forthcoming picture as Joan of Arc—a woman who fought and died for her country. Now, I don't expect that much of Greta—but I'll guarantee one thing. She would be better received—and more believable—as the Maid of Orleans, were she to get in trim for that heroic role by placing herself in the hands of Hollywood victory committee. This is a time for sacrifice—and it wouldn't kill Garbo to meet, just once, the public that made her a star.

In my mail this morning is a letter from a soldier in a Texas camp—and I feel duty bound to pass on its contents to Olivia de Havilland. Olivia, as you know if you read the sob stories in fan magazines, has not found the road to romance very smooth going. She's been in love several times, but always something has prevented the story from ending with that mellow old line: "And so they were married and lived happily ever after." Just in case she's been upset by her run of bad luck, I want Olivia to know about my correspondent's researches. "Miss de Havilland," says he, "is the girl every man in the army dreams of marrying."

About a year ago, just out of curiosity, I installed a system in my office to keep track of the interests expressed by my readers. Each star has his tally sheet and on it a secretary notes the number of "mentions" that he gets via the mails. Scanning these records the other day, I was amazed by the amount of white space on Greer Garson's score card. Apparently she is a Hollywood freak—a top box-office star without a fanatic following. If at first thought, that may seem uncomplimentary to Miss Garson, think again. The fact that her pictures play to packed houses is proof positive, when contrasted with that dearth of fans, that she must be a very fine actress.

Speaking of Hollywood "freaks"—consider a terse paragraph which appeared the other day in a Victorville, California, newspaper. It reported that Mrs. Joseph Howard, of that city, would be in charge of certain O. C. D. work. Mrs. Joseph Howard, in case you've forgotten, used to be a famous screen star. Her name was Priscilla Lane. Her studio (she's still nominally under contract) never lets a week pass without begging her to reclaim her place in the spotlight. She answers each entreaty with a firm "no"—and goes right on being plain Mrs. Joe Howard of Victorville. I know of only two other girls in all screen history who were philosophers enough to trade, voluntarily, screen stardom for personal happiness.

I see that the New York State Board of Movie censorsnip, during the past six months, has ordered the deletion of 229 scenes because of "indecency," while cropping another 102 on charges of "immorality." When you consider the additional hundreds of deletions and cuts enforced by the Hays office before the pictures were released, you must reach an uncomfortable conclusion. Either Hollywood is awfully naughty—or the censors back there in New York are awfully nice.

BY [illegible]RY McLEMORE

The shortage o[illegible]used by the war hasn't inconvenienced my household one lick.

We get just as much care as we ever did because under my roof dwells one of the world's greatest free-style, Gracco-Roman, catch-as-catch-can diagnosticians. I speak of my wife. I know for a fact that she never attended any kind of medical school, and I doubt if she has ever read a medical book. To her "Gray's Anatomy" is just another work by that fellow who spent so much time writing elegies in country churchyards.

But this lack of medical knowledge doesn't daunt her at all. In her own mind she is a combination of Sir William Osler, the right wing of Johns Hopkins, and a full sister to the Brothers Mayo. Without any hesitation whatsoever, with a quickness of decision that almost makes the patient feel as if she knew what she were talking about, she will give her diagnosis. No chest thumping, no "Lemme see your tongue" business, no taking of temperature or counting of pulse.

She simply stares at you fixedly, and diagnoses. Her diagnosis is always the same. If I have a sore throat or sore wrist, a crick in my neck, or pain in my side, she always says, "Poo. There's nothing to that. You've just caught a little cold in it."

I am quite sure that I could come hobbling in with a broken leg and she would say, "You'll be all right in the morning. You've just caught a little cold in the leg."

Often she is right in her diagnosis. But name me a man, particularly a man who is a husband, who wants his ailments to be so lightly dismissed. One of the great rights of a husband is the right to complain, and loudly, when he has the smallest ache or pain. I want the works when I have the slightest ache. I want hot water bottles, thermometers, chicken broth, breakfast in bed, neighbors calling up, and complete hand-and-foot waiting on.

I like tiptoes on the stairs and hushed voices. I want the entire machinery of the household to be retooled to take care of me. It's pretty discouraging, let me tell you, to toss on a bed of pain with a headache, and hear a cheery voice downstairs explaining to someone over the phone, "Oh, Henry's perfectly all right. He just caught a little cold. If I don't pay any attention to him he'll get bored and be up in the middle of the afternoon."

There's another drawback to sharing my rooms and A coupons with a self-ordained physician, the eminent Dr. Jean McLemore. She occasionally breaks down and treats me with medicine. But she will not follow the instructions on the bottle or box. If the label says, "Two pills before retiring," she insists on my taking three early in the morning. If you're supposed to take them on getting up, I get them when I go to bed. And she won't use the standard remedies you get at a drugstore without a prescription for what they were made for. She rubs me with cough syrup and gives me a dose of liniment. Once she gave me six drops of eye wash in a glass of water, and explained to me after I found out what I had swallowed, that surely anythin gthat was good for the eyes, as tender as they are, couldn't possibly hurt my stomach.

She doesn't know it, but I am secretly visiting a veterinarian these days. When I take the pup out to have her looked over, I have Dr. Backus look me over, too. He says that I am in pretty good shape, not a sign of distemper, practically no mange to speak of. I tell you, it's a relief to get this kind of diagnosis for a change. Dr. Backus has never told me that I just had a little cold here or there.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The Sunday School Lesson For Sept. 26
Lesson Text: Deuteronomy 11:13-25
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

As we have considered the various lessons we have sought to discover their teaching for today, as well as to interpret their meaning in the light of the times when the events and incidents were occurring.

I have insisted always that there is little value in studying the Bible unless its teachings grip our hearts, and give us light and guidance to help us in our conduct and our problems today. It might be said that that is all very well insofar as the New Testament, and the life and teaching of Jesus, and the ultimate and high counsels of the New Testament are concerned; but what is the use of spending so much time over the sins and wanderings, and occasional triumphs, of a people who lived so long ago, in a very small part of the earth's surface, who never so much as suspected that there was a continent far across the sea, where the story of their doings would some day be read, and studied in all its details?

Might it not be better, the cynic might ask, to study nations nearer our own time, to derive lessons from their rise and fall?

Let me answer that question as concretely and frankly as I can. First, let me say that the history of Israel should not be studied alone, or without reference to our own history or that of other peoples. The one thing that has kept the story of Israel so vital in its interest and so profitable for study throughout the centuries is the fact that it is so typical, and full of symbolism, in relation to other peoples, lands and times.

What people as not known at some time in its history, or in some part of its territory, an experience of bondage, and the misgovernment of evil or corrupt rulers? What nation has not had its Moses, by whatever name he might be called, and its reformers, rallying the people with a call of rigeousness, and leading them out into some new era of prosperity and national glory? What nation and people has not ever had before it the Promised Land of a better tomorrow?

The history of all, in a sense, is in this history of Israel. And it is more than a history; it is an exemplification of the moral foundations of good living for the individual and for society.

Here in this particular lesson there things are emphasized. The lesson as it stands is not the whole story. Its teachings and principles are broadly true in the emphasis that is laid upon goodness and prosperity going hand in hand. But the later history of Israel, and the Bible as a whole reminds us, that the equation that so much goodness equals so much prosperity does not always hold good just in that simple way. It is true that no nation can have any real or lasting prosperity that disregards the laws of God and of man. Social welfare depends upon social wisdom and social righteousness. But we should remember that God teaches, tests, and leads both individuals and nations through adversity as well as through pleasant paths.

That, also, is a lesson enforced by the story of Israel, and it is a lesson that we are learning in the deep tragedy and testing of the world today.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

A RECORD IN MOURNING—The great Albanian hero who maintained Albania's independence from the Turks in the 15th century was George Alexander, better known in history as Skanderbeg. When he died in 1468, the Albanians vowed to wear mourning for him forever. Although 475 years have elapsed, the Albanians still wear the black stripes on their clothing for their long dead hero.

IN WASHINGTON

By Peter Edson
Monroe Morning World Washington Correspondent

The shortage of doctors to take care of the civilian population, which was such a controversial issue last fall, is still here and will in all probability be here for another year. The country got by without any serious epidemics during the last winter, and public health officials believe they can get through the coming winter without catastrophe. But at its worst, which is in some of these new mushrooming war industry centers, the doctor shortage can hit like this example, taken from a U. S. public health service survey:

In Brunswick, Ga., the population has jumped from 25,000 to 70,000 in three years. The town has only 14 doctors, or one to every 5,000 inhabitants. Each of the doctors is seeing from 20 to 40 patients a day and has time for only three or four house calls a week. Most of the doctors are so overworked they refuse all night calls. Patients have to get up out of their sick beds, go to the doctor's office and wait their turns, often for hours.

The town has four dentists who are booked up solid for from three to four months ahead. There was one hospital of 68 beds, whose capacity is now being doubled, but there is still a housing shortage, an inadequate number of food stores, insufficient resturants, and too little laundry service. In the face of these conditions, the investigators were not surprised to find that absenteeism in the war plants and shipyards ran as high at 16 per cent on some days, along with a terrific labor turnover.

Shipyards Hire Physicians

As a result of this survey, the shipyards hired one doctor and assigned him to a housing project community. The yards could use three more doctors. An interne was hired for the hospital. An army doctor from a nearby camp, whose full-time services were not required at the post, asked permission to spend a few hours each day in town for civilian practice.

This is an extreme case, but it is by measures such as these that local communities, hit hardest by shortages of doctors, are having to get by. And there are over 300 U. S. communities faced with such problems today.

The country has been lucky thus far. An office of war information report on public health, just released, reveals the lowest death rate on record, an increase in the birth rate, and a drop in maternal and infant mortality. Infantile paralysis, meningitis and dysentery are up, deaths from tuberculosis and venereal diseases have not been cut, but influenza and typhoid rates, which normally go up in war times, have actually been reduced.

In spite of all these good breaks, plus the fact that the army has actually discharged some 1,500 doctors previously commissioned for service with troops, the doctor shortage is still the most acute problem. The places of the 1,500 doctors discharged by the army must be refilled with other, younger doctors. On addition, 11,000 doctors are being commissioned by the army and navy this year, to bring the total number in service by Jan. 1, 1944, to 53,000. On the basis of an army and navy of 10.8 million men, this will be one doctor to approximately every 200 men. Obviously, this number will not be spread evenly, a greater concentration being required in active theaters of operation. What medical officers say they actually need is a minimum of one doctor to every 150 men.

Distribution Of Doctors

With these 53,000 of the most able-bodied physicians in service, the civilian population of approximately 125,000,000 people will be left with 108,000 doctors to take care of them. Of course, some 84,000 are physicians, surgeons and specialists in general practice, the others being public health officials, internes and resident physicians. This will leave an average of one general practitioner for approximately every 1,500 civilians. This is considered a safe figure if the doctors are evenly distributed.

The trouble is, they're not, and in redistributing the available doctors to meet every need, the physicians' procurement and assignment service in the war manpower commission charged with this task, has had to do some sharp juggling in shifting nearly 1,500 doctors to shortage areas, in limiting the recruiting of doctors for the armed services to the 20 states in which there are doctor surpluses, in stopping recruiting in 15 states with shortages, in finding practices for some 6,000 foreign-born doctors, all of whom do not have final U. S. citizenship, and so on.

Also, some 2,500 doctors die every year, and must be replaced.

The supply of new doctors coming out of medical schools, beginning September, 1944, is estimated at 5,000 every nine months, due to the speed-up in medical courses, or 7,000 a year. Of these, 20 per cent, or about 1,400, will be available annually to replace the 2,500 older doctors who die, leaving the army with 55 per cent or 3,850 and the navy with 25 per cent or 1,750 new doctors a year as replacements.

And at those figures the supply will have to remain in balance for the duration.

YOUNG PEOPLE TO CONDUCT RALLY

A young people's rally will be held at the First Presbyterian church at 5:30 p.m. Sunday.

All young people 12 years of age and upwards are invited to attend and a supper will be served in connection with an interesting program.

Mrs. Robert Archibald, in charge of the program, especially urges that all young people of the church be present.

India's mills normally produce 90 per cent of the world's burlap.

To the People of this Community:

TAKE STOCK TODAY!

Today is a good day to take stock of what you really are doing as a one-man army to make victory easier and quicker.

How many War Bonds are you buying regularly? How many have you bought since the Third War Loan opened September 9th? Have you drained your idle savings for extra Bonds? Have you upped your payroll savings allotment at your place of work?

3rd War Loan — BUY AN EXTRA $100 BOND

You'll agree that buying Bonds is the lightest of all war chores. To spend Sunday fighting for your very life against the Nazis or Japs — that's the severest duty imposed by citizenship. The Americans who have that job aren't complaining. Will you, who have your Sundays at home, grumble about giving up some of your usual comforts so that you can buy an extra Bond or two? There's a lot of questions in today's "little box" but your son or husband or brother will ask you many more burning questions if somehow he learns you did not back him up with War Bonds when the war got tough.

New York Day By Day

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL
Title Reg. U. S. Patent Office

NEW YORK—Today I celebrate [a] good American from my part of th[e] world, Mr. Cal Tinney, who has jus[t] joined the army.

Cal, whom I've known for eleve[n] years, is 35 years old, married, ha[s] four children, five feet seven, 15[..] pounds, and not a chance in the worl[d] to be drafted until the cows com[e] home.

But he went down to Grand Central and volunteered.

Incidentally, he quit a job payin[g] $40,000 a year to take the army jo[b] paying $120 a month, $98 of which will go to Mrs. Tinney.

Cal comes from Pontotoc county, Okla. He was a scared boy when h[e] first strolled into my office in th[e] Times building, back in 1932. He didn['t] have too much cash, but he had ridde[n] some bad bronchos in his time, and h[e] could take a fall if he had to.

Well, he's gone a long way sinc[e] then. He has been on the air, coas[t] to coast, with all manner of program[s]. The latest one was "Sizing Up th[e] News," coast to coast, originating [in] Philadelphia.

I asked Cal why he enlisted, at h[is] age, and with his responsibilities [to] consider.

"Well, I just got tired of hearin[g] a lot of war-age guys with no ki[ds] and plenty of money telling how [to] run the war. And I'm going to fe[el] better, too."

He goes to Texas for air corps training.

Good luck, Cal! Your friends a[re] proud of you!

When the news of Italy's surrende[r] hit New York, a few minutes befor[e] noon, it set off quite a show. Mo[st] of the town got its first news of th[e] surrender at the beginning of the [12] o'clock broadcasts. The telephon[e] company was instantly swamped an[d] jammed with calls. Everybody wante[d] to call everybody else and tell th[e] good news first.

During the noon hour a good de[al] of paper was torn up and tossed fro[m] skyscraper windows, particularly [in] 42nd street, lower Broadway and [in] the Wall street neighborhood.

Italians, who constitute a goodly proportion of New York's population were the most joyous of all. They di[d] in some thousands of cases, run o[ut] of the building in which they we[re] working, shout the news, and we[ep] or laugh, as the impulse seemed [to] prevail.

It was not until evening, when th[e] full significance of the surrender w[as] learned, that the real jollification began. It was most evident in Tim[es] Square. It lacked some of the spontaneity of the two armistice celebrations in New York in 1918, becau[se] Communist organizers and disrupter[s] who have been busy in Times squa[re] for two years now, were busily organizing street argument groups, preaching "second front" and party line, an[d] generally interfering with the norm[al] conduct of American life.

The average reaction might [be] summed up thus:

"Well, it begins to sound like th[e] other World war! Now we'll poun[d] those other bums to pieces. We're o[n] the road to Berlin.

"But let's not get too cocky. We'[ve] got the little yellow brothers to lic[k] and that's going to take some doin[g]. We won't get our new model cars f[or] a few seasons yet."

Mr. Lafayette Roberts, 77 years ol[d] of Muncie, Ind., writes me an inspiring letter, saying, among other provocative things, that what this countr[y] needs is fewer dreamers, "and mo[re] men and women in high places wh[o] like Lincoln, are not ashamed to pr[ay] to God for wisdom and daily guidance."

A low bow to you, Sir, and ma[y] God bless you!

MORE TEACHERS TO ENTER PROFESSION

RUSTON, La., Sept. 18.—(Special)—Four Louisiana Tech seniors have accepted school positions for this fail in answer to an emergency call for teachers made recently by the state board of education, according to Miss Helen Woodard, head of the teacher placement office at Tech.

Two students, Freddie Lee Taylor of Choudrant and Minnie Lee Fowler of Dubach, will begin their duties Monday, September 27, at Holly Ridge in Richland parish. Miss Taylor will teach the third grade, and Miss Fowler will teach the fifth grade there.

Ruby Lee Carter of Ruston began her teaching duties Monday, September 13, at Kilbourne in West Carroll parish. She is employed in the home economics department.

Onita Cartilage of Farmerville will teach English and serve as librarian at Delhi in Richland parish when she graduates in October. A substitute teacher is taking her place until then.

SENIOR CLASS MEETS

JONESBORO, La., Sept. 18.—(Special)—The senior class of Jonesboro-Hodge High school met Wednesday, September 15, to elect officers and sponsors for the coming year. Misses Valery Barnum, Hazel Shively and Olivia Mae Thompson were selected to be sponsors. Officers are: Bobby Taberlet, president; Charles Allison, vice-president; Lorraine Mackay, secretary-treasurer, and Dorothy Canady, reporter.

COMMANDER

Captain Enos Payne of Bogalusa, La., and Tylertown, Miss., has assumed command of the 78th subdepot, air service command unit at Selman field. He was formerly subdepot engineering officer.

A native of Bogalusa, Captain Payne operated a farm near Tylertown until 1925, when he enlisted in the air service. After 17 years as an enlisted man, he was commissioned a first lieutenant on May 8, 1942. Assigned to Selman field in August, 1942, he became engineering officer and was promoted to captain.

CIGARETTES FOR FIGHTERS SOUGHT

Campaign Started To Send Packages To Men In Service

A campaign to raise funds for purchasing cigarettes for overseas servicemen is now in progress, according to F. C. McConnell, Junior Chamber of Commerce president.

In connection with this a special three-day campaign will go into effect tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, said Mr. McConnell. The unusual feature of this effort will permit parents and friends of overseas fighting men to purchase cartons of cigarettes at 65 cents per carton, with a maximum of five cartons to be sent to any one serviceman.

Emphasis is placed on the fact that all orders must be placed directly at the Chamber of Commerce office in the Virginia hotel. No telephone orders, or orders by mail will be accepted. And no orders will be taken after Wednesday.

Citizens of Monroe and West Monroe who want to send cigarettes as Christmas gifts should call at the Chamber office during the three days mentioned, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, September 20, 21, and 22.

It will be necessary to give full name and address of the overseas man, together with the sender's name and address. Orders for these Christmas gift cigarettes cannot be accepted by phone or by letter.

It is hoped, Mr. McConnell stated, that a great many residents of the Twin Cities will appear at the Chamber office the first of the week to place orders for these special Christmas gift packages of cigarettes.

The company which ships the cigarettes will mail them directly to the fighting man and will place a Christmas card with sender's name and address on each order. The cartons will be wrapped in Christmas packages.

Formerly the cigarettes were shipped to fighting men without any designation as to who would receive them. This new setup will allow citizens to send their friends and relatives cigarettes as gifts at the very special 65 cents a carton rate, with a minimum of 5 cartons per serviceman.

Mr. McConnell stressed again the necessity for placing these orders personally.

LITTLE THEATRE TRYOUTS TODAY

'Rebecca' To Be Next Play Given By Monroe Drama Group

Tryouts for the opening production of the Monroe Little Theatre will be held at the new workshop, 3404 DeSiard street, this afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock, it is announced by Mrs. Theodore Merrill, director. She desires that local talent come at that time as well as talent that may be available at the airport or newcomers to the city.

Last season was highly successful and the present one also is said to be bright with promise. A popular production, "Rebecca," has been selected as the opening play to be staged late in October.

The new workshop which is a brick two-story building on the south side of DeSiard street near the college, was rented and occupied for this purpose the past week. It is not far distant from Northeast Junior college where plays are to be presented instead of at Neville High school this season.

"Rebecca" is said not to have as yet been produced on Broadway but is well known to movie fans. The story concerns experiences of the bride of an English lord, who is always reminded of her predecessor in the castle home that now is hers.

There will be the usual membership drive conducted in a few days' time which will be in charge of the board of directors as in past years. A preliminary meeting was held the past week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Serwich, to arrange details for the coming season.

Officers for the 1943-1944 season are: Tom Serwich, president; Mrs. Paul Neal, first vice-president; Mrs. Maud Mayo, second vice-president; Miss May Reed, secretary; R. N. Slator, treasurer and Mrs. Theodore Merrill, director.

The Washington Monument contains enough room to house an army of 12,000 men.

NEVILLE BAND HAS NEW HEAD

Ralph L. Reschar To Direct Instruction; Is Well Experienced

Arrangements have been effected by Superintendent E. L. Neville, of the city schools, to secure the services as band director, of Ralph L. Reschar, of the Northeast Junior college. Mr. Reschar will devote half a day to the city school bands and the other half day to music at Northeast Junior college.

Mr. Reschar has music degrees from Indiana university and also studied for two summers at Northwestern university. For four years he was a member of the Indiana university R. O. T. C. band of 120 pieces and for one year was its assistant director. He was a member of the Indiana university symphony orchestra for three years; member of Northwestern university summer symphony and concert band, and has had past experience in municipal and fraternal bands, and American Legion drum corps. He is a member of the 138th Field Artillery band, Kentucky national guard, Fort Knox, Ky.; platoon sergeant, 44th battalion, Texas defense guard for 18 months.

Mr. Reschar has had eight years of public school teaching of bands and orchestras; three years with the United States Indian service, and two and one-half years in college training.

For the past one and one-half years, Mr. Reschar has been director of the band and instructor in brasses and reeds at Northeast Junior college. He has coached national champions in high school band contests, and judged state and district meets. He is a member of Chi Gamma Tau, honorary band fraternity and Sigma Phi Epsilon, national college social fraternity. He is a member of the Masonic lodge, and of the Methodist church.

Mr. Reschar is also a music composer. He wrote "Symphony No. 1 in F Major" and "Indian Lament Chant of Death."

He states that the prospects for a first class band at Neville High school are bright and extends a cordial invitation to all students and parents of children wishing to begin study of band instruments to see him at the high school or at his home.

Mr. Reschar will take the place of Charles Gaushell, who has removed to Shreveport to direct the band at Fair Park High school.

For the first assault of the North African campaign 110 tons of maps were required, and 400 tons more needed in the later phases of the campaign.

HONOR GIVEN TO FOUR SCHOOLS

A. L. Smith, Drew, Fairbanks, Ouachita Parish, To Have Minute Man Flags

The schools of Ouachita parish will open September 20 in the midst of the third war loan. This drive should give schools an opportunity to get off to a fast start on their whole year's war saving campaign, stated Superintendent T. O. Brown.

Four schools—A. L. Smith, Drew, Fairbanks, and Ouachita Parish High school—will have an added incentive to "Back the Attack" with war bonds in the inspiring sight of the schools-at-war "Minute-Man-Flag" which will go up with the stars and stripes on Monday morning testifying to the fact that during May, the last month of session 1942-1943, at least 90 per cent of the pupils of the school bought war stamps or bonds.

A. L. Smith topped the record of all schools by reporting 100 per cent participation. All eyes will be on this school during the third war loan campaign. However four other schools—Calhoun, Crosley, Claiborne and Lenwil—possess a "Minute-Man-Flag" but failed to earn the right to fly it during the first month of session 1943-1944. These schools—no doubt—will be redoubling their efforts to be entitled to raise it on high during the second month of school, it is assured.

The feeling of patriotism and enthusiasm created by seeing this symbolic flag with the familiar United States flag should help put the third war loan over the top, the superintendent said.

MORE TEACHERS TO ENTER PROFESSION

RUSTON, La., Sept. 18.—(Special)—Four Louisiana Tech seniors have accepted school positions for this fail in answer to an emergency call for teachers made recently by the state board of education, according to Miss Helen Woodard, head of the teacher placement office at Tech.

Two students, Freddie Lee Taylor of Choudrant and Minnie Lee Fowler of Dubach, will begin their duties Monday, September 27, at Holly Ridge in Richland parish. Miss Taylor will teach the third grade, and Miss Fowler will teach the fifth grade there.

Ruby Lee Carter of Ruston began her teaching duties Monday, September 13, at Kilbourne in West Carroll parish. She is employed in the home economics department.

Onita Cartilage of Farmerville will teach English and serve as librarian at Delhi in Richland parish when she graduates in October. A substitute teacher is taking her place until then.

SENIOR CLASS MEETS

JONESBORO, La., Sept. 18.—(Special)—The senior class of Jonesboro-Hodge High school met Wednesday, September 15, to elect officers and sponsors for the coming year. Misses Valery Barnum, Hazel Shively and Olivia Mae Thompson were selected to be sponsors. Officers are: Bobby Taberlet, president; Charles Allison, vice-president; Lorraine Mackay, secretary-treasurer, and Dorothy Canady, reporter.

COMMANDER

Captain Enos Payne of Bogalusa, La., and Tylertown, Miss., has assumed command of the 78th sub-depot, air service command unit at Selman field. He was formerly sub-depot engineering officer.

A native of Bogalusa, Captain Payne operated a farm near Tylertown until 1925, when he enlisted in the air service. After 17 years as an enlisted man, he was commissioned a first lieutenant on May 8, 1942. Assigned to Selman field in August, 1942, he became engineering officer and was promoted to captain.

ADD TWO MORE AS INSTRUCTORS

Louisiana Tech To Have Additions To Faculty

RUSTON, La., Sept. 18.—(Special)—Two additional appointments to the Louisiana Tech teaching staff—one each in the physics and mathematics departments—have been announced by Dr. Claybrook Cottingham, president.

Lester M. Garrison of Joplin, Mo., has been appointed assistant professor of mathematics, filling the vacancy left by Dr. Frank C. Gentry, resigned.

Mr. Garrison has had several years of teaching experience and has specialized in mathematics and science. He received his bachelor of science degree from Central Missouri State Teachers' college of Warrensburg, Mo., in 1926, and his master of arts at the University of Missouri, Columbia, in 1933. He completed requirements for his master of education degree in 1939 at Peabody college.

The new mathematics teacher is a former head of the mathematics department at Snead Junior college, Boaz, Ala., having held that position from 1935 to 1939.

Golden A. Flake of Toledo, Ohio, has begun his duties here as acting instructor of physics.

Mr. Flake obtained his bachelor of arts degree in 1933 from East Illinois State college at Charleston, Ill. He has done graduate work at Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill., and was a graduate assistant in the physics department there during the summers of 1941-42. Mr. Flake had completed a year as instructor of physics at the Carmi, Ill., high school before reporting at Tech.

FARMER BELIEVES FIVE DAYS ENOUGH

NORTH GREENBUSH, N. Y., Sept. 18.—(AP)—A five-day week is enough for any farmer, Clarence S. Wendell maintains, citing his own case.

Told by a doctor two years ago that he was working too hard, Wendell began devising ways to cut down. Now he's making more money than he used to, he says, and he feels well.

"You take a thing like getting the cows in the barn in the morning," he said. "Cows aren't on war time, and if you try to get them in from the pasture before sunrise, they just lie there and look at you. Takes an hour to get them up and inside. So I sleep an extra hour and go out at 7 o'clock and they're waiting to come in."

Besides streamlining his 150-acre farm to one of 80 acres, Wendell cut his dairy herd from 23 to 11 cows and, to save repairing fences, had all his fields enclosed with single electrified strands.

He lays off on Wednesday and Sunday, except for milking and taking care of 400 chickens. He says he doesn't consider that work.

HARVEY RICHARDSON FACES NEW CHARGES

Arrested Saturday by local police officers is Harvey Richardson who was caught late that night hiding behind an inner door of a local residence, police said.

Dresser drawers in the room had been rifled, left open and contents scattered when police arrived, it was said. A phone call came from the residence at 11:15.

A second telephone call came from another residence which described an attempt at entering the home. The man who tried to enter was described as wearing a brown coat, light colored shirt, blue trousers. The man was bare-headed, with black hair. This is an exact description of Richardson, who is being held in the parish jail awaiting trial at the next term of district court, officers said.

Richardson was arrested early in July of this year, police said, on a charge of theft of $11. On July 16 he was brought before the court and pleaded guilty to the charge. He was sentenced to time served in jail and released at the end of 30 days on the promise he would enter the armed forces.

He has since been rejected by the army and returned to Monroe.

War Girl Of The Week

MRS. MILDRED S. HICKMAN

Mrs. Mildred S. Hickman is the daughter of Mrs. J. P. Spoon, Burlington, N. C.

Mrs. Hickman was born in Burlington and attended grammar and high school there. She graduated from the Burlington High school in June, 1935. During her high school years she was a member of the National Honorary society.

After her graduation from high school she completed two years in the Mars Hill Junior college, Mars Hill, N. C. She then matriculated in the Woman's college of the University of North Carolina and received her B. S. degree in secretarial administration in 1939.

Upon completion of her college training Mildred accepted a position with the Cherokee Flooring corporation, Burlington. She was employed by this concern for three years.

On March 4, 1942, Mrs. Hickman was married to Julian B. Hickman, now a sergeant in the 922nd Guard squadron, Selman field.

She accepted a position with the 78th Sub-Depot, Selman field on Nov. 25, 1942 where she is employed as secretary to Mr. Beasley, chief clerk, Sub-Depot Supply office.

She has taken great interest in her work and has been a credit to the Sub-Depot as a whole.

NEGRO BOY HELD FOR SHOPLIFTING

Dave Cheffie, 15-year-old negro boy living at 513 North 12th street here in Monroe, was arrested Friday on a charge of shoplifting at Montgomery Ward and company.

The boy was caught in the act of stealing a purse valued at $2.98, and is a habitual offender, according to B. L. Brantley, chief of police. The boy is being held in the parish jail, due to the absence of a colored juvenile home, it was said.

BELIEVES THIS WAR TOUGHER

Meuse-Argonne Sector Of 1918 Is Termed 'Pushover'

By J. Norman Lodge

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Any veteran of World war One making his debut in this one, either on the European or south Pacific front, would get the shock of his life. And then he'd most likely return to his grandchildren with a revised estimate of the hardships he went through.

Without doubt the toughest sector of the war of 1918 was the Meuse-Argonne. It was a pushover. Any one of the "minor" campaigns of the south Pacific was tougher.

While we had about everything we needed in World War One, there being less obstacles to overcome to transport materiel; in the South Pacific after 20 months at war, we are only now beginning to get a reserve of supplies.

Distance, shipping and the fact that most of the war effort to date has been directed toward Europe has made the south Pacific the step-child of the entire war area. Even the southwest Pacific is better off, for that sector is almost entirely supplied by Australia and New Zealand.

Until quite recently everything for the south Pacific has had to come from our own west coast. Now, with a surplus of frozen meat available from Australia, some of it is being diverted to the south Pacific. Both Australia and New Zealand have favorable trade balances under lend-lease, the only two countries of the British commonwealth in such position.

In the early days of the Guadalcanal campaign there were times when we didn't have enough high octane fuel to put fighter planes in the air. There, too, were times when we were down to six serviceable planes. It got so bad on one occasion that gasoline was being siphoned from transport planes for use in fighting craft.

Then, with the Japs chased off Guadalcanal, supplies began to mount up. Reserve ration dumps were established, and materiel dispersed so that one bombing raid would not knock out our supplies in one fell swoop.

The planning for the New Georgia campaign was done with all the mistakes made on Guadalcanal taken into consideration. Hence, when we moved on Rendova, May 30, we had enough material along to maintain combat units for weeks to come.

But new mistakes cropped up. The unloading was done quickly so that the cargo vessels could get out of the area before dark. As a result most of the food, most of the ammunition and practically all of the medical supplies were simply dumped on the beach, prey to the first bombing raid the Nips decided to send over.

And over they did come, with disastrous results for us. But as a result of the mistakes made on Rendova, with a loss of much of the carefully planned for supplies, the same mistakes were not made when we visited Vella Lavella.

There, as the ships were unloaded, the materiel was dispersed as it was unloaded. One ton under this tree, a ton under that tree, vehicles scattered over a wide area and the fuel for bull dozers, gasoline for high compression motors and spare parts were distributed over the entire beachhead.

Repeated bombing raids, with the exception of their nuisance value, failed to damage much materiel, thus aiding our troops and our navy in that less trips were necessary to replenish ruined supplies, releasing cargo carriers for other much needed work.

Troop dispersal on Rendova was badly managed, too, with many casualties resulting when the raids began. Tents were set up with guy ropes criss-crossing, so close were they grouped. When the terrific raid of July 2 was over we had too many casualties—casualties we wouldn't have had with proper dispersal.

As a result, the Vella Lavella dispersal of troops was excellently carried out and the casualty lists were much smaller.

That, of course, is learning the hard way, but at least we learn.

For instance, green troops lacking any combat experience, in addition to being "trigger happy," firing at the least movement in the jungles, also must learn that emergency ratios are for a specific purpose. Too many of them have carelessly thrown away their "C" rations, relying on "D" ration to sustain them.

The "D" ration is an energized slab of hard chocolate. It has a very definite place in the rationing scheme of things. It is light in weight and easy to carry. But it must be eaten over a space of time. It is not something to munch on for the sake of munching.

Eaten too fast, it has bad effects. And a repeated diet of it can cause two reactions—dysentery or constipation. The men have learned that—the hard way—and their information on the subject will be passed on, by word of mouth, to replacements.

You can tell the seasoned jungle fighter as against the neophyte by watching eating habits. The veteran will be opening a can of "C" ration, the rookie will be munching his "D" ration chocolate.

War is changing in respect to supplying combat troops too. Logistics were never mentioned in World War One. In this war every campaign, every movement of troops and every evacuation of wounded and sick is predicated on logistics—the amount of supplies necessary to properly feed, arm, and move a certain number of troops with a minimum of waste.

For every man we place in the front line we require six men in the service command to maintain him. And for every man in the service command we require an additional six in various other branches of the services—navy, merchant marine and executive, to make it possible for the first six to support the one fighting man.

And, with distances up to half way around the world to be negotiated, stress must be placed on such arithmetical equations.

War has progressed in such measure over the past 20 years it no longer is a rule of thumb, hit or miss affair. It now is slide rule.

After every separate campaign—after Guadalcanal, New Georgia, Vella Lavella, statistics were broken down to find where six cargo bottoms could be used to carry the same amount of supplies that required seven on the previous movement.

If that one bottom is saved it is one less target for a bomber, it is one additional bottom that can be utilized in transporting other materiel that had to remain at base.

We have learned much since Pearl Harbor. We have learned that war, like a woman's mind, is constantly changing. But:

Louisiana Tech To Have Additions To Faculty

RUSTON, La., Sept. 18.—(Special)—Two additional appointments to the Louisiana Tech teaching staff—one each in the physics and mathematics departments—have been announced by Dr. Claybrook Cottingham, president.

Lester M. Garrison of Joplin, Mo., has been appointed assistant professor of mathematics, filling the vacancy left by Dr. Frank C. Gentry, resigned.

Mr. Garrison has had several years of teaching experience and has specialized in mathematics and science. He received his bachelor of science degree from Central Missouri State Teachers' college of Warrensburg, Mo., in 1926, and his master of arts at the University of Missouri, Columbia, in 1933. He completed requirements for his master of education degree in 1939 at Peabody college.

The new mathematics teacher is a former head of the mathematics department at Snead Junior college, Boaz, Ala., having held that position from 1935 to 1939.

Golden A. Flake of Toledo, Ohio, has begun his duties here as acting instructor of physics.

Mr. Flake obtained his bachelor of arts degree in 1933 from East Illinois State college at Charleston, Ill. He has done graduate work at Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill., and was a graduate assistant in the physics department there during the summers of 1941-42. Mr. Flake had completed a year as instructor of physics at the Carmi, Ill., high school before reporting at Tech.

FARMER BELIEVES FIVE DAYS ENOUGH

NORTH GREENBUSH, N. Y., Sept. 18.—(AP)—A five-day week is enough for any farmer, Clarence S. Wendell maintains, citing his own case.

Told by a doctor two years ago that he was working too hard, Wendell began devising ways to cut down. Now he's making more money than he used to, he says, and he feels well.

"You take a thing like getting the cows in the barn in the morning," he said. "Cows aren't on war time, and if you try to get them in from the pasture before sunrise, they just lie there and look at you. Takes an hour to get them up and inside. So I sleep an extra hour and go out at 7 o'clock and they're waiting to come in."

Besides streamlining his 150-acre farm to one of 80 acres, Wendell cut his dairy herd from 23 to 11 cows and, to save repairing fences, had all his fields enclosed with single electrified strands.

He lays off on Wednesday and Sunday, except for milking and taking care of 400 chickens. He says he doesn't consider that work.

HARVEY RICHARDSON FACES NEW CHARGES

Arrested Saturday by local police officers is Harvey Richardson who was caught late that night hiding behind an inner door of a local residence, police said.

Dresser drawers in the room had been rifled, left open and contents scattered when police arrived, it was said. A phone call came from the residence at 11:15.

A second telephone call came from another residence which described an attempt at entering the home. The man who tried to enter was described as wearing a brown coat, light colored shirt, blue trousers. The man was bare-headed, with black hair. This is an exact description of Richardson, who is being held in the parish jail awaiting trial at the next term of district court, officers said.

Richardson was arrested early in July of this year, police said, on a charge of theft of $11. On July 16 he was brought before the court and pleaded guilty to the charge. He was sentenced to time served in jail and released at the end of 30 days on the promise he would enter the armed forces.

He has since been rejected by the army and returned to Monroe.

War Girl Of The Week

MRS. MILDRED S. HICKMAN

Mrs. Mildred S. Hickman is the daughter of Mrs. J. P. Spoon, Burlington, N. C.

Mrs. Hickman was born in Burlington and attended grammar and high school there. She graduated from the Burlington High school in June, 1935. During her high school years she was a member of the National Honorary society.

After her graduation from high school she completed two years in the Mars Hill Junior college, Mars Hill, N. C. She then matriculated in the Woman's college of the University of North Carolina and received her B. S. degree in secretarial administration in 1939.

Upon completion of her college training Mildred accepted a position with the Cherokee Flooring corporation, Burlington. She was employed by this concern for three years.

On March 4, 1942, Mrs. Hickman was married to Julian B. Hickman, now a sergeant in the 922nd Guard squadron, Selman field.

She accepted a position with the 78th Sub-Depot, Selman field on Nov. 25, 1942 where she is employed as secretary to Mr. Beasley, chief clerk, Sub-Depot Supply office.

She has taken great interest in her work and has been a credit to the Sub-Depot as a whole.

NEGRO BOY HELD FOR SHOPLIFTING

Dave Cheffie, 15-year-old negro boy living at 512 North 12th street here in Monroe, was arrested Friday on a charge of shoplifting at Montgomery Ward and company.

The boy was caught in the act of stealing a purse valued at $2.98, and is a habitual offender, according to B. L. Brantley, chief of police. The boy is being held in the parish jail, due to the absence of a colored juvenile home, it was said.

BELIEVES THIS WAR TOUGHER

By J. Norman Lodge

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Any veteran of World war One making his debut in this one, either on the European or south Pacific front, would get the shock of his life. And then he'd most likely return to his grandchildren with a revised estimate of the hardships he went through.

Without doubt the toughest sector of the war of 1918 was the Meuse-Argonne. It was a pushover. Any one of the "minor" campaigns of the south Pacific was tougher.

While we had about everything we needed in World War One, there being less obstacles to overcome to transport materiel; in the South Pacific after 20 months at war, we are only now beginning to get a reserve of supplies.

Distance, shipping and the fact that most of the war effort to date has been directed toward Europe has made the south Pacific the step-child of the entire war area. Even the southwest Pacific is better off, for that sector is almost entirely supplied by Australia and New Zealand.

Until quite recently everything for the south Pacific has had to come from our own west coast. Now, with a surplus of frozen meat available from Australia, some of it is being diverted to the south Pacific. Both Australia and New Zealand have favorable trade balances under lend-lease, the only two countries of the British commonwealth in such position.

In the early days of the Guadalcanal campaign there were times when we didn't have enough high octane fuel to put fighter planes in the air. There, too, were times when we were down to six serviceable planes. It got so bad on one occasion that gasoline was being siphoned from transport planes for use in fighting craft.

Then, with the Japs chased off Guadalcanal, supplies began to mount up. Reserve ration dumps were established, and materiel dispersed so that one bombing raid would not knock out our supplies in one fell swoop.

The planning for the New Georgia campaign was done with all the mistakes made on Guadalcanal taken into consideration. Hence, when we moved on Rendova, May 30, we had enough material along to maintain combat units for weeks to come.

But new mistakes cropped up. The unloading was done quickly so that the cargo vessels could get out of the area before dark. As a result most of the food, most of the ammunition and practically all of the medical supplies were simply dumped on the beach, prey to the first bombing raid the Nips decided to send over.

And over they did come, with disastrous results for us. But as a result of the mistakes made on Rendova, with a loss of much of the carefully planned for supplies, the same mistakes were not made when we visited Vella Lavella.

There, as the ships were unloaded, the materiel was dispersed as it was unloaded. One ton under this tree, a ton under that tree, vehicles scattered over a wide area and the fuel for bull dozers, gasoline for high compression motors and spare parts were distributed over the entire beachhead.

Repeated bombing raids, with the exception of their nuisance value, failed to damage much materiel, thus aiding our troops and our navy in that less trips were necessary to replenish ruined supplies, releasing cargo carriers for other much needed work.

Troop dispersal on Rendova was badly managed, too, with many casualties resulting when the raids began. Tents were set up with guy ropes criss-crossing, so close were they grouped. When the terrific raid of July 2 was over we had too many casualties—casualties we wouldn't have had with proper dispersal.

As a result, the Vella Lavella dispersal of troops was excellently carried out and the casualty lists were much smaller.

That, of course, is learning the hard way, but at least we learn.

miral who landed them one evening last week south of Rome.

It was agreed that, to divert suspicion from onlookers, they would be treated as if they were American airmen picked up from a wrecked plane in the Mediterranean. And on their arrival at Gaeta they hurried down the gangplank into a waiting navy limosine, while groups of Italian sailors stood at the docks and watched interestedly.

Driving a few miles into the country, the car turned into a tree-lined lane and stopped sharply. A few feet ahead was another car with frosted glass windows.

Taylor, Gardiner and the escorting officer quickly climbed into the second car.

During the two hour drive to Rome Taylor spotted only four German soldiers but noted many signs pointing off the main roads to German establishments.

Just before nightfall, they reached Rome and were driven into the courtyard of a certain building where comfortable quarters had been prepared.

The Italians had planned a leisurely schedule for the Americans, but the latter insisted upon seeing the Italian generals immediately. The Americans also insisted upon seeing Marshal Badoglio at once.

The Italians first said it would be impossible to disturb the old marshal after midnight, since he was already asleep several hours but they finally yielded to the Americans' insistence and telephoned Badoglio's aide and he made an appointment.

Cautiously, the Italian officers scouted outside the building and reported the coast clear. No German soldiers or automobiles were in sight. Taylor and Gardiner ducked quickly into the limousine. They were wearing trenchcoats with fatigue caps stuck in their pockets, as they sat next to the worried Italian general.

With lights dimmed, the car crept through Rome's blacked-out streets for a quarter-mile, when suddenly a sentry challenged. The car halted and the sentry walked over, flashed a light into the back seat of the car. The Italian general, feigning casualness, which certainly he did not feel, produced credentials which satisfied the sentry and he allowed them to proceed.

This was repeated seven or eight times en route to Badoglio's home. Taylor and Gardiner were too concerned about reaching Badoglio to be worried over their personal safety. The Italians, however, were highly nervous, fearing discovery would mean they would be executed as well as the Americans, who had no illusions that their uniforms could save them from death if they fell into German hands.

Badoglio, in civilian clothes, received the Americans in the study of his ornate villa. The marshal, whose personal situation was highly dangerous because of the armistice plans, looked very tired and old.

A brief and pointed conversation followed, at the end of which Badoglio took Taylor's hand and, with tears in his eyes, said:

"I swear on my honor and my 55 years as a soldier my loyalty to the Allied cause."

Taylor and Gardiner were driven back to their quarters again but were stopped frequently en route by Italian sentries. Taylor then hurriedly wrote a message to send by previously arranged (radio) communications. He and Gardiner then settled down to await further instructions from General Dwight D. Eisenhower.

METHODIST CHURCH BUYS ANOTHER BOND

The building council of the First Methodist church of Monroe announced Saturday that the goal to raise an additional $5,000 since May 9 has been exceeded, and contributions continue to come in. As a result the council purchased a $5,000 government bond, series G, thus bringing its war bond investment to $57,000 to date. F. L. Jones, left, is shown purchasing the bond from J. S. Washburn at the Central Savings Bank and Trust company in the above photo.

The success of the September reckoning day is accredited to two sources in particular the third war loan drive in which the congregation is investing all funds raised until the time when construction of an educational building is possible, and secondly, the enthusiasm of the children and young people of the church school in the use of small banks for contributions. While their report last Sunday was short of its goal of $1,000, four departments of the church school exceeded their goals and a large number of banks not yet turned in are expected to come in today.

The second goal set by the building council to have every member listed on "the scroll of builders" is nearer realization as new contributions continue to be received, it was said.

The council appreciates the fine cooperation shown by the congregation in this second reckoning day for 1943, members of the council said.

WAR'S PROGRESS

singled out by name for criticism. And only 11 congressmen—most of them Democrats—mentioned it.

Most of the legislators reported they had received no complaints about the way manpower has been handled and distributed although at the moment manpower is one of the nation's most critical problems with the war department urging a labor draft.

Only three — all Democrats — commented on the possibility of a father draft at all and they said their people hoped it would not be necessary but believed the military leaders "know best."

One southern Democrat said his people "view with alarm the continued rapid growth of government agencies." and several were critical of the number of persons on federal payrolls.

Only a handful of the legislators—seven altogether and almost all of them from the east—reported their people had indicated marked interest in post-war planning for a lasting peace through international cooperation or any other means.

more pronounced, daily particularly in Louisiana" where the following additional personnel are needed: "230 for maintenance of way, 35 maintenance of equipment, 35 trainmen, 25 station employes."

The others told much the same story for specific industries in the area, citing their shortages and urging that at least the recruiting be stopped. McKenzie commented: "I think I've got it nailed down now."

AMERICANS DOWN

ton enemy freighter has been hit by aerial bombardment.

(Tying in with development of the aerial slugging matches in the Solomons were reports from the south Pacific by a spokesman for Admiral William F. Halsey that 58 Japanese planes had been destroyed during the first 15 days of September for an advantage over United States losses of four to one.)

Heavy and medium bombers, dive bombers and torpedo bombers, escorted by fighters, delivered the latest attack on enemy airdromes in the Buin-Faisi sector.

A motor transport was destroyed. Six parked planes were wrecked. These were in addition to the 14 shot down. Three American fighters were lost.

One of the Japanese raiders of Munda was brought down by antiaircraft fire. All three raids there occurred at night.

American Mitchells made another of their almost daily strikes at the isolated Japanese garrison of Vila on southern Kolombangara.

RUSSIAN TROOPS

threat was more distant, but a surprise dash which swamped a Nazi rearguard resulted in a 12-mile Red army advance that cut the Kiev-Poltava railway at Mirgorod, 135 miles from Kiev and 50 miles northwest of Poltava.

Another threat to the lower German Dnieper river line developed when the Russians seized the town and railway junction of Pavlograd on the road to Dnieperopetrovsk.

Soviet troops first cracked German defenses on the Samara and Volchya rivers, wedged themselves into enemy formations and then swept on to fierce street engagements inside Pavlograd. A regiment of German infantry was wiped out, the bulletin said.

Autumn rain was hindering both the attack and the defense in this key sector.

The capture of Poltava put the Russians nearest the Dnieper which bends far to the east in lower Russia. Already the Red army's guns were audible at Dnieperopetrovsk, where $110,000,000 dam was dynamited by the Russians themselves on Aug. 28, 1941 during their scorched earth retreat.

The communique told of these triumphs amid a chorus of pessimistic German admissions relayed from Stockholm, Madrid and even Berlin itself.

Stockholm reports said Germany was withdrawing elite troops from the Russian front to reinforce Italy and retreating to save its men for fighting on other fronts. Madrid suggested the Germans might adandon their Russian campaign and fall back 620 miles to the Polish frontier.

In Berlin, Captain Ludwig Sertorious, German radio commentator, said frankly that the Germans were retreating in Russia to spare their forces and "it is not yet clear where and when" the retreat will halt.

JAMES NOE

through disruption of the solid South.

"This effort on the part of Governor Jones, at such a critical period in our nation's history, I brand as deliberately unpatriotic and dangerous! To defeat this effort, it becomes the patriotic duty of every loyal Louisianian to unite, firmly and courageously, so that we may win the war, and preserve our dearest and most cherished heritage—our Democratic way of life!

"As the first step toward uniting Louisiana and promoting harmony and eliminating political disunity, I hereby announce my withdrawal as a candidate for governor in the January primary. I believe I would have made the people of Louisiana a good governor. I have served our people as state senator, president pro tem of the senate, lieutenant governor, and governor of Louisiana. But, once before having served as a private soldier, and as a commissioned officer in the ranks of our armed forces, and knowing by actual experience how important it is to have unity of action, I have decided to sacrifice my desire to be governor and aid in defeating the efforts of Sam Jones or anyone else who would bring injury to our state and nation.

"In withdrawing from the gubernatorial primary, I urge all Louisianians to give serious thought to the all-important problem of winning the war. There should be no bitter political campaign to mar this effort. I invite any other equally patriotic candidates to join with me in this, and I urge members of every political faction in the state who are opposed to the cold, calculating and unpatriotic efforts of Governor Jones to join in defeating his hand-picked candidate.

"This is a call to action! Let us unite, and save Louisiana from the danger of a bitter political campaign that would interfere with the war effort.

"Elect as your next governor a man who will think, act and work for the people of Louisiana and preserve the principles of Democracy. Lets not permit Sam Jones, or any candidate who is his stooge, to destroy Democracy in Louisiana."

SCHOOLS WILL AGAIN RESUME

All But Parish Colored System To Start Fall Studies

Public schools of the Twin Cities will re-open for the fall term on Monday, following the long summer vacation which was initiated about the first of June.

There will be a number of new faces in the teaching staff caused by wartime conditions but every possible effort is being observed to get the pupils back to school as it is regarded that education is a prime requisite in war as well as in peace.

The list of teachers for both the parish and city school systems has been published the past week.

While the white and colored schools of Monroe will all re-open Monday, the colored schools of the Ouachita parish system will not re-open until October 11, which is to afford opportunity for cotton picking by the boys and girls in rural sections.

St. Matthew's Catholic school started its fall classes last week as did the Northeast Junior college. Classes at the Louisiana Training institute are already in progress, having been started last Monday.

miral who landed them one evening last week south of Rome.

It was agreed that, to divert suspicion from onlookers, they would be treated as if they were American airmen picked up from a wrecked plane in the Mediterranean. And on their arrival at Gaeta they hurried down the gangplank into a waiting navy limosine, while groups of Italian sailors stood at the docks and watched interestedly.

Driving a few miles into the country, the car turned into a tree-lined lane and stopped sharply. A few feet ahead was another car with frosted glass windows.

Taylor, Gardiner and the escorting officer quickly climbed into the second car.

During the two hour drive to Rome Taylor spotted only four German soldiers but noted many signs pointing off the main roads to German establishments.

Just before nightfall, they reached Rome and were driven into the courtyard of a certain building where comfortable quarters had been prepared.

The Italians had planned a leisurely schedule for the Americans, but the latter insisted upon seeing the Italian generals immediately. The Americans also insisted upon seeing Marshal Badoglio at once.

The Italians first said it would be impossible to disturb the old marshal after midnight, since he was already asleep several hours but they finally yielded to the Americans' insistence and telephoned Badoglio's aide and he made an appointment.

Cautiously, the Italian officers scouted outside the building and reported the coast clear. No German soldiers or automobiles were in sight. Taylor and Gardiner ducked quickly into the limousine. They were wearing trenchcoats with fatigue caps stuck in their pockets, as they sat next to the worried Italian general.

With lights dimmed, the car crept through Rome's blacked-out streets for a quarter-mile, when suddenly a sentry challenged. The car halted and the sentry walked over, flashed a light into the back seat of the car. The Italian general, feigning casualness, which certainly he did not feel, produced credentials which satisfied the sentry and he allowed them to proceed.

This was repeated seven or eight times en route to Badoglio's home. Taylor and Gardiner were too concerned about reaching Badoglio to be worried over their personal safety. The Italians, however, were highly nervous, fearing discovery would mean they would be executed as well as the Americans, who had no illusions that their uniforms could save them from death if they fell into German hands.

Badoglio, in civilian clothes, received the Americans in the study of his ornate villa. The marshal, whose personal situation was highly dangerous because of the armistice plans, looked very tired and old.

A brief and pointed conversation followed, at the end of which Badoglio took Taylor's hand and, with tears in his eyes, said:

"I swear on my honor and my 55 years as a soldier my loyalty to the Allied cause."

Taylor and Gardiner were driven back to their quarters again but were stopped frequently en route by Italian sentries. Taylor then hurriedly wrote a message to send by previously arranged (radio) communications. He and Gardiner then settled down to await further instructions from General Dwight D. Eisenhower.

METHODIST CHURCH BUYS ANOTHER BOND

The building council of the First Methodist church of Monroe announced Saturday that the goal to raise an additional $5,000 since May 9 has been exceeded, and contributions continue to come in. As a result the council purchased a $5,000 government bond, series G, thus bringing its war bond investment to $57,000 to date. F. L. Jones, left, is shown purchasing the bond from J. S. Washburn at the Central Savings Bank and Trust company in the above photo.

The success of the September reckoning day is accredited to two sources in particular the third war loan drive in which the congregation is investing all funds raised until the time when construction of an educational building is possible, and secondly, the enthusiasm of the children and young people of the church school in the use of small banks for contributions. While their report last Sunday was short of its goal of $1,000, four departments of the church school exceeded their goals and a large number of banks not yet turned in are expected to come in today.

The second goal set by the building council to have every member listed on "the scroll of builders" is nearer realization as new contributions continue to be received, it was said.

The council appreciates the fine cooperation shown by the congregation in this second reckoning day for 1943, members of the council said.

singled out by name for criticism. And only 11 congressmen—most of them Democrats—mentioned it.

Most of the legislators reported they had received no complaints about the way manpower has been handled and distributed although at the moment manpower is one of the nation's most critical problems with the war department urging a labor draft.

Only three — all Democrats — commented on the possibility of a father draft at all and they said their people hoped it would not be necessary but believed the military leaders "know best."

One southern Democrat said his people "view with alarm the continued rapid growth of government agencies," and several were critical of the number of persons on federal payrolls.

Only a handful of the legislators—seven altogether and almost all of them from the east—reported their people had indicated marked interest in post-war planning for a lasting peace through international cooperation or any other means.

The others told much the same story for specific industries in the area, citing their shortages and urging that at least the recruiting be stopped. McKenzie commented: "I think I've got it nailed down now."

ton enemy freighter has been hit by aerial bombardment.

(Tying in with development of the aerial slugging matches in the Solomons were reports from the south Pacific by a spokesman for Admiral William F. Halsey that 58 Japanese planes had been destroyed during the first 15 days of September for an advantage over United States losses of four to one.)

Heavy and medium bombers, dive bombers and torpedo bombers, escorted by fighters, delivered the latest attack on enemy airdromes in the Buin-Faisi sector.

A motor transport was destroyed. Six parked planes were wrecked. These were in addition to the 14 shot down. Three American fighters were lost.

One of the Japanese raiders of Munda was brought down by antiaircraft fire. All three raids there occurred at night.

American Mitchells made another of their almost daily strikes at the isolated Japanese garrison of Vila on southern Kolombangara.

RUSSIAN TROOPS

threat was more distant, but a surprise dash which swamped a Nazi rearguard resulted in a 12-mile Red army advance that cut the Kiev-Poltava railway at Mirgorod, 135 miles from Kiev and 50 miles northwest of Poltava.

Another threat to the lower German Dnieper river line developed when the Russians seized the town and railway junction of Pavlograd on the road to Dnieperopetrovsk.

Soviet troops first cracked German defenses on the Samara and Volchya rivers, wedged themselves into enemy formations and then swept on to fierce street engagements inside Pavlograd. A regiment of German infantry was wiped out, the bulletin said.

Autumn rain was hindering both the attack and the defense in this key sector.

The capture of Poltava put the Russians nearest the Dnieper which bends far to the east in lower Russia. Already the Red army's guns were audible at Dnieperopetrovsk, whose $110,000,000 dam was dynamited by the Russians themselves on Aug. 28, 1941 during their scorched earth retreat.

The communique told of these triumphs amid a chorus of pessimistic German admissions relayed from Stockholm, Madrid and even Berlin itself.

Stockholm reports said Germany was withdrawing elite troops from the Russian front to reinforce Italy and retreating to save its men for fighting on other fronts. Madrid suggested the Germans might adandon their Russian campaign and fall back 620 miles to the Polish frontier.

In Berlin, Captain Ludwig Sertorious, German radio commentator, said frankly that the Germans were retreating in Russia to spare their forces and "it is not yet clear where and when" the retreat will halt.

"This effort on the part of Governor Jones, at such a critical period in our nation's history, I brand as deliberately unpatriotic and dangerous! To defeat this effort, it becomes the patriotic duty of every loyal Louisianian to unite, firmly and courageously, so that we may win the war, and preserve our dearest and most cherished heritage—our Democratic way of life!

"As the first step toward uniting Louisiana and promoting harmony and eliminating political disunity, I hereby announce my withdrawal as a candidate for governor in the January primary. I believe I would have made the people of Louisiana a good governor. I have served our people as state senator, president pro tem of the senate, lieutenant governor, and governor of Louisiana. But, once before having served as a private soldier, and as a commissioned officer in the ranks of our armed forces, and knowing by actual experience how important it is to have unity of action, I have decided to sacrifice my desire to be governor and aid in defeating the efforts of Sam Jones or anyone else who would bring injury to our state and nation.

"In withdrawing from the gubernatorial primary, I urge all Louisianians to give serious thought to the all-important problem of winning the war. There should be no bitter political campaign to mar this effort. I invite any other equally patriotic candidates to join with me in this, and I urge members of every political faction in the state who are opposed to the cold, calculating and unpatriotic efforts of Governor Jones to join in defeating his hand-picked candidate.

SOCIAL AGENCY COUNCIL MEETS

Juvenile Delinquency In Many Phases Given Consideration

That Monroe vitally needs a juvenile court as well as the two juvenile officers recently named here, was urged by members of the Council of Social Agencies at their monthly dinner held in the USO rooms, Friday noon, and served by the NCCS committee. At the suggestion of members, President A. B. Clarkson named three on an advisory committee to work with the juvenile officers. They are Miss Myrtle E. Rodgers, Mrs. C. E. Faulk and Paul Armstrong.

The larger part of the meeting was devoted to panel discussions in which participants were: Miss Myrtle E. Rodgers, of the Twin Cities P.-T. A. juvenile committe; Mrs. Barbara Thies, of the welfare department; Mrs. Lilah Graves, child welfare consultant of the state department; and Paul J. Armstrong, superintendent of the Louisiana Training institute. The speakers were presented by A. N. Robinson, program chairman.

Miss Rodgers cited facts and figures of juvenile delinquency and its increase in wartime. She said that in this country the previous year showed a crime decrease of three per cent among boys 18-21 years of age, but that among girls of this age it has increased 55.7 per cent. She said lack of proper home training is largely responsible. She outlined the need for youth to be actively engaged in a physical manner as well as mental. Freedom to develop she asserted is the right of every growing child.

Mrs. Thies outlined the accomplishments of the juvenile protective committee which has been composed of Miss Rodgers, Mrs. C. K. Crandall and Mrs. T. L. Morris. It is expected to be greatly expanded numerically. This group met all through the summer and studied gaps in the civic program and initiated work of varied nature. The question of naming a travelers' aid, was considered, in which Mrs. Fred Thatcher and Mrs. Crandall were specially interested. A nursery for the care of kiddies by day when mothers worked, was also discussed. Mrs. Mildred Coates was on a committee to consider this matter. Also need for a visiting teacher was discussed. It was urged that a child guidance committee be named to be concerned with hygiene for the maladjusted child.

Mrs. Graves spoke of the family consulting service as an aid to juvenile officers.

Mrs. Thies named as the most vital achievement of Miss Rodgers' committee, the suggested budget for juvenile officers. The committee met with mayors and judges of the Twin Cities, and as a result two juvenile officials have been recently named, Miss Mary Hodge and L. V. Tarver.

Miss Jean Bonham, of the parish department of public welfare, discussed the care of juvenile offenders while the court has charge of their cases and she urged that they be provided for in homes rather than to be consigned to jails where stigmas will follow through their later lives.

Paul Armstrong stated that if a juvenile court is required here, all that is needed is that a city have 25,000 people, that a request for such official be made in proper channels and that provision for the maintaining of a judge be secured and that one be named.

The group expressed thanks to the women for the unusually satisfactory meal that was served.

DEADLINE MONDAY FOR N. J. C. CREDIT

Monday, September 20 is the last day for persons to enroll in classes for credit at Northeast Junior college, Dean C. C. Colvert announced Saturday. With prospects for several additional students, the dean was optimistic over registration for the fall quarter.

Total figures will be given following the Monday deadline for enrollment for regular day classes. In addition to civilian students, the college already has registered 200 students who are participating in the army specialized training program and 50 army flight students. Fifty more men are scheduled to arrive during the first week in October for training in the army flight program. F. L. Severance is chief flight instructor and Lewis Slater is ground school instructor.

BRING INFLATION TALKS TO PUBLIC

PERSIAN HEAT OFTEN TOPS 150 DEGREES, CAPTAIN SAYS

Harold Davis, West Monroe Man In Service, Writes Of Experiences

An interesting letter was received by Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Davis, West Monroe, from their son, Captain Harold E. Davis, in the army auditing department in Iran (Persia). The captain has many friends in the Twin Cities where he was raised and educated at Ouachita Parish High school, graduating in 1929 and from Georgia Tech in 1934.

The letter in part is as follows:

"In one of the hottest places in the world, the heat's on in the gulf and desert district and Americans arming and provisioning the Red army through the vital Iranian corridor can take it. Despite temperatures such as none of them experienced before, they are keeping up the schedule of deliveries to Soviet Rusisa over truck and rail routes with a surprisingly low rate of heat cases. Here where the weathermen would have no end of grim fun keeping hourly temperature records, there is little scientific recording yet, but an ordinary thermometer exposed in the afternoon easily tops 150 degrees Fahrenheit. Shade, it hovers over 120 degrees.

"Refrigeration is scarce, ice is a precious thing and there are no soft drinks. Rationed beer gave out before the heat really started. Crude air conditioning in field hospitals—the only air conditioning available—is considered successful when it keeps the temperature below a hundred. One ward of a hospital where I visited had a temperature of 99 degrees after the patients—beds and all—had been wet down with a hose from a water truck parked outside. They acted much like tenement kids under a stream from a fire hose, Persian Gulf Service command hospitals need fever thermometers of higher graduation than the regular 108-degree instruments because the temperature of heat victims is likely to run past 108 degrees, which already is 9.4 above normal. The treatment for heat cases is to bring the body temperature down as quickly as possible. Stricken men, under sheets or towels, are drenched with ice water, placed in front of electric fans and fed cold drinks.

"One hospital had an air-conditioned unit containing 24 beds where a temperature of 60 or 70 degrees may be maintained, but there is only one of them in Iran. The same hospital, in a place claiming the questionable distinction of being the hottest spot in the world, soon will move into air-conditioned buildings from half sunken quanset huts and double-roofed war tents. Apart from hosing with water, these structures are conditioned with fans and evaporative "desert coolers," screened frames loosely packed with excelsior, which is kept wet continually from drip cans. Through this the fans draw outside air. Fans have been virtually monopolized by the hospital. Most of the Persian Gulf Service command personnel lives now in thick-walled barracks, through 1,000 men are still under canvas.

"In the gulf and desert districts men work split shifts, spending the afternoons in their quarters. The best way to describe the heat is not with thermometer readings but with its effects. My typewriter, though in the shade, feels like a steam radiator in January. The touch of a belt buckle, collar ornament, or metal button to the bare flesh, even out of the sun, is enough to make a man jump as if with a 'hot foot.' Most men have put away the brass identification discs supposed to be worn around the neck. Men sleep naked, covered with wet towels, or with their mattresses soaked. A man can launder his shirt on the way to his shower, and don it, dry, when he has finished his bath. A cold shower is unknown. Heating tanks are unnecessary. Water standing in pipes must be run off before a shower to avoid scalding.

"The hot wind of the desert region burns the faces of men in locomotives or truck cabs and parches and chaps their lips. A man is likely to drink three or four gallons of water daily. Americans have adopted the native jugs which cool drinking water through evaporation, from their porous surfaces, and likewise the skin-shaped canvas water bags of British-Indian troops, Gunga Din model. With every drink, men are required to take one or two, five-grain salt tablets to preserve their saline balance against excessive loss of salt through perspiration. Sweat patches on clothing are always rimmed with a salt deposit, about the only benefit from the heat is the dearth of flies, which in June were so bad that men had to talk close-lipped to keep them from their mouths, and standing at attention was agony. The bugler who just blew the noon-time mess call near where I am writing had to dip the mouth piece in a glass of water before he could blow it. But he blew a good call and with a good response."

L. T. I. BOYS ARE GIVEN PEP TALK

City Judge Heard Gives Youths Encouraging Outlook

City Judge Jesse Heard, of West Monroe, was guest speaker at the first Friday night "pep meeting" held there and which exercises will be continued each week.

He was introduced by L. M. Lee, master-of-ceremonies. In connection with his address of informal nature, Judge Heard said in part:

"Some of the boys came here because you think you have been mistreated and you think the judge did you wrong. You aren't here to serve any definite time. You boys don't realize it now but in later years to come it will be of great benefit to you. The men in this institution are trying to help build yourselves up again. In my opinion, there is no such thing as a "bad boy." A so-called bad boy is one who has not had a good home. When the early settlers came over to our country, it made them think they had a great opportunity. You boys do have a great opportunity and I want you to realize that now. It was George Bernard Shaw who said youth is a wonderful thing to be wasted on children. It is not wasted. Youth is never wasted. The boys of today have something to do, as our nation is now in a great war. These men are the cream of our nation and you boys must think of them. When these boys fail to come back, it will be your opportunity to do something. You are the ones who are going to step in the lead.

"If we all have something in our minds that we are going to be when we become twenty-one then this will be the turning point in your life. To be someone, you have got to work toward a goal. Everyone must work to be someone.

"You boys aren't here for any certain length of time because when the judge sentences a boy to this institution, the time is indefinite. This is the most informative time of your life. This is the time for you to form good habits and see if you can get along with your friends. You must respect your neighbors and friends if you want them to do the same by you. To gain their confidence and respect you must work for that. Everybody respects a boy. You don't want to spend your time counting the days on the calendar. Everyone is willing to help you in every way. I am sure that every judge and official will go out of his way to help you."

NEW METHODS UP OUTPUT

New methods have been stepping up industrial production all along the line since the last war. Copper was mined at the rate of .4 tons per man-hour in 1918, 1.4 per man-hour in 1941. Three and three-quarters tons per man-day was the score on soft coal in 1918, 5 1-4 tons in 1942. And the output of the average industrial worker is now 2 1-3 times as much per hour as it was at the end of World War I.

In early times the island of Stromboli in the Mediterranean was believed the home of Aeolus, god of the winds.

Juvenile Delinquency In Many Phases Given Consideration

That Monroe vitally needs a juvenile court as well as the two juvenile officers recently named here, was urged by members of the Council of Social Agencies at their monthly dinner held in the USO rooms, Friday noon, and served by the NCCS committee. At the suggestion of members, President A. B. Clarkson named three on an advisory committee to work with the juvenile officers. They are Miss Myrtle E. Rodgers, Mrs. C. E. Faulk and Paul Armstrong.

The larger part of the meeting was devoted to panel discussions in which participants were: Miss Myrtle E. Rodgers, of the Twin Cities P.-T. A. juvenile committe; Mrs. Barbara Thies, of the welfare department; Mrs. Lilah Graves, child welfare consultant of the state department; and Paul J. Armstrong, superintendent of the Louisiana Training institute. The speakers were presented by A. N. Robinson, program chairman.

Miss Rodgers cited facts and figures of juvenile delinquency and its increase in wartime. She said that in this country the previous year showed a crime decrease of three per cent among boys 18-21 years of age, but that among girls of this age it has increased 55.7 per cent. She said lack of proper home training is largely responsible. She outlined the need for youth to be actively engaged in a physical manner as well as mental. Freedom to develop she asserted is the right of every growing child.

Mrs. Thies outlined the accomplishments of the juvenile protective committee which has been composed of Miss Rodgers, Mrs. C. K. Crandall and Mrs. T. L. Morris. It is expected to be greatly expanded numerically. This group met all through the summer and studied gaps in the civic program and initiated work of varied nature. The question of naming a travelers' aid, was considered, in which Mrs. Fred Thatcher and Mrs. Crandall were specially interested. A nursery for the care of kiddies by day when mothers worked, was also discussed. Mrs. Mildred Coates was on a committee to consider this matter. Also need for a visiting teacher was discussed. It was urged that a child guidance committee be named to be concerned with hygiene for the maladjusted child.

Mrs. Graves spoke of the family consulting service as an aid to juvenile officers.

Mrs. Thies named as the most vital achievement of Miss Rodgers' committee, the suggested budget for juvenile officers. The committee met with mayors and judges of the Twin Cities, and as a result two juvenile officials have been recently named, Miss Mary Hodge and L. V. Tarver.

Miss Jean Bonham, of the parish department of public welfare, discussed the care of juvenile offenders while the court has charge of their cases and she urged that they be provided for in homes rather than to be consigned to jails where stigmas will follow through their later lives.

Paul Armstrong stated that if a juvenile court is required here, all that is needed is that a city have 25,000 people, that a request for such official be made in proper channels and that provision for the maintaining of a judge be secured and that one be named.

The group expressed thanks to the women for the unusually satisfactory meal that was served.

DEADLINE MONDAY FOR N. J. C. CREDIT

Monday, September 20 is the last day for persons to enroll in classes for credit at Northeast Junior college, Dean C. C. Colvert announced Saturday. With prospects for several additional students, the dean was optimistic over registration for the fall quarter.

Total figures will be given following the Monday deadline for enrollment for regular day classes. In addition to civilian students, the college already has registered 200 students who are participating in the army specialized training program and 50 army flight students. Fifty more men are scheduled to arrive during the first week in October for training in the army flight program. F. L. Severance is chief flight instructor and Lewis Slater is ground school instructor.

BRING INFLATION TALKS TO PUBLIC

Harold Davis, West Monroe Man In Service, Writes Of Experiences

An interesting letter was received by Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Davis, West Monroe, from their son, Captain Harold E. Davis, in the army auditing department in Iran (Persia). The captain has many friends in the Twin Cities where he was raised and educated at Ouachita Parish High school, graduating in 1929 and from Georgia Tech in 1934.

The letter in part is as follows:

"In one of the hottest places in the world, the heat's on in the gulf and desert district and Americans arming and provisioning the Red army through the vital Iranian corridor can take it. Despite temperatures such as none of them experienced before, they are keeping up the schedule of deliveries to Soviet Rusisa over truck and rail routes with a surprisingly low rate of heat cases. Here where the weathermen would have no end of grim fun keeping hourly temperature records, there is little scientific recording yet, but an ordinary thermometer exposed in the afternoon easily tops 150 degrees Fahrenheit. Shade, it hovers over 120 degrees.

"Refrigeration is scarce, ice is a precious thing and there are no soft drinks. Rationed beer gave out before the heat really started. Crude air conditioning in field hospitals—the only air conditioning available—is considered successful when it keeps the temperature below a hundred. One ward of a hospital where I visited had a temperature of 99 degrees after the patients—beds and all—had been wet down with a hose from a water truck parked outside. They acted much like tenement kids under a stream from a fire hose, Persian Gulf Service command hospitals need fever thermometers of higher graduation than the regular 108-degree instruments because the temperature of heat victims is likely to run past 108 degrees, which already is 9.4 above normal. The treatment for heat cases is to bring the body temperature down as quickly as possible. Stricken men, under sheets or towels, are drenched with ice water, placed in front of electric fans and fed cold drinks.

"One hospital had an air-conditioned unit containing 24 beds where a temperature of 60 or 70 degrees may be maintained, but there is only one of them in Iran. The same hospital, in a place claiming the questionable distinction of being the hottest spot in the world, soon will move into air-conditioned buildings from half sunken quanset huts and double-roofed war tents. Apart from hosing with water, these structures are conditioned with fans and evaporative "desert coolers," screened frames loosely packed with excelsior, which is kept wet continually from drip cans. Through this the fans draw outside air. Fans have been virtually monopolized by the hospital. Most of the Persian Gulf Service command personnel lives now in thick-walled barracks, through 1,000 men are still under canvas.

"In the gulf and desert districts men work split shifts, spending the afternoons in their quarters. The best way to describe the heat is not with thermometer readings but with its effects. My typewriter, though in the shade, feels like a steam radiator in January. The touch of a belt buckle, collar ornament, or metal button to the bare flesh, even out of the sun, is enough to make a man jump as if with a 'hot foot.' Most men have put away the brass identification discs supposed to be worn around the neck. Men sleep naked, covered with wet towels, or with their mattresses soaked. A man can launder his shirt on the way to his shower, and don it, dry, when he has finished his bath. A cold shower is unknown. Heating tanks are unnecessary. Water standing in pipes must be run off before a shower to avoid scalding.

"The hot wind of the desert region burns the faces of men in locomotives or truck cabs and parches and chaps their lips. A man is likely to drink three or four gallons of water daily. Americans have adopted the native jugs which cool drinking water through evaporation, from their porous surfaces, and likewise the skin-shaped canvas water bags of British-Indian troops, Gunga Din model. With every drink, men are required to take one or two, five-grain salt tablets to preserve their saline balance against excessive loss of salt through perspiration. Sweat patches on clothing are always rimmed with a salt deposit, about the only benefit from the heat is the dearth of flies, which in June were so bad that men had to talk close-lipped to keep them from their mouths, and standing at attention was agony. The bugler who just blew the noon-time mess call near where I am writing had to dip the mouth piece in a glass of water before he could blow it. But he blew a good call and with a good response."

L. T. I. BOYS ARE GIVEN PEP TALK

City Judge Heard Gives Youths Encouraging Outlook

City Judge Jesse Heard, of West Monroe, was guest speaker at the first Friday night "pep meeting" held there and which exercises will be continued each week.

He was introduced by L. M. Lee, master-of-ceremonies. In connection with his address of informal nature, Judge Heard said in part:

"Some of the boys came here because you think you have been mistreated and you think the judge did you wrong. You aren't here to serve any definite time. You boys don't realize it now but in later years to come it will be of great benefit to you. The men in this institution are trying to help build yourselves up again. In my opinion, there is no such thing as a "bad boy." A so-called bad boy is one who has not had a good home. When the early settlers came over to our country, it made them think they had a great opportunity. You boys do have a great opportunity and I want you to realize that now. It was George Bernard Shaw whc said youth is a wonderful thing to be wasted on children. It is not wasted. Youth is never wasted. The boys of today have something to do, as our nation is now in a great war. These men are the cream of our nation and you boys must think of them. When these boys fail to come back, it will be your opportunity to do something. You are the ones who are going to step in the lead.

"If we all have something in our minds that we are going to be when we become twenty-one then this will be the turning point in your life. To be someone, you have got to work toward a goal. Everyone must work to be someone.

"You boys aren't here for any certain length of time because when the judge sentences a boy to this institution, the time is indefinite. This is the most informative time of your life. This is the time for you to form good habits and see if you can get along with your friends. You must respect your neighbors and friends if you want them to do the same by you. To gain their confidence and respect you must work for that. Everybody respects a boy. You don't want to spend your time counting the days on the calendar. Everyone is willing to help you in every way. I am sure that every judge and official will go out of his way to help you."

NEW METHODS UP OUTPUT

New methods have been stepping up industrial production all along the line since the last war. Copper was mined at the rate of .4 tons per man-hour in 1918, 1.4 per man-hour in 1941. Three and three-quarters tons per man-day was the score on soft coal in 1918, 5 1-4 tons in 1942. And the output of the average industrial worker is now 2 1-3 times as much per hour as it was at the end of World War I.

In early times the island of Stromboli in the Mediterranean was believed the home of Aeolus, god of the winds.

Wife Warned Not To Try Surprise Visit

Tell him to expect you. Travel light.

These are the tips emphasized by the national USO director of services to women and girls, army and navy wives visiting their husbands at camps or naval stations.

Surprise visits are impractical the serviceman may be transferred by the time his wife gets there, or he may have guard duty. Instead, wives are urged to make complete arrangements in advance and to make sure before they leave that a place to stay awaits them. A USO center is suggested as a meeting place for servicemen and wives.

A small suitcase which can be carried without help is a requisite. Packing space can be saved by wearing a suit and taking a change of blouses. Then, if there's no room for a street-length dress the suit will do for the USO dances or informal parties. A pair of stout walking shoes should be included for tours of the camp or station.

A sandwich in case the train is hours late and a magazine to while away long waits between trains will make travel easier. Taking pictures of the family along with you makes a serviceman's welcome all the more enthusiastic.

University Women To Meet On September 30

College Graduates Urged To Join Monroe Branch As Fall Activities Begin

Every eligible college graduate is urged to join the Monroe branch of the American Association of University Women or to transfer membership to the local branch. The first meeting will be Thursday, September 30, at 8 p.m., at the home of Mrs. C. C. Colvert on the Northeast Junior college campus.

The American Association of University Women is devoted to "practical work in education: Its purpose is to enhance the role of education in American life, and particularly to help college women to make vital use of their education.

In todays confusion and turmoil the influence of thoughtful people is desperately needed. Through the American Association of University Women more than 70,000 women are working together for the objectives that college women have in common.

The American Association of University Women needs the support of every eligible college graduate. Every graduate will gain much from A. A. U. W. membership. Degrees from 244 American colleges and universities are accepted as a basis for membership in the A. A. U. W. To join the local A. A. U. W. branch make application to the local president, Miss Mary Clay or membership chairman, Mrs. Harry Lemert.

An important service of the A. A. U. W. is to act as spokesman for educated women. Through local, state and national leaders and its national staff. The association watches developments affecting the interests of educated women, and brings the influence of the organization to bear on administrative and policy—making bodies when action is needed A. A. U. W. leaders have advised on organization of the women's service corps, on woman-power problems, wartime educational programs, price-fixing and rationing policies, and many other problems with which women are vitally concerned.

Graduates from Louisiana State university and Newcomb college are included on the eligible list of members.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivy Faulk and two daughters, Marcia and Alma, are now established in the home they recently purchased from the Harold Dixons on Erin avenue.

Patriotic Changes

Who ever thought that they would live to see the day when lovely members of our younger set would tie up their curls in unsightly bandannas, don blue jeans and engage in the back splitting task of picking cotton?

Since the beginning of the war we have witnessed many changes but we never expected to see the day when cotton picking in the broiling sun would be considered a lark.

Members of the Delta Beta Sigma sorority, noted for their patriotic fevor, are making cotton picking rather a glamorous job. It has been lifted to a higher plane since this group of young and lovelies have engaged in this lowly task. And there is no loafing on the job. There is a patriotic duty to perform and neither the broiling sun or threatening rain clouds can deter them from their task.

The type of conversation carried on at noon when the cotton pickers rest in the shade of the trees on the George Pipes plantation, is far removed from the work at hand. The bonds to the bought with the money earned is the highlight of conversation but the annual tea-dance and other winter social activities now a tradition in Monroe, are discussed with enthusiasm.

Following the noon day siesta the cotton pickers go back to the fields, singing on their way, and rejoicing in the work they are privileged to do for the defense of their country.

Women are doing men's work. They are wearing uniforms and being surprisingly efficient. But, after working hours, in contrast, they continue to emphasize their femininity. Especially feminine are members of the local chapter of D. B. S. They never dreamed the day would come when they would be picking cotton instead of whiling away the summer days.

Who can't remember the day when almost any citizen couldn't dig just a little deeper into his pockets to buy a bright new car? And then the war! Today we are digging deep in our pockets but it is for the purpose of buying war bonds. Our patriotic duty is before us and we are not shirking this duty by any means. We venture to say there is scarcely a man or woman in Monroe who can not boast of at least one war bond. Owning a bond acts rather like a tonic. It gives a lift to the spirit.

Valiant is the word for those women who have been working faithfully and with every ounce of enegry they posses to put over the bond drive in Ouachita parish.

Almost every club in the Twin Cities possesses at least one bond. All patriotic orders, including the D. A. R. have dipped into the treasury for funds for this purpose.

Valiant is also the word for members of the Welcome Branch Book club who were among the first women in Monroe to sponsor a blood bank. The work is being carried on under the direction of the president, Mrs. L. V. Tarver and has attracted the attention of many donors. Men in the armed forces at Selman field as well as civilians have formed groups of blood donors.

The demand is a constant one and is increasing daily. This need can be met by the continued cooperation of volunteers to the blood bank.

It is authoritatively stated that casualties have been greatly decreased in World War II owing to the use of plasma.

The local need and good accomplished by those donors to the blood bank at charity hospital is a tribute to a splendid community service.

Those desiring to become donors may do so by contacting the office at charity hospital for an appointment.

Transportation is now the subject of the day. Just as the income tax has been (and will be again) the smart subject to discuss, no matter where one was—the whys, and where-fors of transportation claim the lion's share of conversation today.

The motorcycle—haven't you seen them skimming by for years? We rather pitied the man or woman who had no other means of transportation. Now the motorcycle is something to covet. How we envy the man who skims along unmindful of the fact that gas is rationed.

Then there is the subject of the scooter. It no longer is just something to put under the Christmas tree for the children. It serves a definite purpose for the man who now "scoots" around the corner to catch his bus. It is grand exercise and the parking problem is almost nil. Men have been known to threaten to commit murder because of such things as a scooter. Now they are wheedling them away from the children.

Men in the armed forces at Selman field as well as civilians have formed groups of blood donors.

The demand is a constant one and is increasing daily. This need can be met by the continued cooperation of volunteers to the blood bank.

It is authoritatively stated that casualties have been greatly decreased in World War II owing to the use of plasma.

The local need and good accomplished by those donors to the blood bank at charity hospital is a tribute to a splendid community service.

Those desiring to become donors may do so by contacting the office at charity hospital for an appointment.

Transportation is now the subject of the day. Just as the income tax has been (and will be again) the smart subject to discuss, no matter where one was—the whys, and where-fors of transportation claim the lion's share of conversation today.

The motorcycle—haven't you seen them skimming by for years? We rather pitied the man or woman who had no other means of transportation. Now the motorcycle is something to covet. How we envy the man who skims along unmindful of the fact that gas is rationed.

Then there is the subject of the scooter. It no longer is just something to put under the Christmas tree for the children. It serves a definite purpose for the man who now "scoots" around the corner to catch his bus. It is grand exercise and the parking problem is almost nil. Men have been known to threaten to commit murder because of such things as a scooter. Now they are wheedling them away from the children.

Children Engaged In Summer Work Should Take Full Advantage Of Education

The summer vacation is over. Once again the school bell resounds throughout the land and mothers of pre-school children are more baffled than ever these chaotic days. Members of the Parent-Teacher association are doing all in their power to answer the questions of distracted mothers and to give them the advice they are seeking.

In a series of radio talks members of the Twin Cities P.-T. A. council addressed conscientious parents during the past few months. Mrs. George Varino has talked on numerous occasions and stressed the importance of raising the standards of home life. The object of the P.-T. A. is to bring into closer relations the home and the school so that parents and teachers may cooperate intelligently in the training of the child. Every child should have the advantage of a physical, mental, social and spiritual education, according to Mrs. Varino.

Members of the Twin Cities P.-T. A. introduced Mr. John Fox to the radio audience last week on the subject of the "Back-to-School," campaign now being waged. His remarks were valuable and well worth printing. He said:

"Four million boys and girls, 14 through 17 years of age, have been at work this summer—in stores, in factories, on farms, in filling stations, running errands, as delivery clerks, etc.

"Demands for young "hands" are increasing everywhere to take the place of workers over 18 who have gone into higher-skilled and better-paying war jobs or who have been called into military service.

"The summer work season is ended. We pause now to pay tribute and honor to the splendid contribution to the war effort, made by the children who worked during their vacation period. Jobs were done well—and the national work program was materially advanced through their effort.

"With the close of vacation's working period a new school season begins. The opening of school is a clear call to all school children to return to their battle stations for further training and instruction.

"To win the war and to establish a lasting peace, more and more trained workers will be needed. There is no doubt that children's best contribution to winning the war, and to reconstruction and peace time needs, will be made by attending school.

"Children are ever important, but in a world at war they are the backbone of the nation. To them we look for replacements of scientists, engineers, economists, doctors, dentists, nurses, agriculturalists, business men and so on. All our energies at the present must be devoted to winning the war. And the first responsibility and obligation of youths under 18, even in war time, is to take full advantage of their educational opportunities in order to prepare themselves for war and post war services.

"A full program of elementary and secondary education is an essential preparation for citizenship in our American Democracy. Thousands of soldiers have given up their lives to preserve the right of Democratic citizenship for American children. It is the patriotic duty of American children to prepare for this responsibility by taking all the class room training and instruction they can possibly procure.

"The opportunities and responsibility of tomorrow will be realized and grasped by those who apply themselves in the classrooms today."

The word chocolate is derived from the Mexican chocolatl—meaning foam water—a beverage they made by grinding cocoa seeds and mixing them with water.

A year devoted to the very best in literature will be inaugurated for for members of the Review club on October 4 when the first meeting takes place in the home of Mrs. A. T. Givens. Members of this study club are keenly cognizant of the need of every woman in America, in the world, keeping herself mentally alert, abreast of the times in literary fields, attuned to the interests of humanity, a part of a mighty organization of women who will definitely have a voice in formulating the peace of tomorrow and building a better post war world. They have therefore been—of the past mindful, to the present faithful, of the future hopeful and have resolved to maintain their usual high standards in club work, in spite of the multitude of obstacles, sorrows and anxieties which best the paths of women everywhere.

The course of study adopted for the year is a series of novels which will serve as a basis for thought and for reaching intelligent conclusions to some of the problems of this contemporary world of war.

At the first meeting Mrs. W. T. Davis and Mrs. Sam Smith will present the program "The Foes We Face" reviewing the novels, "The Seventh Cross" by Anna Seghers and "The Three Bamboos" by Robert Standish. Both of these are discerning and penetrating enough to give us some truths about the people we fight in Germany and Japan.

Women Voters Plan Registration Drive

The Monroe League of Women Voters met in regular session in the Francis hotel. Plans were made for vigorous campaign for the first week in November to get the women out to register for voting.

The slogan is "A woman to register for every soldier gone to war from Ouachita parish." The league is interested in a democratic America. The league believes that the place to begin trying to make every woman conscious of her part in a democracy is at home.

The Monroe league has been working on the juvenile protection problem all the year and in keeping with their views and program they drew up the following resolutions relative to the unfortunate death of young man of Ouachita parish:

The Monroe League of Women Voters deplores the regrettable circumstances which led to the recent death of William Hopkins while a prisoner at the Ouachita parish prison camp. We plead that his death shall arouse the parents and officials of the community to take proper action preventing any recurrence of this most unfortunate death;

Further, we wish to go on record as recommending that hereafter no prisoner—young or old—be set at hard labor in Ouachita without first having undergone a complete physical examination by a proper medical authority, of which examination there shall be a written record on file;

Further, we recommend that in the future, where there is any question as to whether or not a young offender should be under the jurisdiction of the juvenile court, a written record of birth shall be obtained and shall be incorporated in court records;

Further, we are cognizant and appreciative of the fact that parish officials acted promptly in investigating conditions at the Ouachita parish road camp, but we wish to go on record as being opposed to the use of corporal punishment for either juvenile or adult offenders in Ouachita parish;

Further, we recommend and, strongly adhere to the principle, that all juveniles be detained separately from adults and urge that the parish establish such juvenile detention facilities under competent direction;

Further, we urge appointment by the parish of a permanent committee of citizens with responsibility for periodic investigations of conditions at all parish penal and detention facilities, whether for juveniles or adults;

Further, we have already adopted a program for promotion of establishment by state law of a separate juvenile court for Ouachita parish;

Further, The Monroe League of Women Voters, as a non-partisan group of women devoted to the interests of good government, is anxious and ready to cooperate with public officials in furthering these objectives and recommendations.

Miss McClendon Weds Capt. James Ferguson

Marriage Of Calhoun Girl And Air Forces Officer Solemnized In Texas

Claiming interest today is the announcement made by and Mrs. W. B. McClendon of Calhoun, La., of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Fanny Lou McClendon, to Captain James A. Ferguson, at the Odessa Methodist church, September 10, with the pastor, Rev. John S. Rice, officiating.

Mrs. G. C. Hardwick played Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata preceding the ceremony and Mrs. Robert Sheeks sang "Because" by D. Hardelot. The Bridal Chorus from Wagner's Lohengrin was used as the processional and the Wedding March from "Midsummer Night's Dream" was played as the recessional. The candles were lighted by Robert Atkinson.

Miss Ellen Brown of Lake Providence, La., life-long friend of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a pink wool jersey dress with turquoise velvet hat and a corsage of gardenias.

Captain R. B. Taylor of Pyote air base was best man.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Captain J. G. ...enhamer. She wore a blue wool suit with cerise accessories and carried a corsage of gardenias. For something old, she wore an antique pin.

Following the wedding a reception was held in the George Washington room of the Elliott hotel. Mrs. J. G. ...enhamer formerly Mary Lee McClendon, Mrs. W. D. Brown and Miss Ellen Brown served the wedding cake from a beautifully appointed bride's table.

Mrs. Ferguson received her bachelor of arts degree from Louisiana State Normal college. For the last eighteen months she has held a government position at Odessa, Texas. Captain Ferguson is a graduate of the University of Connecticut and received his wings at Barksdale field, La., in May 1941. He served overseas for a year with the 15th Bombardment group. At present he is operations officer of the ... Bombardment squadron at the Rattlesnake bomber base.

The young couple will make their home at 319 Estes street in Monahans, Texas.

Miss Clarice Nyegaard Marries John Broyles

Of impressive wartime simplicity was the wedding of Miss Clarice Nyegaard, daughter of Mr. Clarence Nyegaard of Farmerville, La., and Mr. ... Broyles of Sterlington, La.

The marriage ceremony was performed before an improvised altar in the living-room of Mrs. A. J. Cranford's home at 5 o'clock p.m. The Rev. E. Pilot, pastor of the Sterlington Methodist church performed the double ring ceremony. The bride's sister, Mrs. Walter Masling, of Monroe was the only attendant. She wore a moss green woolen suit with rust accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mr. A. J. Cranford served as best man.

The bride wore a lively victory blue ensemble with a small navy blue felt hat with all accessories of navy blue. Her corsage was of white roses and carnations. For something old the bride wore an exquisite brooch that belonged to a childhood friend of her mother's. For something borrowed she carried an imported lace handkerchief of a close friend, Miss Ghrama Pappas of Farmerville.

Immediately following the ceremony the wedding guests gathered in the dining room for the cutting of the wedding cake, a beautiful three-tiered confection surmounted with figurines of a bride and groom.

Mrs. W. L. White, sister of the bride of Ruston, La., and Miss Ghrama ...well served punch and cake and assisted in extending courtesies.

The bride was formerly employed at the Dixie Ordnance Works and the groom is employed by the Louisiana Power and Light company in Sterlington.

After a short wedding trip to Kentwood and New Orleans, La., the young couple will be at home to their friends in Sterlington.

Ferriday

Mrs. Marcus Pasternack and daughter, Marilyn, have returned from an extended visit with relatives in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Wilgus have returned from Arkansas where they visited friends and relatives the past ... weeks.

Mrs. Lesley Dale and daughter, Miss ... Dale, and Mrs. Dicks Campbell are spending this week in New Orleans.

Mrs. Lesley D. Dale and daughter, Miss Roza Dale, returned from a ...'s visit in New Orleans Saturday.

Sergeant Nichols of Fort Benning, arrived Saturday to spend part of his furlough with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nichols. He expects also to visit his aunt, Miss Mattie Nichols, who is quite ill in Monticello, Ark.

After a pleasant visit with relatives, Lieutenant and Mrs. John Maxwell, Jr., and baby have returned to Fort Knox, Ky.

Among those who left Ferriday to attend L. S. U. this semester were Susanne Moulle, Carolyn Fleming, Bill Harrison and Fred Melson.

Fred Conn was a visitor in Ferriday Monday enroute to California. Mrs. Conn was returning from a trip to Vermillion, Ohio, where he attended the funeral of George Hand, former business associate.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Arnaud of Jonesville announce the birth of a baby girl, Elizabeth Adrian, born September 2 at the Natchez sanitarium. Mrs. Arnaud will be remembered as Sally Ann Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Campbell of Monterey, formerly of Ferriday.

Through the efforts of Miss Leila Branch, parish librarian, and the Concordia parish library, a series of community meetings will be held in Concordia parish October 13, 14 and 15 by Dr. Mary Mims, well know Louisiana extension worker and organizer. This will celebrate the 15th anniversary of the library's establishment.

Misses Lillian and Christine McElroy, Ruth Slatter and Helen Lanneau of Natchez bicycled to Ferriday Thursday, where they were entertained at a luncheon in the King hotel. Lee Spencer Bullis was their host.

Books For Women

How To Be Attractive by Joan Bennett—It's easy in wartime to confuse necessary sacrifice with the unnecessary. England made that mistake and corrected it. Today British women look prettier than ever. Traditions of American women changed almost overnight—one day her place was in the home, the next day industry wanted 1,000,000 women workers. Hundreds of thousands donned uniforms. Many of them became too busy to try to be attractive. This, the author points out, is a grave mistake. In eight chapters, amply illustrated by her own photographs, she points the way to beauty.

Best-sellers in fiction at the public libraries in the Twin Cities include (listed in the order of their popularity): "The Robe," Douglas; "So Little Time," Marquand; "Hungry Hill," Du Maurier; "The Valley of Decision," Davenport; "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," Smith; "The Forest and the Fort," Allen; "Kate Fennigate," Tarkington; "Capricornia," Herbert; "The Human Comedy," Saroyan; "Centennial Summer," Idell; "I Am Thinking of My Darling," McHugh; "Citizen Tom Paine," Fast; "The Ship," Forester; "Crescent Carnival," Keyes; "The Song of Bernadette," Werfel; "Starbuck," Selby; "Trio," Baker; "Equinox," Seager; "The Fountainhead," Rand; "Winter's Tales," Dinesen.

The most popular non-fiction are: "Under Cover," Carlson; "U. S. Foreign Policy," Lippmann; "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo," Lawson; "One World," Willkie; "Journey Among Warriors," Curie; "God Is My Co-Pilot," Scott; "On Being a Real Person," Fosdick; "Between Tears and Laughter," Lin Yutang; "Burma Surgeon," Seagrave; "Roughly Speaking," Pierson; "Chicken Every Sunday," Rosemary Taylor; "Life In a Putty Knife Factory," Smith; "Between the Thunder and the Sun," Sheean; "The End of the Beginning," Churchill; "George Washington Carver," Holt.

The Great Lakes comprise the largest inland body of fresh water in the world.

CLAIM ROOSEVELT SPEECH POLITICAL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Republicans asserted and Democrats denied today that President Roosevelt's war progress message contained "campaign material" and constituted an effort to minimize controversial domestic issues.

Mr. Roosevelt said that while some complaints about domestic activities were justified the people have reason to be proud of the successful conversion from a peace to war economy.

Senator Taft, Republican, Ohio, told reporters he interpreted that and some other statements by the president as indicating Mr. Roosevelt intends to "play down" home controversies and emphasize the foreign war effort if he seeks a fourth term—a view that was shared in part by Senator Bridges, Republican, New Hampshire.

"It was an adroitly written message which attempted to center the people's minds exclusively on the efforts of our fighting forces so as to overcome their concern about domestic blunders," Bridges declared.

In the same vein, Senator Aiken, Republican, Vermont, said he regarded as "campaign material" the president's suggestion that congress consider the greater economic protection for the returning men and women of the armed forces, study the broadening of social security benefits, and give early attention to problems of demobilization.

4. Turin-Milan industrial regions in semi-paralysis, with anti-Fascist workers refusing to go to their jobs.

5. All northern Italy short of food, with the Germans confiscating what is at hand and making no effort to provide for civilians, a job which in any case would be difficult because of the increasing strain on German communications and their destruction by Italian patriots.

6. Leaflets are being distributed to the Italians urging them to sabotage and fight the Nazis.

DEATH IS IMPOSED FOR CONCEALING ARMS

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The German secret police went into full speed operation in Italy today with an order imposing death on all Italians caught hiding arms or molesting or stealing military equipment.

The death decree was published throughout occupied Italy—the best indication thus far of the underground resistance the Nazis expect to encounter there and the ruthlessness with which they are determined to fight it.

The Nazi pattern was the same as that first seen in Poland and later used with clocklike precision in Norway, the Low Countries, France and Russia—conscription of labor, death to saboteurs and a command to the country's army to appear for surrender or induction.

In Italy, however, the Germans have stepped up the pattern, for here they are acting against a former ally, and the bitterness shown by the Nazi press toward Premier Badoglio's capitulation has not been softened by the release of Benito Mussolini, whose whereabouts still is a mystery.

There is yet no strong indication of sufficient sabotage within Italy to be of great assistance to the Allies.

The most acceptable opinion here is that neither the Allies nor the Germans can expect great material help from the Italians in the battle of Italy. The Italian people are disillusioned by the fact that Mussolini's overthrow failed to bring immediate peace. The great masses are at the moment stunned by the rapid whirl of events.

From information trickling across the frontier, the following appears to be the best available summary of the situation in Italy today:

Civilian resistance to German occupation so far has been mostly passive, although there have been reports of skirmishes in several northern cities and there were some efforts to strike immediately after the armistice.

supplies of aviation fuel and lubricants at close range.

That Rumanian oil, is Nazidom's most vital war-making resource. Mr. Roosevelt made that plain in disclosing the heavy casualty figures for American long-range bombing of Ploesti which badly wrecked storage and refinery plants.

Mr. Roosevelt also made it clear that when Japan finally is beaten she must be stripped of control of mandated islands in the Pacific as well as of territories "stolen" from China because—"she is not to be trusted." Mr. Roosevelt made no such specific reference to what should happen to Germany or Italy in the post-war world, implying that the United Nations take a grimmer view of Japanese treachery than of even Nazi or Fascist aggression.

The ways and means of bringing Japan and its ruthless military caste to book were worked out in detail at Quebec, the president revealed.

Mr. Roosevelt laid special stress on the fact that help for China is being increased by air transport.

"Almost every day word comes that our air force has destroyed two or three times more Japanese planes in China and Burma than we ourselves have lost," he said "that process will continue until we are ready to strike right at the heart of Japan itself."

The heart of Japan—and the double track vital flow of Japanese shipping up and down the China sea to all sections of her conquest area—is in bombing reach from bases on central eastern China. There is a strong implication in the Roosevelt statement that the Quebec decisions call for stepping-up the American bombing operations from China even before the Burma road has been reopened.

VICTORIOUS

in exile, 32 miles east of Corsica and eight miles from the Italian coast. Seven thousand Italian troops were said by the Nazis to have surrendered there.)

Allied armies emerged victors in the battle of Salerno—first great engagement with Hitler's legions for the command of Europe—because of an abundance of grim courage on the part of American and British infantrymen and overwhelming air and sea superiority.

The American Fifth and British Eighth armies merged in the final stages of the strategic victory which enlarged the Salerno bridgehead into a full fighting front.

German troops, who tried futilely for seven days to hammer the American and British forces into the sea, had retreated in the south, where the allies smashed inland 11 miles, but still clung savagely to the gateway to Naples in the north.

The headquarters communique announced the capture of the town of Roccadaspide, 11 miles inland from the coast on the southern flank, where the Germans were fleeing to escape entrapment.

The victory of Salerno belongs to the battle-grimed infantrymen under Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark who fought ceaselessly for seven days without rest and who refused to be budged from their foxholes on the beaches by Nazi might and who died rather than give up an inch.

The infantry made the victory possible. Air power, which pulverized Nazi communications and front line positions, and sea power, which poured a tide of reserves on the beaches, won it.

Because of this combination, General Eisenhower has two great armies surging through the breach in Hitler's European fortress, with a third in reserve.

These are some of the fruits of the week's savage fighting:

Lieutenant General Carl A. Spaatz' northwest African air forces have fighter fields within 10 minutes' flight of Naples.

At least five German divisions have been badly mauled, sapping strength which the German army can ill afford to lose.

Hundreds of square miles of southern Italy now are in allied hands and will serve as the base for the drive north.

The next big German stand certainly will be before Naples. The capture of Naples would give the allies one of the best and largest seaports in Italy, through which thousands of tons of supplies could be funnelled.

board. The text of the resolution is as follows:

"It is the opinion of the Ouachita parish board of health that the shortage of the fluid milk supply for the cities of Monroe and West Monroe will become very acute in the near future. At the present time, many stores in these cities, distributing centers for homes, have had no pasteurized milk for two months, and we recognize the fact that milk is essentially a food for infants, children, and invalids, and not absolutely necessary as a diet for healthy adults.

"We are aware of the fact that a reduced mortality in the first two years of infancy has been due to the use of pasteurized milk, and to supply adequately for the needs of infants and children, we earnestly recommend that the supply of milk, especially Grade A pasteurized, be reduced to a minimum for all cafes, restaurants, hotels, and other eating and drinking places, and we further recommend that adult patrons of these places substitute some other beverage for that of milk, so that these stores in Monroe and West Monroe will have a greater supply for the needs of their clientele."

Because of this combination, General Eisenhower has two great armies surging through the breach in Hitler's European fortress, with a third in reserve.

These are some of the fruits of the week's savage fighting:

Lieutenant General Carl A. Spaatz' northwest African air forces have fighter fields within 10 minutes' flight of Naples.

At least five German divisions have been badly mauled, sapping strength which the German army can ill afford to lose.

Hundreds of square miles of southern Italy now are in allied hands and will serve as the base for the drive north.

The next big German stand certainly will be before Naples. The capture of Naples would give the allies one of the best and largest seaports in Italy, through which thousands of tons of supplies could be funnelled.

board. The text of the resolution is as follows:

"It is the opinion of the Ouachita parish board of health that the shortage of the fluid milk supply for the cities of Monroe and West Monroe will become very acute in the near future. At the present time, many stores in these cities, distributing centers for homes, have had no pasteurized milk for two months, and we recognize the fact that milk is essentially a food for infants, children, and invalids, and not absolutely necessary as a diet for healthy adults.

"We are aware of the fact that a reduced mortality in the first two years of infancy has been due to the use of pasteurized milk, and to supply adequately for the needs of infants and children, we earnestly recommend that the supply of milk, especially Grade A pasteurized, be reduced to a minimum for all cafes, restaurants, hotels, and other eating and drinking places, and we further recommend that adult patrons of these places substitute some other beverage for that of milk, so that these stores in Monroe and West Monroe will have a greater supply for the needs of their clientele."

WHY WOMEN BY THOUSANDS prefer this way to relieve distress of 'periodic' FEMALE WEAKNESS
Do you suffer from ✓ Cramps
✓ Backache ✓ Headache
✓ Nervous, Restless,
✓ Weak, Tired, Blue Feelings —on such days —due to functional periodic disturbances?

Take heed if on "certain days" of the month you suffer from the above distress. Start at once, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms. It's one of the most effective and most famous medicines you can buy for this purpose.
Pinkham's Compound is what doctors call a uterine sedative, because it has a soothing effect on one of woman's most important organs. Taken regularly—this great medicine helps build up resistance against such annoying symptoms.
IT HELPS NATURE!
Pinkham's Compound is different from most products for this purpose. It comes in liquid form and is made especially for women. There are positively no opiates or habit-forming ingredients in Pinkham's Compound. Instead, this great medicine is made from nature's own beneficial ROOTS and HERBS (plus Vitamin B₁). Here's a product that HELPS NATURE and that's the kind to buy!
Thousands upon thousands of girls and women have reported truly remarkable benefits. Pinkham's Compound certainly must have very beneficial qualities to have endured for so many years and is still be in such great demand. Also a fine stomachic tonic! Follow label directions. Well worth trying!

Annabella, Montgomery Head Cast

Story Of Yank Flyer Who Pilots Bomber Over Germany Is Theme

A YANK flyer who pilots an American bomber over Germany!

A young woman doctor serving in the Red Army Medical corps!

These are the central characters—characters who have thousands of real-life prototypes today—in "Bomber's Moon," the spectacularly thrilling new 20th Century-Fox hit which opens Monday at the Paramount theater.

With its collective eyes always closely on the news headlines, 20th Century-Fox saw in the real life adventures of such heroic figures, whose exploits have captured the imagination of the United Nations, a thrilling, action-packed motion picture—and forthwith set out to produce it with George Montgomery and Annabella starred in the leading roles.

Leading a bomber mission over Germany, George's plane is shot down—but not before he has seen his young brother brutally machine-gunned to death as he parachutes to earth.

In a Nazi internment camp, George meets Annabella, a captured Red Army doctor who ministers to the camp's prisoners. During an air raid the two manage separate escapes—and meet outside the prison. Joining forces, they begin the dangerous journey across Germany to Holland, from where they hope to escape to England.

The flyer and the girl lieutenant find themselves in one perilous circumstance after another as they gamely try to outwit the Gestapo—always just a step behind them. Cast together by fate and sharing the same dangerous situations, with death constantly staring them in the face, the boy and girl find that despite their apparent hopeless situation they have fallen in love.

The climax of the film, in which they both obtain their revenge upon the enemy, is said to be one of the most exciting that has ever capped a motion picture.

Kent Taylor heads a featured cast in "Bomber's Moon," which was produced by Sol M. Wurtzel and directed by Charles Fuhr. Kenneth Gamet and Aubrey Wisberg wrote the screen play.

BEAUTICIANS GO TO CONVENTION

Mrs. C. B. Ringo and Miss Bertha Cook have just returned from attending the national beauty show and convention held in Chicago. Many new methods were given demonstration.

The Chicago Hairstylist guild furnished this year's guest artists headed by Thomas Frank, and other well known specialists.

Essentials such as the beauty shop as a morale builder, hairstyling, hair cutting, coloring and tinting, beauty electronics, cosmetics etc., were discussed by experts in each line.

The show was well attended and proved highly educational to the profession.

Bing's music hath charms for Dorothy Lamour in the technicolor musical of minstrel days, "Dixie," playing at the Capitol theater today through Tuesday. Crosby enacts the role of Dan Emmett, composer of the title song and originator of the minstrel. Six new tunes and six old favorites make "Dixie" the knockout it is.

Frantic, fast and furious is the fun in Hal Roach's "The McGuerins from Brooklyn," starring William Bendix and Grace Bradley and playing at the Joy theater Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

'Dixie' Here For 3 Days At Capitol

Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour Head Stellar Cast Of Musical Hit

AS the leading minstrel of the modern American scene, it is certainly appropriate that Bing Crosby should be impersonating the original minstrel man, Dan Emmett, in the current Paramount technicolor musical hit, "Dixie," which is due to arrive today at the Capitol theater.

To most devotees of Tin Pan Alley's tunes, the name Dan Emmett may not mean much now. But Daniel Decatur Emmett is the man who wrote "Dixie" and many other hit tunes of the period and who, in -843, founded the Virginia ministrels, first of a long line of blackface entertainers whose most recent disciples are Cantor and Jolson.

The story of "Dixie" tells how the Virginia minstrels came about, with Lynn Overman, Eddie Foy, Jr., and Billy de Wolfe, a newcomer to films, rounding out the quartette with Crosby. De Wolfe, incidentally, is a product of Broadway where he wowed habitues of Radio City's Rainbow Room. In addition to being one of the four minstrels in the picture, he's Crosby's rival for the love of Dorothy Lamour, who is co-starred with Bing. Marjorie Reynolds, Crosby's sweetheart in "Holiday Inn," is in the picture, too.

According to everything one hears about "Dixie," it's a singin,' swingin', minstrel show with new songs and old ones sung as only Bing Crosby can sing 'em—a rare musical treat and something definitely new in that this is the first time minstrel shows will have been given their screen due in technicolor.

Here are the songs you'll hear. The new ones are "Sunday, Monday or Always," "If You Please," "She's From Missouri," "A Horse That Knows the Way Back Home," "Kind'a Peculiar Brown" and "Laughing Tony." The oldies are "Dixie," "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," "Last Rose of Summer," "Old Dan Tucker," "Turkey in the Straw" and "Buffalo Gals," all grand tunes.

BICYCLE STOLEN

Clarence Hill has reported the theft of his Yale model bicycle to the police, according to police records Saturday.

The machine was taken from the front of the Liberty cafe. It is described as an old bicycle, the paint very worn. One of the silver-colored fenders was bent. The bicycle is a size 28, with serial number 59947.

Danger dogs the trail of Annabella and George Montgomery in their new picture, "Bomber's Moon," which opens a three-day engagement at the Paramount Monday. In the new hit the stars portray a pair of German prisoners whose escape from a concentration camp brings the entire Gestapo hot on their heels.

A'S BEAT BOSOX

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The Athletics broke an eight-game losing streak and extended the Boston Red Sox losing string to eight in a row by taking a 5-to-4 decision in 11 innings here today.

A crowd of 2,113 saw Irv Hall single with the bases loaded in the 11th to drive home the winning run off Mace Brown. Russ Christopher was credited with the victory.

EYES TURN TO YANKS WITH CARDINALS IN

(By Associated Press)

Now that the St. Louis Cardinals have won their second successive National league championship, interest centers on when the New York Yankees will clinch the American league pennant.

The Yankees, idle yesterday, need five more victories or five Washington defeats to assure their seventh title in eight years. They play the runnerup Washington club in a twin bill today.

How they stand:

MILLSAPS RULES AGAINST GRID PLAY DURING 1943

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Officials of Millsaps college here, small school which this year has 77 gridiron lettermen from 35 colleges among 250 husky navy V-12 students, have decided against resumption of football this fall, Dr. M. L. Smith, president, announced tonight.

The president gave "lateness in the season" as principal reason for the decision, which resulted in cancellation of games tentatively scheduled by Athletic Director B. O. Van Hook with teams including Southwestern Louisiana institute, Howard college and service groups at Fort Benning and in Memphis.

OUACHITA, HOMER TO PLAY FRIDAY

Lions Invade Pelicans' Home Field; Revenge Sought On Local Boys

The Ouachita Parish High school Lions of Monroe journey to Homer next Friday night to tangle with the Homer High school Pelicans, who have always had a fairly easy time with the locals until last year when The Lions scored a 38-7 victory.

The Homer boys are still wondering how it happened that the underrated Lions managed to win that last season's game, when the Pels, in their very next game, tied Byrd of Shreveport 13-13 and led the Jackets in first downs, 25 to 7.

Homer scouts studied Ouachita plays closely here Friday afternoon while the Lions and Bossier City 'Cats were playing a 0-0 tie, and according to Pelican players and fans, the Homer eleven is anxious to get revenge in a big way. Thursday night Homer ran roughshod over Arcadia, 32 to 0, as Pelican fans shouted, "Ouachita's next."

Just what the Lions will be able to do to stop Homer is hard to say since some of the O. P. H. S. players were pretty shaken up as the result of the battering from Bossier City. Whether these green boys can come back for another hard week is uncertain.

Jerry Gregg, the Lions' chief ball carrier, will be hard to replace. The ankle injury he received in the Bossier game will hardly permit the Sterlington boy to go against the Pels.

LaFeze Dean and G. W. Rachell, who filled in at the left half post against Bossier, are inexperienced boys but may develop into capable hands later. Regardless of who plays the position Friday he will need much more blocking than the boys were getting against the Bearcats. Too, Dean has a bruised leg that may not mend completely before game time this week.

Russell Lanningham and Tom Miller, guards, played a good game against Bossier City and will have to do even better against Homer. Both showed some nice down-field blocking Friday, with Lanningham applying several especially good blocks.

Gene Roswell, tackle, and J. E. Tripp, end, are also among the minor casualties. Roswell has a bruised leg but should be ready to go by Friday night. Tripp is nursing a bruised shoulder and will have to take things easy for a day or two.

Coaches George Riser and Devon Payne are lining up some tough work for this week as their charges prepare for the Homer invasion. Special emphasis will be placed on blocking as that was a glaring weakness against Bossier City. The Lions will be called upon to block surer and harder, and show more determination in handling their individual assignments.

MICHIGAN WINS; PURDUE AND DUKE SURPRISE WITH POWER

Wolverines Beat Camp Grant; Purdue Drops Sailors; Dukes Down Marines

By Harold Claassen

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Michigan, with its all-everything backfield, came through as expected in its opening football game today but its 25-to-0 workout at the expense of the Camp Grant soldiers was overshadowed by the performances of Purdue and Duke.

Purdue, another of the teams benefited handsomely by the navy's juggling of grid talent, defeated the vaunted eleven from the Great Lakes, 23 to 13, compared to the 42-to-0 lacing the Boilermakers absorbed from the same sailors a year ago.

Duke, another navy school, mastered the Camp LeJeune marines, 40 to 0, in a display of power that netted at least one touchdown in every period against a line that averaged 211 pounds from tackle to tackle.

Elroy (Crazy Legs) Hirsch, Wisconsin's contribution to the Michigan eleven, counted twice and Bill Daley, Minnesota's gift, once. The fourth marker was credited to the home-bred Paul White. The defeat followed by a week the Camp Grant victory over Illinois, 2 3to 0.

The Illini this week fell before the cadets and officers of the Iowa pre-flights, 32 to 18. Lieutenant Don Faurot started his cadet lineup and when they couldn't subdue Illinois he waved in his officers. Top scorer for the day, however, was Cadet Frank Maznicki, late of the Chicago Bears.

The point after touchdown brought a flashy but erratic Cornell team a 7-to-6 verdict over stubborn Bucknell, and Rochester, which has been trying to shed the designation of an eastern powerhouse for weeks, mastered Yale, 14 to 12, with a last period scoring spree in which George Sutch, last year of Temple, was the hero.

Miami's pass eleven was too tough for Indiana and the big ten team was held to a 7-to-7 deadlock by the Ohioans, while Marquette's well balanced outfit punched across a touchdown each quarter in its 33-to-7 victory over weakened Wisconsin.

Muhlenberg, which gave Yale a rugged afternoon a week ago before losing, was downed by Villanova, 35 to 12, today. The winning Wildcats scored on the fourth play when Halfback Al Postus let go with a 57-yard touchdown aerial to End Valerio Jansante.

SCHULTZ RETURNS TO LOCAL ARENA

Flying Dutchman To Wrestle 'Ace' Freeman In Main Event Wednesday

Herbie "Dutch" Schultz, the Flying Dutchman from Milwaukee, Wis., returns to Monroe for the first time in over a year Wednesday when he meets "Ace" Freeman of New York City in the main event on Promoter Gus Kallio's weekly card.

Schultz, frequently the bad man of any bout in which he appears but, nevertheless, a classy wrestler and good showman, is an old favorite with Kallio's customers. He wrestled for a while in the Southwest after leaving the southern circuit and then moved over to the Middlewest and East for a few months. He recently moved back into this area.

Freeman, the classy New York Jewish tussler, made his first showing here in four years when he wrestled in Monroe a few weeks ago. He looked as fast and tough as ever and is quite a favorite with the crowd. Freeman more than likely will have the best wishes of the customers unless Schultz has reformed.

The semi-final bout may prove to be as thrilling if not more so than the main event.

Billy Hickson, the sensational Knoxville, Tenn., matman, and Al "Sailor" Olsen, the rowdy Swede from Kansas City, have been billed for the curtain raiser, and both are included in the cream of wrestling talent currently working the southern loop.

No wrestler, with the possible exception of Jack Curtis and Rene LaBelle, has been so well received by the fans here in the last few years than the classy Hickson, protege of Buck Lawson, once strong contender for the middleweight crown. Hickson is regarded as the fastest grappler to appear on a Kallio-promoted card, and Billy the Kid is certain to be the people's choice against the Tattooed Man from Kansas.

DUKE 40; CAMP LEJEUNE 0

DURHAM, N. C., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Taking advantage of every break and playing mostly straight football, Duke's Blue Devils raised the curtain on their 1943 gridiron campaign today by walloping a towering Marine eleven from Camp LeJeune, N. C., 40-0. A crowd of 10,000 saw the game.

Coach Eddie Cameron's boys, with a bountiful supply of power that included the navy's V-12 contingent at Duke, scored in every quarter.

Lloyd Blount, from Mississippi State, reached up on his own 36 yard line to scoop in a pass hurled by Ray Terrell of Mississippi and race across the goal line for the first touchdown. Bo Sacrinity's try for point was wide.

In succession came dashes into pay dirt by Tom Davis, Benny Cittadino, Davis again, Jim Wolfe and Billy Murphy, all of Duke except Murphy, who also entered the navy after his stay at Mississippi State.

The true toe of Bob Gantt, who couldn't play his usual end position because of an injured hand, made good on his four tries for the extra point.

Camp LeJeune never really threatened. The Marines' stays on Duke soil were short-lived, but at one time the big fellows showed stubbornness and alertness, lacking only coordination to strike across the goal line. Leading the way for the Leathernecks were Ray Terrell of Mississippi, Walter Bergman of Colorado State and P. J. Subenetzky of Brooklyn.

GRAYSON'S SCOREBOARD

By Harry Grayson
(NEA Service Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Jerome Hanna Dean turns author with becoming modesty, and, as one book reviewer observes, "to give the devil his due, Dizzy was almost as good as he says he was."

The secret of Dean's amazing iron man pitching was that he could let up. Like Christy Mathewson years before him, Ol' Diz bore down only when he had to. The incredible hick didn't show the batter all he had until he was in some measure of trouble. Then, in his own words, he just reared back and pumped that thing through there. That put the problem up to the hitter.

Connie Mack, handler of many famous pitchers and innate American leaguer, pays Mathewson a mighty fine compliment in calling him the daddy of them all.

"Walter Johnson simply overpowered you," explains Manager Mack. "Matty outsmarted you."

With all his blazing speed, stuff and clowning, Dean had the finesse of Grover Cleveland Alexander. He knew how to pitch, didn't miss a trick from the time he started fooling around the rubber to disconcert the hitter.

Although a workhorse, Dean would have pitched well as long as he could walk had he not, oddly enough, been struck on the toe by a liner from Earl Averill's bat in the All-Star game of 1937. Favoring the toe he pitched without taking his customary full stride, injured his shoulder as the result.

His arm gone, Dean was a pretty good pitcher in spots with nothing more than a nothing ball. Winding up with the Cubs, Ol' Diz made something of a show of the Yankees in the second game of the World Series of 1938.

Dean appeared on his way to a dramatic victory. There were two out and he had two strikes on Frank Crosetti before the shortstop spoiled it for him in the eighth by hitting the ball out of sight with a man on base.

Crosetti fouled off about 15 pitches before finding the range. He kept getting a piece of the ball. Dean did not have enough left to get the last strike over on a cagy hitter. He had fired the last shot in the gun.

Paul Dean lacked Dizzy's knack of being able to coast along. Spud Chandler of the Yankees is another who has to bear down all the while. When Hal Schumacher reported to the Giants, John McGraw feared the St. Lawrence alumnus wouldn't last long because he put so much effort into his sinker and work.

Some pitchers have to do it the hard way. Others take it easy despite trick deliveries. Carl Hubbell would not still be around, for example, if he did not relax between screwballs. Lon Warneke burned up more energy chewing tobacco than he did in pitching. Red Ruffing was always in a rocking chair.

But Dizzy Dean topped all the moderns.

He didn't even have to stop talking.

MAR-KELL TAKES AQUEDUCT PRIZE

Warren Wright's Entry Wins By A Length; Askmenow Is Fifth

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Putting in a powerful bid for the year's championship of the "ladies" of the turf, Warren Wright's Mar-Kell came charging along Aqueduct's long stretch today to win the Beldame handicap, richest stake of the season for fillies and mares.

Although she packed top-weight of 126 pounds and was tangling with at least two of her conquereros in earlier whirls this year, the four-year-old glamour gal not only hit the wire on top by a length, but was going away at the finish under Billie Thompson's steady steering.

A "relative" of Whirlaway on her father's side and named for the wife of Mayor Kelly of Chicago, Mar-Kell picked up a neat $20,050 paycheck for the job—her ninth win in 17 starts this year—and with the fresh bankroll boosted her earnings for three seasons of racing to $59,810.

Struggling back of Blenheim II's daughter in the field of 11 were such as George D. Widener's Stefanita, winner of the recent New England Oaks and backed down to the favorite's role by the crowd of 31,949 today; Hal Price Headley's Askmenow, who beat the best of the boys in the American derby a couple of weeks back; William Woodward's Vagrancy, queen of her sex last year; and Mrs. Bruce Campbell's Barbara Childs, the refuge from claiming ranks who brought a four-race winning streak into today's start.

Starting slowly and improving her position all the way, Mar-Kell caught up with the pace-making Stefanita shortly after they entered the stretch and pulled out in front to click off the mile and an eighth in 1:51 3-5. Stefanita easily held onto the place spot despite the closing bids of Vagrancy, who took third money in front of Barbara Childs. Askmenow tired, then came again at the end for fifth place.

Trained to the minute by Plain Ben Jones, Mar-Kell rewarded her backers in the big getaway crowd at Aqueduct's closing session at $10 for $2 to win, $4.60 to place and $3.50 for third. A total of $429,147 was tossed into the "iron men" for the big race, helping the pot along to a betting day of more than $2,000,000.

NEVILLE TO OPEN PLAY OCTOBER 1

Tigers Meet Jonesboro-Hodge There; Slate Of Seven Games Announced

The Neville High school Tigers, bothered with a "manpower shortage" of their own but sticking on the gridiron scene just the same with a squad of light and inexperienced boys, will open their season October 1 against the Jonesboro-Hodge Tigers at Jonesboro.

Coach Elgin Boggs, who has been drilling his charges for a little over two weeks, is taking his boys along slowly, but the tempo of the workouts will pick up this week with scrimmages on tap and hard drills in blocking and tackling. The Bengals got a taste of contact in a couple of scrimmages the past week.

Neville has experienced some trouble arranging a schedule, but Coach Boggs last night announced a slate of seven games with two of those pending.

The schedule:

Oct. 1—Jonesboro-Hodge, there.
Oct. 8—Natchez, Miss., there.
Oct. 15—Open.
Oct. 22—Tallulah, here.
Oct. 29—Ruston, there.
Nov. 5—Tallulah (pending), there.
Nov. 12—Arcadia (pending), here.
Nov. 19—Open.
Nov. 26—Bastrop, here.

The schedule calls for only three home games, Tallulah, Arcadia and Bastrop, and the first of those won't come around until late in October.

The Neville squad includes only four lettermen from last year's club. They are R. W. Graves, who lettered at tackle but has been assigned to the backfield this year, George Luffey, an end, Billy Durrett, a back, and Maurice Phillips, who served both as tackle and guard last season but has been devoting his attention entirely to a tackle job this season.

A new addition to the squad is "Scotty" Daniels, 146-pound backfield prospect, who has been looking impressive in workouts and is likely to be assigned to the quarterbacking chores. Joe Durrett, tackle, and Emmett Carmena, guard, were squadmen last fall and are available for duty again.

Among other likely looking candidates are R. L. Phillips, guard; George Roach, tackle and guard; Buford Welch, end; Hugh Smith, center; Bobby Holmes, back; Carl Fontana, end; Wilfred Ellis, tackle and guard; Ernest Moore, guard, and yet unassigned Charlie Brown, Tommy Semmes, Bob Dillingham, Stoney Smallwood, Charles Jenkins and Tommy Phillips.

Other candidates are expected to report when school opens tomorrow.

Hot Off The Grid

SEAHAWKS 32; ILLINOIS 18

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Sept. 18.—(AP)—The Iowa Seahawks' starting team of cadets had to call on its officers for help against Illinois today, and three ensigns obliged by scoring a touchdown apiece in the pre-flight school's 32-to-18 conquest of the Illini before 8,500 in Memorial stadium.

The other two Seahawk touchdowns were accounted for by Cadet Frank Maznicki, a flashy, zig-zag running halfback who used to play for the Chicago Bears in the National Football league. Frank also kicked two conversions.

Ensign Dick Todd, a former Washington Redskin, galloped 51 yards for a Seahawk touchdown in the second period and threw a 30-yard pass to Ensign Bob Timmons for another in the same quarter. Ensign Perry Schwartz, ex-Brooklyn Dodger professional, made the last navy score in the third period by grabbing a 20-yard pass from Cadet Leonard Heinz in the end zone.

MARQUETTE 33; WISCONSIN 7

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 18.—(AP)—A gridiron-wise Marquette football team, fulfilled advance predictions, defeated a willing but inexperienced Wisconsin eleven today, 33 to 7. The Hill-Toppers scored shortly after the game started and never were headed, although the Badgers drew up abreast for a short time in the first period.

Besides the initial marker, Marquette scored once in the second period, twice in the third and once in the fourth. Halfback Johnny Rudan and his relief, Frank Aschenbrenner, got two apiece and Fullback Hal Eigner the other. Eigner kicked the three extra points from placement.

PURDUE 23; GREAT LAKES 13

GREAT LAKES, Ill., Sept. 18.—(AP)—A pair of Illinois regulars last year, Guard Alex Agase and Fullback Tony Butkovich, provided the firing power of a great Purdue team today as the Boilermakers opened their 1943 football season with a 23-13 victory over Great Lakes before a crowd of 22,000 recruits.

Purdue, winner of only one Western conference game last season, proved worthy of recognition as a championship contender this fall—the transformation coming from its rich supply of service students.

The Boilermakers, taking advantage of a fumble to score one touchdown in the first period after permitting Great Lakes to count first by the same method, went on to roll up another marker in the second for a 13-6 halftime lead and then cashed in for a field goal and another touchdown in the fourth.

MICHIGAN 26; CAMP GRANT 0

ROCKFORD, Ill., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Michigan's high-geared collection of marines and navy footballers lived up to advance billing with a pulverizing 26-0 opening triumph over once-tested Camp Grant today.

A capacity crowd of 11,000 in the small Rockford High school stadium saw Coach Fritz Crisler's well balanced team score in every period as the outmanned warriors fell under the hammering of Minnesota's Bill Daley, Wisconsin's Elroy Hirsch and Michigan's own Paul White.

BEAT CHICAGO TO SEW UP PENNANT

Boston Downs Phillies Twice; Dodgers Defeat Giants By 6-To-4 Score

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The World Champion Cardinals today clinched their seventh National league championship and their second in succession by edging the Chicago Cubs, 2 to 1, in the first game of a ladies' day double header.

Rookie Alpha Brazle, up from Sacramento in the Pacific Coast league, notched his seventh victory against one defeat in the second game as the Cardinals blanked the Cubs, 5 to 0. He allowed only four singles.

The Redbirds, with their second victory, went 19 games in front of the idle Cincinnati Reds, who have only 18 games left to play. The second-place Brooklyn Dodgers were eliminated from mathematical chances to contest for the flag by the Cardinals' 2-to-1 victory last night.

The Dodgers, weathered into a cancellation this week, have one less game left than the Reds.

Lefty Max Lanier, who got credit for one of the Redbirds' four victories in the 1942 world series, scored his 13th victory of the campaign, beating Ed Hanyzewski in a fine pitching duel.

The deciding run was scored in the last half of the ninth inning, when, with the bases loaded and one out, Lou Klein hit a ground ball to the infield and Ray Sanders scored as the Cubs unsuccessfully attempted to turn Klein's roller into a double play.

The Cubs scored their only run in the first inning when Eddie Stanky singled and went to second on Bill Nicholson's infield hit. A rookie, Ed Sauer, then singled sharply to center field, scoring Stanky.

The Redbirds tied the game in the fifth. Debs Garms lashed a single off Len Merullo's glove and advanced to second as another Cub rookie, Elko, threw wild to second on a force play when Marion grounded to him at third.

Lou Klein singled past Elko, sending Garms across the plate.

The Cardinals ran a winning streak to eight straight victories with the pennant-clincher.

The Redbirds took over the lead on June 5, constructing a three-game margin by mid-month, but their advantage faded until, on June 30, Brooklyn took top place by winning a pair from Cincinnati while the Cardinals were splitting a double header with the New York Giants.

WHITE SOX EDGE BROWNS, 3 TO 2

Athletics Shade Red Sox, 5-4, In 11 Innings; Indians Defeat Tigers

CHICAGO, Sept. 18. —(AP)—It begins to look as if Luke Appling won't be denied the American league batting championship. Today he helped himself to two more hits, one of which, a single in the tenth inning with two mates aboard, gave the Chicago White Sox a 3-to-2 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

MILLSAPS RULES AGAINST GRID PLAY DURING 1943

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Officials of Millsaps college here, small school which this year has 77 gridiron lettermen from 35 colleges among 250 husky navy V-12 students, have decided against resumption of football this fall, Dr. M. L. Smith, president, announced tonight.

The president gave "lateness in the season" as principal reason for the decision, which resulted in cancellation of games tentatively scheduled by Athletic Director B. O. Van Hook with teams including Southwestern Louisiana institute, Howard college and service groups at Fort Benning and in Memphis.

OUACHITA, HOMER TO PLAY FRIDAY

Lions Invade Pelicans' Home Field; Revenge Sought On Local Boys

The Ouachita Parish High school Lions of Monroe journey to Homer next Friday night to tangle with the Homer High school Pelicans, who have always had a fairly easy time with the locals until last year when The Lions scored a 38-7 victory.

The Homer boys are still wondering how it happened that the underrated Lions managed to win that last season's game, when the Pels, in their very next game, tied Byrd of Shreveport 13-13 and led the Jackets in first downs, 25 to 7.

Homer scouts studied Ouachita plays closely here Friday afternoon while the Lions and Bossier City 'Cats were playing a 0-0 tie, and according to Pelican players and fans, the Homer eleven is anxious to get revenge in a big way. Thursday night Homer ran roughshod over Arcadia, 32 to 0, as Pelican fans shouted, "Ouachita's next."

Just what the Lions will be able to do to stop Homer is hard to say since some of the O. P. H. S. players were pretty shaken up as the result of the battering from Bossier City. Whether these green boys can come back for another hard week is uncertain.

Jerry Gregg, the Lions' chief ball carrier, will be hard to replace. The ankle injury he received in the Bossier game will hardly permit the Sterlington boy to go against the Pels.

LaFeze Dean and G. W. Rachell, who filled in at the left half post against Bossier, are inexperienced boys but may develop into capable hands later. Regardless of who plays the position Friday he will need much more blocking than the boys were getting against the Bearcats. Too, Dean has a bruised leg that may not mend completely before game time this week.

Russell Lanningham and Tom Miller, guards, played a good game against Bossier City and will have to do even better against Homer. Both showed some nice down-field blocking Friday, with Lanningham applying several especially good blocks.

Gene Roswell, tackle, and J. E. Tripp, end, are also among the minor casualties. Roswell has a bruised leg but should be ready to go by Friday night. Tripp is nursing a bruised shoulder and will have to take things easy for a day or two.

Coaches George Riser and Devon Payne are lining up some tough work for this week as their charges prepare for the Homer invasion. Special emphasis will be placed on blocking as that was a glaring weakness against Bossier City. The Lions will be called upon to block surer and harder, and show more determination in handling their individual assignments.

MICHIGAN WINS; PURDUE AND DUKE SURPRISE WITH POWER

By Harold Claassen

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Michigan, with its all-everything backfield, came through as expected in its opening football game today but its 25-to-0 workout at the expense of the Camp Grant soldiers was overshadowed by the performances of Purdue and Duke.

Purdue, another of the teams benefited handsomely by the navy's juggling of grid talent, defeated the vaunted eleven from the Great Lakes, 23 to 13, compared to the 42-to-0 lacing the Boilermakers absorbed from the same sailors a year ago.

Duke, another navy school, mastered the Camp LeJeune marines, 40 to 0, in a display of power that netted at least one touchdown in every period against a line that averaged 211 pounds from tackle to tackle.

Elroy (Crazy Legs) Hirsch, Wisconsin's contribution to the Michigan eleven, counted twice and Bill Daley, Minnesota's gift, once. The fourth marker was credited to the home-bred Paul White. The defeat followed by a week the Camp Grant victory over Illinois, 2 3to 0.

The Illini this week fell before the cadets and officers of the Iowa pre-flights, 32 to 18. Lieutenant Don Faurot started his cadet lineup and when they couldn't subdue Illinois he waved in his officers. Top scorer for the day, however, was Cadet Frank Maznicki, late of the Chicago Bears.

The point after touchdown brought a flashy but erratic Cornell team a 7-to-6 verdict over stubborn Bucknell, and Rochester, which has been trying to shed the designation of an eastern powerhouse for weeks, mastered Yale, 14 to 12, with a last period scoring spree in which George Sutch, last year of Temple, was the hero.

Miami's pass eleven was too tough for Indiana and the big ten team was held to a 7-to-7 deadlock by the Ohioans, while Marquette's well balanced outfit punched across a touchdown each quarter in its 33-to-7 victory over weakened Wisconsin.

Muhlenberg, which gave Yale a rugged afternoon a week ago before losing, was downed by Villanova, 35 to 12, today. The winning Wildcats scored on the fourth play when Halfback Al Postus let go with a 57-yard touchdown aerial to End Valerio Jansante.

SCHULTZ RETURNS TO LOCAL ARENA

Flying Dutchman To Wrestle 'Ace' Freeman In Main Event Wednesday

Herbie "Dutch" Schultz, the Flying Dutchman from Milwaukee, Wis., returns to Monroe for the first time in over a year Wednesday when he meets "Ace" Freeman of New York City in the main event on Promoter Gus Kallio's weekly card.

Schultz, frequently the bad man of any bout in which he appears but, nevertheless, a classy wrestler and good showman, is an old favorite with Kallio's customers. He wrestled for a while in the Southwest after leaving the southern circuit and then moved over to the Middlewest and East for a few months. He recently moved back into this area.

Freeman, the classy New York Jewish tussler, made his first showing here in four years when he wrestled in Monroe a few weeks ago. He looked as fast and tough as ever and is quite a favorite with the crowd. Freeman more than likely will have the best wishes of the customers unless Schultz has reformed.

The semi-final bout may prove to be as thrilling if not more so than the main event.

Billy Hickson, the sensational Knoxville, Tenn., matman, and Al "Sailor" Olsen, the rowdy Swede from Kansas City, have been billed for the curtain raiser, and both are included in the cream of wrestling talent currently working the southern loop.

No wrestler, with the possible exception of Jack Curtis and Rene LaBelle, has been so well received by the fans here in the last few years than the classy Hickson, protege of Buck Lawson, once strong contender for the middleweight crown. Hickson is regarded as the fastest grappler to appear on a Kallio-promoted card, and Billy the Kid is certain to be the people's choice against the Tattooed Man from Kansas.

DUKE 40; CAMP LEJEUNE 0

DURHAM, N. C., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Taking advantage of every break and playing mostly straight football, Duke's Blue Devils raised the curtain on their 1943 gridiron campaign today by walloping a towering Marine eleven from Camp LeJeune, N. C., 40-0. A crowd of 10,000 saw the game.

Coach Eddie Cameron's boys, with a bountiful supply of power that included the navy's V-12 contingent at Duke, scored in every quarter.

Lloyd Blount, from Mississippi State, reached up on his own 36 yard line to scoop in a pass hurled by Ray Terrell of Mississippi and race across the goal line for the first touchdown. Bo Sacrinity's try for point was wide.

In succession came dashes into pay dirt by Tom Davis, Benny Cittadino, Davis again, Jim Wolfe and Billy Murphy, all of Duke except Murphy, who also entered the navy after his stay at Mississippi State.

The true toe of Bob Gantt, who couldn't play his usual end position because of an injured hand, made good on his four tries for the extra point.

Camp LeJeune never really threatened. The Marines' stays on Duke soil were short-lived, but at one time the big fellows showed stubbornness and alertness, lacking only coordination to strike across the goal line. Leading the way for the Leathernecks were Ray Terrell of Mississippi, Walter Bergman of Colorado State and P. J. Subenetzky of Brooklyn.

GRAYSON'S SCOREBOARD

By Harry Grayson
(NEA Service Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Jerome Hanna Dean turns author with becoming modesty, and, as one book reviewer observes, "to give the devil his due, Dizzy was almost as good as he says he was."

The secret of Dean's amazing iron man pitching was that he could let up. Like Christy Mathewson years before him, Ol' Diz bore down only when he had to. The incredible hick didn't show the batter all he had until he was in some measure of trouble. Then, in his own words, he just reared back and pumped that thing through there. That put the problem up to the hitter.

Connie Mack, handler of many famous pitchers and innate American leaguer, pays Mathewson a mighty fine compliment in calling him the daddy of them all.

"Walter Johnson simply overpowered you," explains Manager Mack. "Matty outsmarted you."

With all his blazing speed, stuff and clowning, Dean had the finesse of Grover Cleveland Alexander. He knew how to pitch, didn't miss a trick from the time he started fooling around the rubber to disconcert the hitter.

Although a workhorse, Dean would have pitched well as long as he could walk had he not, oddly enough, been struck on the toe by a liner from Earl Averill's bat in the All-Star game of 1937. Favoring the toe he pitched without taking his customary full stride, injured his shoulder as the result.

His arm gone, Dean was a pretty good pitcher in spots with nothing more than a nothing ball. Winding up with the Cubs, Ol' Diz made something of a show of the Yankees in the second game of the World Series of 1938.

Dean appeared on his way to a dramatic victory. There were two out and he had two strikes on Frank Crosetti before the shortstop spoiled it for him in the eighth by hitting the ball out of sight with a man on base.

Crosetti fouled off about 15 pitches before finding the range. He kept getting a piece of the ball. Dean did not have enough left to get the last strike over on a cagy hitter. He had fired the last shot in the gun.

Paul Dean lacked Dizzy's knack of being able to coast along. Spud Chandler of the Yankees is another who has to bear down all the while. When Hal Schumacher reported to the Giants, John McGraw feared the St. Lawrence alumnus wouldn't last long because he put so much effort into his sinker and work.

Some pitchers have to do it the hard way. Others take it easy despite trick deliveries. Carl Hubbell would not still be around, for example, if he did not relax between screwballs. Lon Warneke burned up more energy chewing tobacco than he did in pitching. Red Ruffing was always in a rocking chair.

But Dizzy Dean topped all the moderns.

He didn't even have to stop talking.

MAR-KELL TAKES AQUEDUCT PRIZE

Warren Wright's Entry Wins By A Length; Askmenow Is Fifth

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Putting in a powerful bid for the year's championship of the "ladies" of the turf, Warren Wright's Mar-Kell came charging along Aqueduct's long stretch today to win the Beldame handicap, richest stake of the season for fillies and mares.

Although she packed top-weight of 126 pounds and was tangling with at least two of her conquereros in earlier whirls this year, the four-year-old glamour gal not only hit the wire on top by a length, but was going away at the finish under Billie Thompson's steady steering.

A "relative" of Whirlaway on her father's side and named for the wife of Mayor Kelly of Chicago, Mar-Kell picked up a neat $20,050 paycheck for the job—her ninth win in 17 starts this year—and with the fresh bankroll boosted her earnings for three seasons of racing to $59,810.

Struggling back of Blenheim II's daughter in the field of 11 were such as George D. Widener's Stefanita, winner of the recent New England Oaks and backed down to the favorite's role by the crowd of 31,949 today; Hal Price Headley's Askmenow, who beat the best of the boys in the American derby a couple of weeks back; William Woodward's Vagrancy, queen of her sex last year; and Mrs. Bruce Campbell's Barbara Childs, the refuge from claiming ranks who brought a four-race winning streak into today's start.

Starting slowly and improving her position all the way, Mar-Kell caught up with the pace-making Stefanita shortly after they entered the stretch and pulled out in front to click off the mile and an eighth in 1:51 3-5. Stefanita easily held onto the place spot despite the closing bids of Vagrancy, who took third money in front of Barbara Childs. Askmenow tired, then came again at the end for fifth place.

Trained to the minute by Plain Ben Jones, Mar-Kell rewarded her backers in the big getaway crowd at Aqueduct's closing session at $10 for $2 to win, $4.60 to place and $3.50 for third. A total of $429,147 was tossed into the "iron men" for the big race, helping the pot along to a betting day of more than $2,000,000.

NEVILLE TO OPEN PLAY OCTOBER 1

Tigers Meet Jonesboro-Hodge There; Slate Of Seven Games Announced

The Neville High school Tigers, bothered with a "manpower shortage" of their own but sticking on the gridiron scene just the same with a squad of light and inexperienced boys, will open their season October 1 against the Jonesboro-Hodge Tigers at Jonesboro.

Coach Elgin Boggs, who has been drilling his charges for a little over two weeks, is taking his boys along slowly, but the tempo of the workouts will pick up this week with scrimmages on tap and hard drills in blocking and tackling. The Bengals got a taste of contact in a couple of scrimmages the past week.

Neville has experienced some trouble arranging a schedule, but Coach Boggs last night announced a slate of seven games with two of those pending.

The schedule:

Oct. 1—Jonesboro-Hodge, there.
Oct. 8—Natchez, Miss., there.
Oct. 15—Open.
Oct. 22—Tallulah, here.
Oct. 29—Ruston, there.
Nov. 5—Tallulah (pending), there.
Nov. 12—Arcadia (pending), here.
Nov. 19—Open.
Nov. 26—Bastrop, here.

The schedule calls for only three home games, Tallulah, Arcadia and Bastrop, and the first of those won't come around until late in October.

The Neville squad includes only four lettermen from last year's club.

They are R. W. Graves, who lettered at tackle but has been assigned to the backfield this year, George Luffey, an end, Billy Durrett, a back, and Maurice Phillips, who served both as tackle and guard last season but has been devoting his attention entirely to a tackle job this season.

A new addition to the squad is "Scotty" Daniels, 146-pound backfield prospect, who has been looking impressive in workouts and is likely to be assigned to the quarterbacking chores. Joe Durrett, tackle, and Emmett Carmena, guard, were squadmen last fall and are available for duty again.

Among other likely looking candidates are R. L. Phillips, guard; George Roach, tackle and guard; Buford Welch, end; Hugh Smith, center; Bobby Holmes, back; Carl Fontana, end; Wilfred Ellis, tackle and guard; Ernest Moore, guard, and yet unassigned Charlie Brown, Tommy Semmes, Bob Dillingham, Stoney Smallwood, Charles Jenkins and Tommy Phillips.

Other candidates are expected to report when school opens tomorrow.

Hot Off The Grid

SEAHAWKS 32; ILLINOIS 18

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Sept. 18.—(AP)—The Iowa Seahawks' starting team of cadets had to call on its officers for help against Illinois today, and three ensigns obliged by scoring a touchdown apiece in the pre-flight school's 32-to-18 conquest of the Illini before 8,500 in Memorial stadium.

The other two Seahawk touchdowns were accounted for by Cadet Frank Maznicki, a flashy, zig-zag running halfback who used to play for the Chicago Bears in the National Football league. Frank also kicked two conversions.

Ensign Dick Todd, a former Washington Redskin, galloped 51 yards for a Seahawk touchdown in the second period and threw a 30-yard pass to Ensign Bob Timmons for another in the same quarter. Ensign Perry Schwartz, ex-Brooklyn Dodger professional, made the last navy score in the third period by grabbing a 20-yard pass from Cadet Leonard Heinz in the end zone.

MARQUETTE 33; WISCONSIN 7

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 18.—(AP)—A gridiron-wise Marquette football team, fulfilled advance predictions, defeated a willing but inexperienced Wisconsin eleven today, 33 to 7. The Hill-Toppers scored shortly after the game started and never were headed, although the Badgers drew up abreast for a short time in the first period.

Besides the initial marker, Marquette scored once in the second period, twice in the third and once in the fourth. Haifback Johnny Rudan and his relief, Frank Aschenbrenner, got two apiece and Fullback Hal Eigner the other. Eigner kicked the three extra points from placement.

PURDUE 23; GREAT LAKES 13

GREAT LAKES, Ill., Sept. 18.—(AP)—A pair of Illinois regulars last year, Guard Alex Agase and Fullback Tony Butkovich, provided the firing power of a great Purdue team today as the Boilermakers opened their 1943 football season with a 23-13 victory over Great Lakes before a crowd of 22,000 recruits.

Purdue, winner of only one Western conference game last season, proved worthy of recognition as a championship contender this fall—the transformation coming from its rich supply of service students.

The Boilermakers, taking advantage of a fumble to score one touchdown in the first period after permitting Great Lakes to count first by the same method, went on to roll up another marker in the second for a 13-6 halftime lead and then cashed in for a field goal and another touchdown in the fourth.

MICHIGAN 26; CAMP GRANT 0

ROCKFORD, Ill., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Michigan's high-geared collection of marines and navy footballers lived up to advance billing with a pulverizing 26-0 opening triumph over once-tested Camp Grant today.

A capacity crowd of 11,000 in the small Rockford High school stadium saw Coach Fritz Crisler's well balanced team score in every period as the outmanned warriors fell under the hammering of Minnesota's Bill Daley, Wisconsin's Elroy Hirsch and Michigan's own Paul White.

BEAT CHICAGO TO SEW UP PENNANT

Boston Downs Phillies Twice; Dodgers Defeat Giants By 6-To-4 Score

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The World Champion Cardinals today clinched their seventh National league championship and their second in succession by edging the Chicago Cubs, 2 to 1, in the first game of a ladies' day double header.

Rookie Alpha Brazle, up from Sacramento in the Pacific Coast league, notched his seventh victory against one defeat in the second game as the Cardinals blanked the Cubs, 5 to 0. He allowed only four singles.

The Redbirds, with their second victory, went 19 games in front of the idle Cincinnati Reds, who have only 18 games left to play. The second-place Brooklyn Dodgers were eliminated from mathematical chances to contest for the flag by the Cardinals' 2-to-1 victory last night.

Lefty Max Lanier, who got credit for one of the Redbirds' four victories in the 1942 world series, scored his 13th victory of the campaign, beating Ed Hanyzewski in a fine pitching duel.

The deciding run was scored in the last half of the ninth inning, when, with the bases loaded and one out, Lou Klein hit a ground ball to the infield and Ray Sanders scored as the Cubs unsuccessfully attempted to turn Klein's roller into a double play.

The Cubs scored their only run in the first inning when Eddie Stanky singled and went to second on Bill Nicholson's infield hit. A rookie, Ed Sauer, then singled sharply to center field, scoring Stanky.

The Redbirds tied the game in the fifth. Debs Garms lashed a single off Len Merullo's glove and advanced to second as another Cub rookie, Elko, threw wild to second on a force play when Marion grounded to him at third.

Lou Klein singled past Elko, sending Garms across the plate.

The Cardinals ran a winning streak to eight straight victories with the pennant-clincher.

The Redbirds took over the lead on June 5, constructing a three-game margin by mid-month, but their advantage faded until, on June 30, Brooklyn took top place by winning a pair from Cincinnati while the Cardinals were splitting a double header with the New York Giants.

tend his personal winning streak to five games today as the Cleveland Indians defeated Detroit's Tigers, 4 and 2, and halted their four-game losing string.

Kennedy set the Tigers down with five hits in notching his tenth triumph, but when he walked Ned Harris and grooved a double to Jimmy Bloodworth with one out in the ninth, Heving came in and retired the next two batters.

The Tigers secured only one single off Kennedy in the first six stanzas.

Commercial hunters, who in the dim, distant past slaughtered for hides and meat, and so-called sportsmen who took only the magnificent heads, are in a great degree responsible for the present scarcity of some species of this country's big game animals.

Save for a few ragged remnants now protected, the mighty herds of bison have been swept from the sprawling plains of the great west. And swinging eastward we find Maine completely stripped of its once huge herds of woodland caribou. The moose, too, suffered from the greed and thoughtlessness of those hunters.

Moose On Increase

The Maine moose appeared for a time to be heading for the ghost trail blazed by the caribou. The once great herd continued to shrink as the years rolled on, but now thanks to game laws with teeth in them, this once great animal is making a strong comeback.

Several years ago a strange disease, believed carried by ticks from cattle and sheep, killed many moose. But now after extensive research by the fish and game department and the division of wildlife research at the University of Maine in Orono, this disease seems to have been conquered and wardens no longer find sick or dead moose in the woods.

Except for a three-day open season on bulls in 1935 in three coastal counties where the animals had become so numerous they were causing considerable damage to property, the moose have been protected for many years.

Fifty bulls, some weighing as much as 1,200 pounds, were killed during those three days. Many cows also were killed by the hunters in the excitement to bag a bull. That ended moose hunting. It is estimated that today Maine has a herd of about 2,500 moose.

Outlook Bright

Each spring brings more young moose to swell the steadily growing herd although George J. Stobie, commissioner of inland fisheries and game, says "there is no prospect of reopening the season on these animals in the near future."

The War Production board is going to give the hunters a break by releasing quite a quantity of sporting ammunition. . . . The ammunition will include 82,250,000 shotgun shells, 12,000,000 rounds of center fire ammunition and an undetermined quantity of 22 caliber cartridges. . . . However, sportsmen must wait until farmers and ranchers get what they need for shooting predatory animals and game birds.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Taking a peep at a couple of service grid squads that likely will be worth watching this season. . . . The naval air technical training center at Memphis, Tenn., has come up with the best nickname—"Memphis Blues." . . . But there's not much chance that Coach Denny Myers, recently of Boston college, will be singing them. . . At fullback, for instance, Lieutenant Myers has Ensign Frank Filchock of Indiana and the Redskins. Chief Petty Officer Jim Thibaut of Tulane, Seaman Arsen Michaelian of Detroit university and Marine Harold Miles of the University of Washington Frosh. . . . He also has one of the toughest schedules you ever saw. . . . The Camp Davis, N. C., anti-aircraft center also has some pretty good players, including Corporal Johnny Mellus, ex-Villanova and pro Giants tackle, and Lieutenant Tom Glass, former star Tulane ball carrier. . . . On the other hand, Keesler field, Miss., will have only two post teams playing each other and Camp Croft, S. C., is going in for touch football this season.

Calling Her Shot

When Mrs. Charles Clifton walked up to the fourth tee of New Jersey's Crestmont Country club recently, she remarked to her partner: "This is where I made my hole in one, and here's the club, a No. 4 iron, if you'd like to use it." . . . Figuring that the "Ace" club might bring her luck, Mrs. Joseph Vasques accepted the offer, teed up and whacked the ball 140 yards into the cup. . . . Other Crestmont golfers figure that iron belongs in golf's hall of fame.

You Pick 'Em

Bill Johnson, Yankees—New York and Connie Mack's choice for rookie of the year honors. . . . A good .290 hitter who has driven in 92 runs and a durable player who never misses game. . . . Bill is about the most converted player you ever saw; he started as a pitcher, became an outfielder and last year was rated the best shortstop in the International league. The Yanks converted him into a third baseball last spring and he converted fans who thought nobody but Red Rolfe could cover that corner.

Whitey Kurowski, Cardinals—the boy virtually busted up the 1942 world series. He clouted a game-winning triple in the second tussle and a game-winning homer in the fifth. Whitey won batting titles in the Northeast Arkansas and Middle Atlantic leagues and currently is hitting .294 in the National. . . . Probably the only Card who favored the one-trip series—he can't sleep on trains.

When Coach Jess Neely of Rice told Houston football fans that he was "starting from scratch" to prepare for the season, Dutch Meyer of Texas Christian added that he was "scratching to start."

Service Department

Looks as if the Camp Lejeune, N. C., marines should "cop" plenty of grid games this fall. The squad includes Tackle Charles Cann, former Pennsylvania state highway patrolman, and Halfback Tom Hall, recently of the Benton Harbor, Mich., police. . . . Ike (Doc) Cheroff, former Brooklyn college athlete, is coaching basketball, boxing and swimming at Camp Robinson, Ark., and still found time to help invent a game called action ball, which is supposed to combine the best features of a half dozen games. . . . After making several false starts, Lieutenant Junior Grade Walt Mehl, former Wisconsin miler, has been transferred from the Iowa navy pre-flight school to active duty with the fleet. . . . Sam Nahem, former Phillies hurler, was the leading hurler of the Newport, R. I., Sunset league this season, pitching for the "Redlegs," a coast artillery anti-aircraft team. Sam had an earned run average of 0.85 and chalked up 136 strikeouts in 159 innings. He also hit .400. . . . Doesn't that always happen when a guy is traded off the Phillies?

CORNELL 7; BUCKNELL 6

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Cornell, flashy but erratic, squeezed by stubborn Bucknell today 7-6 befort 5,000 fans, scoring its victory total in a third period thrust, but getting a scare when the Bisons pulled a spectacular 56-yard aerial maneuver in the final chukker.

The Big Red drove 62 yards to a touchdown after frequent marches had bogged down, scoring when Halfback Norm Dawson passed 10 yards in the end zone to Halfback Howie Blose.

ROCHESTER 14; YALE 12

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Husky George Sutch, a 200 pound marine trainee, scored all of Rochester's points today during a spectacular final period rally as the Yellow Jackets wriggled out a 14 to 12 triumph over Yale in the bowl before 14,000.

BRAVES DOWN PHILS

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The Boston Braves strengthened their grip on sixth place in the National league standing today by sweeping a double bill from the Philadelphia Phillies, 2-0 and 2-1.

Nate Andrews gained his 13th victory of the season in the opener, although Al "Lefty" Gerheauser, limiting the Braves to three hits, pitched well enough to win. Charlie "Red" Barrett was credited with the second triumph, overcoming Dick Barrett of the Phils and holding the opposition scoreless until the ninth, when he permitted an unearned run.

DODGERS BEAT GIANTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Rookie Outfielder Luis Olmo drove in four runs today to lead the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 6-to-4 victory over the Giants.

Olmo socked a homer in the third inning, then tied the score at 4-4 in the seventh by sending a long fly to center that enabled Whitlow Wyatt to come home from third after the catch. In the ninth he singled Wyatt and Arkie Vaughan home from third and second for the winning runs.

ATHLETES IN SERVICE

By Frank Eck
(Associated Press Features Sports Writer)

At long last American servicemen on active duty in Sicily, those other captured Italian islands and North Africa, can listen to a daily play-by-play account of a major league baseball game.

They're getting the best game played the previous day. Private Joe Hasel, who aired major sports before he joined the army, is behind the mike in conjunction with the radio section o fthe special service division of the war department.

Previous broadcasts were nothing more than 15-minute resumes and Lieutenant Colonel Tom Lewis, head of the service's radio work, is being commended for making it possible for servicemen to listen in on the waning weeks of the season.

Short-wave station WBOS is on the air 45 minutes seven days a week for those across the Atlantic, while KWID, a San Francisco short-waver, takes care of the boys in the Pacific area.

Pvt. J. Cobb

Lieutenant Elmer (Woody) Adams, former all-Southwest Pacific conference tackle at T. C. U., is driving back the Japs somewhere in the south Pacific. Adams played with such stars as Davey O'Brien and Ki Aldrich at Texas Christian. Babe Zigenhorn, ex-Notre Dame court ace, is stationed at Camp Pickett, Va. . . .

Eddie Albosta, Camp Livingston, La., hurler, recently fanned 19 Vicksburg, Miss., semi-pros and allowed but two hits in a 7-1 victory. . . . Ensigns Ray Stoviak and Fred Sington accounted for seven bases each in batting the Chapel Hill, N. C., Cloudbusters to their 30th victory in 36 games. It ended the pre-flight baseball schedule.

Private Gil Bouley, captain and tackle of Boston college's crack team last season, has arrived at Greensboro, N. C. The 215-pounder is a pre-aviation cadet. Private Gene Meeks, ex-U. of Kentucky track and grid star, earned gold medals for winning the 100 and the broad jump, at Greensboro's A. A. F. technical training command. . . .

NEGRO TEAMS PLAY NORTH-SOUTH GAME

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—(Special)—With Satchell Paige, famed negro pitcher, slated to oppose Impo Barnhill, a record-breaking crowd is expected to attend the fifth annual North-South all star negro baseball game, which will be staged at Pelican stadium at 2 p.m. Sunday, September 26. Paige will hurl for the South while Barnhill, New York Cuban star, will pitch for the North. The game will climax the Third War Loan drive under the sponsorship of the New Orleans negro unit. Allen Page is the promoter while Hayward Jackson, former Monroe newspaperman, is the publicity director.

The quota set for the game by the bond committee is $100,000 and sponsors says this amount will be oversubscribed.

With hundreds of advance tickets sold and requests pouring in from all over the state, the stage was set for a colorful game between the outstanding players in negro baseball.

Five Louisiana products will be seen in this game. They are Willard Brown (South), Kansas City Monarchs leftfielder, of Shreveport, home run king of the negro American league, with 38 round trippers to his credit; Herbert Souell (South), Kansas City third baseman of West Monroe, reputed one of the best hot corner men in the business and the fastest man in the N. A. L.; Tom Parker (South), heavy hitting star of the St. Louis Stars, who lives in Alexandria, and Lloyd Davenport (South), Chicago center fielder, whose home is in New Orleans, and Hilton Smith, Monroe, Kansas City hurler.

MOODY PROMOTED TO LIEUTENANT COLONEL

Major Howard A. Moody, commanding officer of the 78th Sub-Depot at Selman field, has been promoted to lieutenant colonel.

Announcement of his promotion was followed shortly by his transfer from Selman field to an undisclosed assignment.

Colonel Moody, a senior pilot, learned to fly by barnstorming up and down the west coast from 1928 to 1930. He was commissioned in the army air forces in June, 1932, after training at Randolph and Kelly fields, Tex. In December, 1940, he resumed active duty, after an interval in civilian life. He has since been an engineering officer and sub-depot commander at several fields in the Southwest. He came to Selman field on February 11, 1943. The colonel is a graduate of the college of the Pacific, Stockton, Calif.

NO QUESTIONS ASKED

BROOKLYN—(AP)—When Eric Tipton, former Duke grid star, calls for an outfield fly, there's not one member of the Cincinnati Reds who questions his decision to make the play because Eric is hard of hearing and once he gets going he never stops running.

MARKETS

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Stocks: Firm; leaders continue upturn. Bonds: Higher; rails extend rise. Cotton: Quiet, fluctuations narrow.

CHICAGO: Wheat: Closed 1-8 lower to 1-4 higher; firm on Winnipeg strength. Hogs: Nominally steady. Cattle: Nominally steady.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Broad buying demand gave the stock market another lift today, its fourth in a row, with dealings the liveliest for a Saturday in about two months.

Transfers for the short stretch were around 700,000 shares.

As in the preceding session, sentiment was buoyed by the consistently good war news, passing of the mid-September tax payment dates, hopes for construcive congressional legislation pertaining to business, and the outlook for the big government bond drive going over the top before the end of the month.

Aircrafts and other recently depressed armament issues revived in the wake of the president's warning that the world conflict still had a long way to go.

Reorganization rail bonds exhibited strength. Commodities turned a bit uneven.

AVERAGE COTTON PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The average price of middling 15/16 inch cotton today at ten designated southern spot markets was 30 cents a bale lower at 20.45 cents a pound; average for the past 30 market days 20.37; middling 7/8 inch average 19.43.

SPOT COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Spot cotton closed steady 20 cents a bale lower. Sales 4,334. Low middling 16.20; middling 20.20; good middling 20.65. Receipts 4,576. Stock 191,274.

New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Losses replaced small early gains in cotton today although trading made slow progress. Uncertainty over the course of the Gulf storm and a feeling that some of its force might be abated brought out increased liquidation for over the week-end and hedge selling.

Scale down price fixing absorbed the offerings.

Futures closed (old contracts) 20 to 40 cents a bale lower.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Grain futures held within an extremely narrow range today, but the undertone was firm.

Cash interests were active wheat buyers at times, but operations were light. Brokers said this was partly because cash wheat is selling at prices equal to the ceiling on flour and there is a lack of broad milling demand. Winnipeg wheat was higher, with export buyers reported in the market. Oats were firm on good shipping demand and feeder demand for grains generally continued heavy.

Wheat closed 1-5 lower to 1-4 higher, September $1.48 3-8, December $1.48 7-8.

tend his personal winning streak to five games today as the Cleveland Indians defeated Detroit's Tigers, 4 and 2, and halted their four-game losing string.

Kennedy set the Tigers down with five hits in notching his tenth triumph, but when he walked Ned Harris and grooved a double to Jimmy Bloodworth with one out in the ninth, Heving came in and retired the next two batters.

The Tigers secured only one single off Kennedy in the first six stanzas.

ON THE TRAIL

WITH BILL GEAGAN

Commercial hunters, who in the dim, distant past slaughtered for hides and meat, and so-called sportsmen who took only the magnificent heads, are in a great degree responsible for the present scarcity of some species of this country's big game animals.

Save for a few ragged remnants now protected, the mighty herds of bison have been swept from the sprawling plains of the great west. And swinging eastward we find Maine completely stripped of its once huge herds of woodland caribou. The moose, too, suffered from the greed and thoughtlessness of those hunters.

Moose On Increase

The Maine moose appeared for a time to be heading for the ghost trail blazed by the caribou. The once great herd continued to shrink as the years rolled on, but now thanks to game laws with teeth in them, this once great animal is making a strong comeback.

Several years ago a strange disease, believed carried by ticks from cattle and sheep, killed many moose. But now after extensive research by the fish and game department and the division of wildlife research at the University of Maine in Orono, this disease seems to have been conquered and wardens no longer find sick or dead moose in the woods.

Except for a three-day open season on bulls in 1935 in three coastal counties where the animals had become so numerous they were causing considerable damage to property, the moose have been protected for many years.

Fifty bulls, some weighing as much as 1,200 pounds, were killed during those three days. Many cows also were killed by the hunters in the excitement to bag a bull. That ended moose hunting. It is estimated that today Maine has a herd of about 2,500 moose.

Outlook Bright

Each spring brings more young moose to swell the steadily growing herd although George J. Stobie, commissioner of inland fisheries and game, says "there is no prospect of reopening the season on these animals in the near future."

The War Production board is going to give the hunters a break by releasing quite a quantity of sporting ammunition. . . . The ammunition will include 82,250,000 shotgun shells, 12,000,000 rounds of center fire ammunition and an undetermined quantity of 22 caliber cartridges. . . . However, sportsmen must wait until farmers and ranchers get what they need for shooting predatory animals and game birds.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Taking a peep at a couple of service grid squads that likely will be worth watching this season. . . . The naval air technical training center at Memphis, Tenn., has come up with the best nickname—"Memphis Blues." . . . But there's not much chance that Coach Denny Myers, recently of Boston college, will be singing them. . . At fullback, for instance, Lieutenant Myers has Ensign Frank Filchock of Indiana and the Redskins, Chief Petty Officer Jim Thibaut of Tulane, Seaman Arsen Michaelian of Detroit university and Marine Harold Miles of the University of Washington Frosh. . . . He also has one of the toughest schedules you ever saw. . . . The Camp Davis, N. C., anti-aircraft center also has some pretty good players, including Corporal Johnny Mellus, ex-Villanova and pro Giants tackle, and Lieutenant Tom Glass, former star Tulane ball carrier. . . . On the other hand, Keesler field, Miss., will have only two post teams playing each other and Camp Croft, S. C., is going in for touch football this season.

Calling Her Shot

When Mrs. Charles Clifton walked up to the fourth tee of New Jersey's Crestmont Country club recently, she remarked to her partner: "This is where I made my hole in one, and here's the club, a No. 4 iron, if you'd like to use it." . . . Figuring that the "Ace" club might bring her luck, Mrs. Joseph Vasques accepted the offer, teed up and whacked the ball 140 yards into the cup. . . . Other Crestmont golfers figure that iron belongs in golf's hall of fame.

You Pick 'Em

Bill Johnson, Yankees—New York and Connie Mack's choice for rookie of the year honors. . . . A good .290 hitter who has driven in 92 runs and a durable player who never misses game. . . . Bill is about the most converted player you ever saw; he started as a pitcher, became an outfielder and last year was rated the best shortstop in the International league. The Yanks converted him into a third baseball last spring and he converted fans who thought nobody but Red Rolfe could cover that corner.

Whitey Kurowski, Cardinals—the boy virtually busted up the 1942 world series. He clouted a game-winning triple in the second tussle and a game-winning homer in the fifth. Whitey won batting titles in the Northeast Arkansas and Middle Atlantic leagues and currently is hitting .294 in the National. . . . Probably the only Card who favored the one-trip series—he can't sleep on trains.

When Coach Jess Neely of Rice told Houston football fans that he was "starting from scratch" to prepare for the season, Dutch Meyer of Texas Christian added that he was "scratching to start."

Service Department

Looks as if the Camp Lejeune, N. C., marines should "cop" plenty of grid games this fall. The squad includes Tackle Charles Cann, former Pennsylvania state highway patrolman, and Halfback Tom Hall, recently of the Benton Harbor, Mich., police. . . . Ike (Doc) Cheroff, former Brooklyn college athlete, is coaching basketball, boxing and swimming at Camp Robinson, Ark., and still found time to help invent a game called action ball, which is supposed to combine the best features of a half dozen games. . . . After making several false starts, Lieutenant Junior Grade Walt Mehl, former Wisconsin miler, has been transferred from the Iowa navy preflight school to active duty with the fleet. . . . Sam Nahem, former Phillies hurler, was the leading hurler of the Newport, R. I., Sunset league this season, pitching for the "Redlegs," a coast artillery anti-aircraft team. Sam had an earned run average of 0.85 and chalked up 136 strikeouts in 159 innings. He also hit .400. . . . Doesn't that always happen when a guy is traded off the Phillies?

CORNELL 7; BUCKNELL 6

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Cornell, flashy but erratic, squeezed by stubborn Bucknell today 7-6 befort 5,000 fans, scoring its victory total in a third period thrust, but getting a scare when the Bisons pulled a spectacular 56-yard aerial maneuver in the final chukker.

The Big Red drove 62 yards to a touchdown after frequent marches had bogged down, scoring when Halfback Norm Dawson passed 10 yards in the end zone to Halfback Howie Blose.

ROCHESTER 14; YALE 12

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Husky George Sutch, a 200 pound marine trainee, scored all of Rochester's points today during a spectacular final period rally as the Yellow Jackets wriggled out a 14 to 12 triumph over Yale in the bowl before 14,000.

BRAVES DOWN PHILS

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The Boston Braves strengthened their grip on sixth place in the National league standing today by sweeping a double bill from the Philadelphia Phillies, 2-0 and 2-1.

Nate Andrews gained his 13th victory of the season in the opener, although Al "Lefty" Gerheauser, limiting the Braves to three hits, pitched well enough to win. Charlie "Red" Barrett was credited with the second triumph, overcoming Dick Barrett of the Phils and holding the opposition scoreless until the ninth, when he permitted an unearned run.

DODGERS BEAT GIANTS

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Rookie Outfielder Luis Olmo drove in four runs today to lead the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 6-to-4 victory over the Giants.

Olmo socked a homer in the third inning, then tied the score at 4-4 in the seventh by sending a long fly to center that enabled Whitlow Wyatt to come home from third after the catch. In the ninth he singled Wyatt and Arkie Vaughan home from third and second for the winning runs.

ATHLETES IN SERVICE

By Frank Eck
(Associated Press Features Sports Writer)

At long last American servicemen on active duty in Sicily, those other captured Italian islands and North Africa, can listen to a daily play-by-play account of a major league baseball game.

They're getting the best game played the previous day. Private Joe Hasel, who aired major sports before he joined the army, is behind the mike in conjunction with the radio section o fthe special service division of the war department.

Previous broadcasts were nothing more than 15-minute resumes and Lieutenant Colonel Tom Lewis, head of the service's radio work, is being commended for making it possible for servicemen to listen in on the waning weeks of the season.

Short-wave station WBOS is on the air 45 minutes seven days a week for those across the Atlantic, while KWID, a San Francisco short-waver, takes care of the boys in the Pacific area.

Pvt. J. Cobb

Lieutenant Elmer (Woody) Adams, former all-Southwest Pacific conference tackle at T. C. U., is driving back the Japs somewhere in the south Pacific. Adams played with such stars as Davey O'Brien and Ki Aldrich at Texas Christian. Babe Zigenhorn, ex-Notre Dame court ace, is stationed at Camp Pickett, Va. . . .

Eddie Albosta, Camp Livingston, La., hurler, recently fanned 19 Vicksburg, Miss., semi-pros and allowed but two hits in a 7-1 victory. . . . Ensigns Ray Stoviak and Fred Sington accounted for seven bases each in batting the Chapel Hill, N. C., Cloudbusters to their 30th victory in 36 games. It ended the pre-flight baseball schedule.

Private Gil Bouley, captain and tackle of Boston college's crack team last season, has arrived at Greensboro, N. C. The 215-pounder is a pre-aviation cadet. Private Gene Meeks, ex-U. of Kentucky track and grid star, earned gold medals for winning the 100 and the broad jump, at Greensboro's A. A. F. technical training command. . . .

NEGRO TEAMS PLAY NORTH-SOUTH GAME

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—(Special)—With Satchell Paige, famed negro pitcher, slated to oppose Impo Barnhill, a record-breaking crowd is expected to attend the fifth annual North-South all star negro baseball game, which will be staged at Pelican stadium at 2 p.m. Sunday, September 26. Paige will hurl for the South while Barnhill, New York Cuban star, will pitch for the North. The game will climax the Third War Loan drive under the sponsorship of the New Orleans negro unit. Allen Page is the promoter while Hayward Jackson, former Monroe newspaperman, is the publicity director.

The quota set for the game by the bond committee is $100,000 and sponsors says this amount will be over-subscribed.

With hundreds of advance tickets sold and requests pouring in from all over the state, the stage was set for a colorful game between the outstanding players in negro baseball.

Five Louisiana products will be seen in this game. They are Willard Brown (South), Kansas City Monarchs leftfielder, of Shreveport, home run king of the negro American league, with 38 round trippers to his credit; Herbert Souell (South), Kansas City third baseman of West Monroe, reputed one of the best hot corner men in the business and the fastest man in the N. A. L.; Tom Parker (South), heavy hitting star of the St. Louis Stars, who lives in Alexandria, and Lloyd Davenport (South), Chicago center fielder, whose home is in New Orleans, and Hilton Smith, Monroe, Kansas City hurler.

MOODY PROMOTED TO LIEUTENANT COLONEL

Major Howard A. Moody, commanding officer of the 78th Sub-Depot at Selman field, has been promoted to lieutenant colonel.

Announcement of his promotion was followed shortly by his transfer from Selman field to an undisclosed assignment.

Colonel Moody, a senior pilot, learned to fly by barnstorming up and down the west coast from 1928 to 1930. He was commissioned in the army air forces in June, 1932, after training at Randolph and Kelly fields, Tex. In December, 1940, he resumed active duty, after an interval in civilian life. He has since been an engineering officer and sub-depot commander at several fields in the Southwest. He came to Selman field on February 11, 1943. The colonel is a graduate of the college of the Pacific, Stockton, Calif.

NO QUESTIONS ASKED

BROOKLYN—(AP)—When Eric Tipton, former Duke grid star, calls for an outfield fly, there's not one member of the Cincinnati Reds who questions his decision to make the play because Eric is hard of hearing and once he gets going he never stops running.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Broad buying demand gave the stock market another lift today, its fourth in a row, with dealings the liveliest for a Saturday in about two months.

Transfers for the short stretch were around 700,000 shares.

As in the preceding session, sentiment was buoyed by the consistently good war news, passing of the mid-September tax payment dates, hopes for construcive congressional legislation pertaining to business, and the outlook for the big government bond drive going over the top before the end of the month.

Aircrafts and other recently depressed armament issues revived in the wake of the president's warning that the world conflict still had a long way to go.

Reorganization rail bonds exhibited strength. Commodities turned a bit uneven.

AVERAGE COTTON PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The average price of middling 15/16 inch cotton today at ten designated southern spot markets was 30 cents a bale lower at 20.45 cents a pound; average for the past 30 market days 20.37; middling 7/8 inch average 19.43.

SPOT COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Spot cotton closed steady 20 cents a bale lower. Sales 4,334. Low middling 16.20; middling 20.20; good middling 20.65. Receipts 4,576. Stock 191,274.

New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Losses replaced small early gains in cotton today although trading made slow progress. Uncertainty over the course of the Gulf storm and a feeling that some of its force might be abated brought out increased liquidation for over the week-end and hedge selling.

Scale down price fixing absorbed the offerings.

Futures closed (old contracts) 20 to 40 cents a bale lower.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Grain futures held within an extremely narrow range today, but the undertone was firm.

Cash interests were active wheat buyers at times, but operations were light. Brokers said this was partly because cash wheat is selling at prices equal to the ceiling on flour and there is a lack of broad milling demand. Winnipeg wheat was higher, with export buyers reported in the market. Oats were firm on good shipping demand and feeder demand for grains generally continued heavy.

Wheat closed 1-8 lower to 1-4 higher, September $1.48 3-8, December $1.48 7-8.

3—In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear husband and daddy, A. E. Ferrell, Sr., on his birthday September 18th. Died March 15, 1943.
More and more each day we miss him,
Friends may think the wound is healed.
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within our hearts concealed.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN

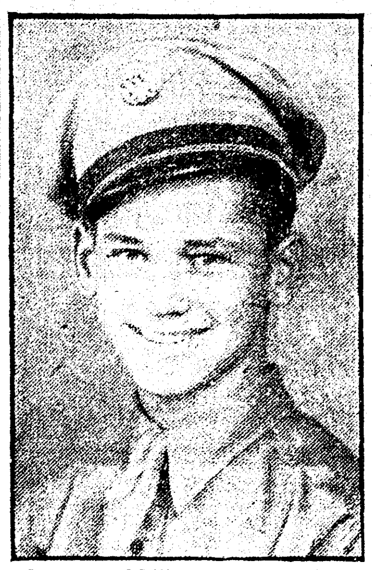
AERIAL GUNNER



Sergeant William B. Blackmon, aerial gunner in a heavy bomber squadron, has returned to Dalhart, Tex., after spending an eight-day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elliott.

STORY CONTEST IS STEPPED UP

Kiwanis Award To Be Made At N. J. C. At Earlier Date

Carrying out a tradition begun several years ago, the Kiwanis club of Monroe will sponsor again this year a short story contest which is open to all regularly enrolled freshman and sophomore students of Northeast Junior college who are taking not less than 10 hours of work.

The award for the best short story ranging from 1,000 to 3,000 words, will be presented at the annual College day program, which is sponsored by the Student council and held during the latter part of May as a special occasion when recognition is given students who have done outstanding work or made special contributions in various fields of college activity.

January 7 is the deadline for entries, it was announced by B. S. Hamner, head of the department of languages, who is in charge of the contest. All rules governing the preparation of stories for competition will be posted on the bulletin board of the administration building or may be secured from English instructors.

Stories are to be judged by a group of former editors of the Pow Wow, college newspaper, and the title of the winning story will be announced on College day. Stories will not include names of authors when they are given to the jupdges. They will be designated only by titles and numbers, Mr. Hamner said.

Last year's prize, war savings stamps, was presented by Ivy Jordan, president of the local Kiwanis club, to Barbara Schuster, Monroe freshman, for her story, "Equal?" The award granted the preceding year went to Hollace Busbice of West Monroe for his story, "King of My Street."

The list of previous winners includes: Lloyd Lenard, Dorothy Webb, Seymour Glazer, Elizabeth Whatley, Lois Smith, Gilbert Brown, the late Lillian Herron Williamson and others.

Many Can Tell Stirring Tales Of Rescues By Captain Blanks

Saving Of Lives From Drowning Old Stuff For Local Fireman

By Madeline Allen

He used to splash around and dive (and probably "belly-flop" the way kids do) down in the Ouachita, and, yes, he taught himself to swim, too, fortunately for a lot of hale and happy citizens who'll tell you today that Captain Jack Blanks once pulled them out of a tight and very watery spot.

Jack Blanks began his life-saving career pretty early. Somehow he always seemed to be around when someone got in "water" trouble.

From the time he was a little shaver the water and the river didn't scare him. He and the little colored boys on his grandparents' plantation used to paddle around in the Ouachita which flowed past the big land. In fact, way back in the summer of 1913 when Jack was just a youngster he pulled off his first life-saving event, and a double header, at that.

Two little colored chaps, Ike Davis and Jeff Morris, just got too much water in their breathing apparatus and called for some real life-saving. Jack didn't know much about artificial respiration then, but he hauled 'em out, and pounded and batted and slapped their wrists, and brought them back to life. That's all!

Then in 1921 there was a picnic, and a chum named Bill Herrick. Yes, and a chap named Sam Schaeffer, and Jack's half-brother, Faulkner, and this time it was a triple bill.

It was up by a place called Rock Row before they put in a dam there. A party of fifteen young people were picnicking that summer day. Faulkner, out in the stream and taking his ease on a life preserver, fell off into a current not exactly leisurely and gentle. The kid was washed 150 feet down the river before Jack could swim to him, and then he made 15 and 18-foot dives time and time again before he could bring his brother up. Faulkner had been clinging blindly and desperately to a rock in the river bed. It took Jack two hours of constant working over Faulkner to bring him out of that ducking.

And what about the other two, Bill and Sam? Well, one got a cramp and the other just stepped into a deep hole. He couldn't swim. It almost seemed like a field day for the river, and it was a lucky break that Jack Blanks and trained nurse Ruth Webb were members of that picnic party.

Then there was a mighty good Christmas present for a man named Peter Saver one December 23 in Yuma, Arizona. Jack Blanks had been, as he phrases it, "hoboing around and seeing the country." That particular day he was splashing around in the Colorado river. To put it briefly, he was taking a bath. The Saver man was fishing out in the river and also took a bath, unexpectedly, when he fell overboard. He couldn't swim, either, and once again Jack had saved a life. This was getting to be old stuff.

It was 1926 at Gibsland, La., that Captain Blanks pulled off the hardest rescue he ever attempted. It was a bitterly cold November day and around Gibsland, which is situated in a little valley, they had just had a big cloudburst. The place was flooded, the railroad washed out and water hurling itself across the highway.

Captain Jack was on his way to the Shreveport fair, but he didn't get there. It ssemed a little old man they called Professor Wren had been desperately trying to reach a small island in the water expanse where his cattle were and the torrent had swept him off his feet, hurled him along the current until he was caught by barbed wire strung along what had been the highway.

Blanks waded into the wild water and was swept up like the little pro-the spot but his own power wasn't fessor. He directed his course toward needed to propel him. It took the Captain almost half an hour to get the two of them off that cruel barbed wire fence. It was shiveringly cold and the water kept hurling them back into the wire. Jack still has deep scars where those barbs tore through. But he kept on, and there was one more rescue on his already long list.

In Bastrop, in 1931, a summons came to Monroe's fire department where Jack Blanks is transferred in the winter time. A big sign had fallen on top of the light and power line, so Captain Blanks answered the call. Helping him was Charles Goodwin, son of the then mayor of Bastrop. Goodwin received a terrific voltage of electricity and his condition appeared despairingly hopeless. It took Blanks two hours to revive Goodwin, but as usual he didn't give up and he did it.

Someone told us that these weren't half the people Captain Blanks had saved, but these were all we could get out of the man. He doesn't talk a lot. And of course it doesn't include what Jack Blanks terms "routine rescues along the line of duty." It doesn't add the amazing number of lives he's saved in connection with Monroe's fire department, nor does it include the youngsters and oldsters he pulls out of the pool so often it "doesn't count."

Then there are the preventative "rescues" Captain Blanks establishes when he teaches Monroe children to swim at the pool each summer, and, on his own, sees that the youngsters from the Children's home get a chance to learn, too.

Captain Jack is a tall and leanly muscular man, as brown as weather can tan a person. His eyes are blue and direct, and he's probably as healthy an individual as you'll find. His friends, and there are a lot of those, we found, will tell something else—Jack Blanks is a brave man.

It is estimated that in 1943 American civilians have $45,000,000,000 more to spend than there are goods and services available for purchase.

LEGION PLANS ON BIG PARTY

Will Entertain Auxiliary; Magician To Give Performance

L. B. Faulk post, American Legion, plans a big party at the memorial home Monday at 8 p.m. when the members will be hosts to the Legion auxiliary and to all others who are wives of members regardless of whether or not they are members of the auxiliary.

The entertainment feature of the occasion will be a performance of magic and sleight of hand stunts by T. L. Hodges, of the Louisiana Training institute, where he is an instructor. Mr. Hodges has attracted much attention the past few weeks when he has appeared before local clubs and has given unusually interesting demonstrations of his skill at sleight of hand tricks.

At Monday night's meeting, he will be given unlimited time to carry on and it is expected that this will enable him to present probably the b[est] show that he has thus far staged [in] Monroe.

Post Commander F. V. Allison w[ill] announce at this meeting his comm[it]tee appointments and also plans w[ill] be formulated for the carrying out [of] the annual membership campaign.

Little Orphan Annie
UNABLE LONGER TO RESIST THE CLAMOROUS DEMAND OF THE BUSINESS MEN OF GOONEYVILLE, OF HIS FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS, SPIKE SPANGLE HAS CONSENTED TO RUN AGAINST GEORGE GULL FOR MAYOR—
GEE, ANNIE! I SURE HOPE YOUR UNCLE SPIKE GETS 'LECTED!
MY PAPA SAYS HE'S BOUND TO WIN!
SOME O' TH' KIDS OVER ON TH' OTHER SIDE O' TOWN DON'T THINK SO—YEAH? WHO SAID MR. SPANGLE WON'T BEAT OLD GULL, EASY?
I HEARD BUGS ASH SAY SO— HE SAID GULL WILL WIN, TWO TO ONE—
SURE! BUGS' OLD MAN HAS HAD A SOFT JOB AT TOWN HALL FOR TH' LAST TEN YEARS—
SEPT 19
YEAH! IF OLD GULL GETS LICKED BUGS' OLD MAN WILL HAVE TO GO TO WORK— BUT WHAT'S HIS ONE VOTE?
MY PAPA SAYS ONE OUT O' EVERY THREE VOTERS IN GOONEYVILLE HAS AT LEAST ONE IN TH' FAMILY LIVIN' OFF TH' TOWN—
AIN'T IT TH' TRUTH? WHY, EVEN MY UNCLE NIB, WHO USED TO LIVE WITH US, IS JANITOR AT TH' JAIL, NOW—
SO THAT'S WHY YOUR PAPA AN' MAMA VOTED FOR OLD GULL THE LAST THREE TIMES HE RAN, EH?
OH, MY FOLKS DON'T LIKE THE OLD WINDBAG— MY PAPA CALLS GULL SOME TERRIBLE NAMES— BUT WE DON'T WANT TO HAVE TO TAKE UNCLE NIB BACK—
MY PAPA SAYS ONE MORE TERM FOR GULL AND EVERY STORE IN THIS TOWN WILL HAVE TO CLOSE!
HALF OF 'EM ARE CLOSED NOW— FOUR GROCERIES— THREE MEAT MARKETS— SAM'S BAKERY— THAT NICE FRUIT STORE ON MAIN— ALL SHUT TIGHT—
MY MAMA SAYS IT'S THE WAR THAT'S TO BLAME—
WELL, MY MAMA SAYS OLD GULL BLAMES TH' RESULTS O' ALL HIS MISTAKES ON TH' WAR— IT'S A NICE OUT FOR HIM—WELL, I GUESS WE AGREE MAYOR GULL HAS TO BE LICKED— AND BY UNCLE SPIKE!
AND WE JUNIOR COMMANDOS CAN HELP DO IT, TOO— JUST TELL US WHAT TO DO, COLONEL ANNIE—
NO! TH' JUNIOR COMMANDOS MUST STAY OUT O' POLITICS— JUST TH' SAME AS TH' ARMY AND NAVY!
DON'T LET ME HEAR OF ANY ONE O' YOU SAYIN' A WORD— AS A JUNIOR COMMANDO— FOR ANY CANDIDATE, EVEN UNCLE SPIKE— OR OUT YOU GO!
O.K., COLONEL ANNIE—
IF YOU SAY SO—
9-19-43
O' COURSE, ANNIE'S RIGHT— MR. SPANGLE WILL WIN EASY, ANYWAY— DON'T YOU THINK SO?
GEE! I DUNNO— I'LL TELL YOU A SECRET, IF YOU'LL NEVER TELL— MY MAMA VOTED FOR MAYOR GULL LAST TIME!
WHAT? WHY IN TH' WORLD DID SHE EVER DO THAT?
IT WAS AWFUL! PAPA WOULDN'T SPEAK TO HER FOR OVER A WEEK— BUT MAMA SAID SHE JUST COULDN'T HELP BUT VOTE FOR HIM, AFTER SHE HEARD HIM SPEAK!

SO YOU WERE THE GHOST OF THE OLD HAUNTED HOUSE!
YES, BLAST YOUR CUSSED HIDES, I WAS THE GHOST!
WELL, WHAT WAS TH' BIG IDEA?
WHAT DID YOU HOPE TO GAIN?
THE MYSTERY OF THE OLD HAUNTED HOUSE SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN SOLVED WITH THE FLIGHT OF OLD JOE, THE PROSPECTOR, FROM THE FLAMES
WELL, NOW THAT THE OLD HOUSE IS GONE, THERE'S NO REASON FOR NOT TELLING
OKAY, OL' TIMER, LET'S HAVE IT!
MEANWHILE, YOU'D BETTER LET US FIX UP THAT ARM
BUT GOLLY, JOE, GHOSTS DON'T EAT GRUB LIKE YOU'VE BEEN BUYING FOR YEARS AT DAD'S STORE WITH GOLD DUST
THIS GHOST DID, BUD... AND IT WAS TH' GOLD THAT CAUSED ALL THIS FUSS
JUST A DEEP SCRATCH!
Y'SEE, THERE WAS A GOLD MINE UNDER THE OLD HOUSE. I WORKED IT FOR YEARS... PLAYED SPOOK T'KEEP FOLKS AWAY! HEH! I SKEERED PLENTY PEOPLE, I DID!
HO! SO THAT'S HOW OLD LEM'S PLACE WAS THOUGHT TO BE HAUNTED!
YEP... BUT IT NEVER HURT NOBODY. AND THEN THOSE COW-STEALIN' BUTCHERS MOVED IN... I WAS FIXIN' TO STAMPEDE 'EM WHEN THIS CHAP AN' TH' BOY SHOWED UP AN' SAVED ME TH' TROUBLE
ONLY THING WAS, I COULDN'T GET RID OF 'EM... NOW THE OLD HOUSE IS GONE, AN' TH' MINE WITH IT... BUT I DON'T RECKON THAT'LL MATTER MUCH NOW... WITH YOU LAWS IN ON TH' DEAL
LISTEN, PUNK... HOW'D YA LIKE AN ATTEMPTED MURDER CHARGE ADDED TO YOUR OTHER CRIMES?
CHEE... I WOULDN'T LIKE IT MUCH!
THEN KEEP YOUR TRAP SHUT ABOUT OLD JOE'S PART IN THIS!
DOES THAT MEAN I AIN'T GONNA HAFTA GO TO JAIL?
THAT'S RIGHT, POP!
YOU JUST GO "OVER THE HILL" FOR A SPELL, TILL THIS BLOWS OVER, AND NOBODY'LL BE ANY THE WISER!
WELL, I'M KINDA OLD T'HUNT UP NEW DIGGIN'S, BUT WITH LEM'S PLACE GONE, I GUESS THERE'S NOTHIN' LEFT TO KEEP ME HERE
AW, POP, YOU'LL MAKE OUT ALL RIGHT

DAY OF BATTLE
THOUGH THEY RECOGNIZED TARZAN'S POWER THE RIVAL SULTANS EACH BELIEVED HIS OWN FIGHTER WOULD WIN.
THAT NIGHT THE APE-MAN SLEPT SOUNDLY AND UNAFRAID, STORING ENERGY FOR THE COMING CONTEST.
AT DAWN, GREAT CROWDS, IN CARNIVAL MOOD, STREAMED TOWARD THE STADIUM.
WILD RUMORS SPREAD ABOUT THE MYSTERIOUS GLADIATORS WHO WERE SOON TO MEET IN COMBAT.
MEDA-JODT'S CHAMPION WAS SAID TO BE A 12-FOOT GIANT WITH THE FANGS OF A LION AND THE MIGHT OF A GORILLA.
"WHAT CHANCE HAS OUR TARZAN AGAINST SUCH A ONE?" AN ANXIOUS CITIZEN MOANED.
MEANWHILE, TARZAN WAS TAKEN UNDER HEAVY GUARD TO A TOWER IN THE STADIUM.
SPECIAL TRAINERS BEGAN TO MASSAGE HIS MUSCLES. "WE WANT YOU TO BE IN FIGHTING TRIM," THEY SAID.
"I AM ALWAYS IN FIGHTING TRIM," THE APE-MAN ANSWERED, "BESIDES, HOW CAN YOU FORCE ME TO FIGHT?"
AT THAT MOMENT A GONG SOUNDED. TARZAN'S ESCORT SPRANG TO ALERT EXPECTANCY.
THE GONG SOUNDED AGAIN. TARZAN WAS SEIZED AND FLUNG INTO A GIANT FUNNEL.

REMEMBER THAT OTHER MEDIUM WHO SWINDLED YOU OUT OF $1000, AUNT SOPHIA!
YOGI WALLIS IS WONDERFUL, MAIDA--- SO PSYCHIC, YOU KNOW!
AH, THE CHARMING MRS. FADWELL! YOUR ASTRAL PRESENCE PUTS ME IN A PSYCHIC SWOON!
OH, YOGI! YOU SAY THE NICEST THINGS!
The GREAT PLUNKETT NOW playing
OH, DEAR! I WISH AUNT SOPHIA WEREN'T SO GULLIBLE!
BEG PARDON, MISS! ISN'T YOUR NAME MAIDA?
GOOD HEAVENS! THAT PUP ACTUALLY SPOKE TO ME!
NO, MAIDA. 'TWAS THE GREAT PLUNKETT, VENTRILOQUIST, MAGICIAN, AND CHAMPION LOCK PICKER!
LONNIE! I HAVEN'T SEEN YOU SINCE YOU PUT ON YOUR ACT AT THE CANTEEN!
TELL LONNIE YOUR TROUBLES, MAIDA!
AUNT SOPHIA IS BEING TAKEN IN BY A FAKE MEDIUM!
THERE'S THE PLACE! AUNT SOPHIA IS JUST LEAVING!
EASY USED TO KNOW A SCALAWAG NAMED WALLIS-- C. HOLLIS WALLIS!
I CAN TELL IN TWO MINUTES IF HE'S A FAKE!
IS YO' ALL YEARNIN' FOR THE YOGI?
THE NAME IS LONNIE PLUNKETT, MIST' WALLIS!
HE'S NOT LISTED! OH, WELL, I CAN STALL THROUGH THIS SEANCE!
YOU'D BETTER MAKE IT GOOD, YOGI!

SO YOU WERE THE GHOST OF THE OLD HAUNTED HOUSE!
YES, BLAST YOUR CUSSED HIDES, I WAS THE GHOST!
WELL, WHAT WAS TH' BIG IDEA?
WHAT DID YOU HOPE TO GAIN?
THE MYSTERY OF THE OLD HAUNTED HOUSE SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN SOLVED WITH THE FLIGHT OF OLD JOE, THE PROSPECTOR, FROM THE FLAMES
WELL, NOW THAT THE OLD HOUSE IS GONE, THERE'S NO REASON FOR NOT TELLING
OKAY, OL' TIMER, LET'S HAVE IT!
MEANWHILE, YOU'D BETTER LET US FIX UP THAT ARM
BUT GOLLY, JOE, GHOSTS DON'T EAT GRUB LIKE YOU'VE BEEN BUYING FOR YEARS AT DAD'S STORE WITH GOLD DUST
THIS GHOST DID, BUD...AND IT WAS TH' GOLD THAT CAUSED ALL THIS FUSS
Hmm! JUST A DEEP SCRATCH!
Y'SEE, THERE WAS A GOLD MINE UNDER THE OLD HOUSE. I WORKED IT FOR YEARS...PLAYED SPOOK T'KEEP FOLKS AWAY! HEH! I SKEERED PLENTY PEOPLE, I DID!
HO! SO THAT'S HOW OLD LEM'S PLACE WAS THOUGHT TO BE HAUNTED!
YEP...BUT IT NEVER HURT NOBODY. AND THEN THOSE COW-STEALIN' BUTCHERS MOVED IN...I WAS FIXIN' TO STAMPEDE 'EM WHEN THIS CHAP AN' TH' BOY SHOWED UP AN' SAVED ME TH' TROUBLE
ONLY THING WAS I COULDN'T GET RID OF 'EM... NOW THE OLD HOUSE IS GONE, AN' TH' MINE WITH IT... BUT I DON'T RECKON THAT'LL MATTER MUCH NOW... WITH YOU LAWS IN ON TH' DEAL
LISTEN, PUNK...HOW'D YA LIKE AN ATTEMPTED MURDER CHARGE ADDED TO YOUR OTHER CRIMES?
CHEE...I WOULDN'T LIKE IT MUCH!
THEN KEEP YOUR TRAP SHUT ABOUT OLD JOE'S PART IN THIS!
DOES THAT MEAN I AIN'T GONNA HAFTA GO TO JAIL?
THAT'S RIGHT, POP!
YOU JUST GO "OVER THE HILL" FOR A SPELL, TILL THIS BLOWS OVER, AND NOBODY'LL BE ANY THE WISER!
WELL, I'M KINDA OLD T'HUNT UP NEW DIGGIN'S, BUT WITH LEM'S PLACE GONE, I GUESS THERE'S NOTHIN' LEFT TO KEEP ME HERE
AW, POP, YOU'LL MAKE OUT ALL RIGHT
SHUCKS...I DUNNO WHY I HADDA BLUNDER INTO THAT OL' GUY'S LIFE AN' GUM IT ALL UP!

NOW SHOWING HIS HONOR, THE GRAND WIZER OF MOO
ALL RIGHT, FOLKS, HERE WE GO...FIRST, I GOT A RIDDLE FOR YOU
A HORN IN A HORN, UP IN A TREE...GUESS THIS RIDDLE AN' YOU CAN SHOOT ME... GIVE UP? OKAY... IT'S A LUG NAMED HORN WHO SWALLERED A HORN...AIN'T THAT A KILLER? HAW HAW!
GEE! THAT'S AWFUL!
WE OUGHTA SHOOT HIM!
SHOOTIN'S TOO GOOD FOR HIM!
WE GOTTA GET SUMPIN BETTER'N THAT...OR ELSE!

SOME SENSE OF DANGER AROUSES DESIRA FROM HER DEEP SLUMBER. FOR ONE FATEFUL, SLEEP-DRUGGED SECOND, SHE STARES INCREDULOUSLY AT THE ESCAPED PRISONER--- THEN HE SLAPS A CHLOROFORM-SOAKED CLOTH OVER THE QUEEN'S MOUTH AND NOSE.
WHEN DESIRA GOES LIMP AND UNCONSCIOUS, BRAZOR SNARLS: "QUICK, PEQUIT--- TEAR SOME BEDCLOTHES INTO STRIPS!"
"HAVE YOU KILLED HER?" PEQUIT GASPS. BRAZOR SNAPS: "DON'T BE SO SQUEAMISH! OF COURSE, I HAVEN'T KILLED HER, OR I WOULDN'T BE WASTING TIME TYING HER UP!"
9-19-43.
BRAZOR SETS OUT ON THE LAST LAP OF HIS DANGEROUS RACE FOR POWER: "THIS IS A FINE NOTE," HE WHINES, AS HE PASSES A PUZZLED GUARD---"ME, A SOLDIER, CARRYING THE QUEEN'S LAUNDRY!"

WE'LL CALL FOR YOU AT FOUR-THIRTY IN THE MORNING, DAGWOOD
OKAY, BOYS, I'LL BE READY
IF YOU'RE GOING FISHING IN THE MORNING, YOU'D BETTER GET TO BED EARLY, DEAR
YESSIREE, I'M GOING TO BED AS SOON AS I FINISH MY SUPPER
TURN OFF THAT RADIO! I'VE GOTTA GET TO SLEEP!
IS IT TIME FOR ME TO GET UP?
NO, DEAR, IT'S JUST TEN O'CLOCK -- I'M COMING TO BED NOW
HEY, PA, THERE'S A BEAR IN MY ROOM
NONSENSE -- THAT'S JUST YOUR IMAGINATION! GO BACK TO SLEEP!
WHA-A
I WANNA DRINK OF WATER
THIS IS THE THIRD ONE TONIGHT
OH, GOLLY, NOW I GOT MYSELF HUNGRY -- I NEVER WILL GET ANY SLEEP
NO USE... I'M TOO EXCITED -- I CAN'T GET TO SLEEP
YOU MIGHT AS WELL GET UP -- IT'S ALMOST TIME, ANYWAY
OH, BOY, I'M ALL READY TO GO A HALF-HOUR AHEAD OF TIME -- I'LL SIT OUTSIDE AND WAIT FOR THE BOYS
